ARTHUR N. GARDNER, DEAD.

Prominent Odd Fellow Laid at Rest Yesterday Afternoon.

No death for a long time in East Weymouth has come to the people with more of a shock and surprise than the announcement last Monday afternoon that Arthur N. Gardner was dead.

Mr. Gardner began a printer's life in the Gazette office under the tuition of C. G. Easterbrook more than thirty years ago and for the last 14 years has held an important position in the printing department of the Boston Record.

He began last week as usual working until Wednesday night coming home bright and cheerful with no foreboding of a speedy end. On Thursday he was stricken with acute pneumonia, growing rapidly worse until Monday afternoon when his heart failed to do further service and Arthur N. Gardner had gone from an active business and valuable social life to be missed and mourned not only in his own home, but in many other homes where he had exemplified the great teaching of the orders to which he belonged.

He was initiated into Odd Fellowship in Malden Lodge I. O. O. F. twenty-five years ago, as he resided there at the time, became an active member of Wompatuck Encampment on his return to East Weymouth passed through the various offices including that of Chief Patriarch, was also affiliated with Steadfast Rebekah Lodge and also a member of James L. Bates Camp S. of V.

Mr. Gardner was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jason Gardner and was born in South Weymouth fifty-three years ago and is survived by his widowed mother, wife and four children, three sons and a daughter.

Funeral services were held at his late home yesterday afternoon and were largely attended by friends and relatives.

Rev. L. W. Attwood of South Weymouth officiated and was assisted by Rev. Edward T. Ford D. D. of the Congregational church. There were solos by Mrs. Evie Sherman Philbrook.

Crescent Lodge I. O. O. F. and Wompatuck Encampment were in attendance and Crescent Lodge performed its service at the home after which the remains were conveyed to Fairmount cemetery where the committal service was performed by officers of the Encampment.

The bearers were John McIsaac and Harry Morton of Crescent Lodge, Sidney W. Raymond and Geo. H. Abbott of the Encampment, N. G. Charles L. Carson and Henry D. Bower of Malden Lodge 201 I. O. O. F.

Floral tributes from friends, relatives, fellow associates of the several orders and also of the printing fraternity were many choice and rare.

LOVELL—BETTINCOURT.

Lovell's Corner Young Man Takes East Weymouth Young Lady as Bride on Thanksgiving Eve.

A pretty home wedding took place on Thanksgiving eve in East Weymouth, when Miss Elizabeth Frances Bettincourt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Myron G. Bettincourt, became the bride of Karl Granger Lovell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lovell of Pleasant street, Lovell's Corner. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride on East street by Rev. B. J. Scott of Somerset. Miss Grace Tucker of Forest Hills was maid of honor and Harry Tabor of Forest Hills acted as best man.

The ushers were Myron Bettincourt and Arthur Bettincourt of East Weymouth, brothers of the bride.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Herbert McFawn, a sister of the groom. The bride was beautifully gowned in white silk messaline with Oriental lace trimmings. Her tulle veil was held in place with orange blossoms. The maid of honor's dress was of pink crepe de chine.

After the ceremony, a reception was held until ten o'clock.

IN MEMORIAM.

Crary Lodge No. 207 A. O. U. W.

WHEREAS It has pleased our Heavenly Father in His infinite wisdom to take from our ranks and call unto Himself our worthy brother, we feel moved to make a record of our loss; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That by the death of Brother Edward J. Joyce, Crary Lodge has lost a true and faithful Workman.

RESOLVED, That our heartfelt sympathy be extended to his family, and that the departed one may prove a blessing to them, knowing that He who can separate can unite them again.

RESOLVED, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, a copy to the Weymouth Gazette and a copy spread upon the records of our Lodge.

TOWN BUSINESS.

A Busy Afternoon for the Selectmen and Some Business Continued.

At the Monday meeting of the Selectmen Rev. Chester J. Underhill and others were granted a permit to have a public celebration in Washington Square on the evening of the 24th.

John H. Tobin and Harry B. Torrey were drawn as jurors for the December term of the Superior court at Dedham.

Michael J. Coyle was granted a permit for moving picture exhibits in Odd Fellows' opera house, East Weymouth. Mr. Coyle succeeds Mr. Fisher.

Permit was granted George A. Stamper for moving picture exhibits in Music hall, South Weymouth.

Voted to introduce steam heat from the Engine house into the Lock Up at North Weymouth.

Hon. George L. Barnes appeared for Mrs. Hannah R. Abbot who files complaint of serious accidents by falling over the roof of a tree on Putnam street.

The Loyal Order of Moose have been granted a permit to hold dancing parties in their hall at Commercial square, East Weymouth, time extending to May 1st, 1915.

A good part of the afternoon was spent in a hearing on a petition for widening and straightway a place on Pleasant street which includes a dangerous curve about half way between the residence of Frank W. Rea and the Porter church.

Engineer Whiting submitted three surveys and plans beginning near the home of Mr. Rea and extending to the church. There was a good attendance of abutters and others at the hearing and while they all agreed as to the necessity of something being done there was a difference of opinion as to which plan it was best to adopt and the board will give a further hearing or take more time for consideration before making any recommendation.

The Board of Fire Engineers met in the town offices last Tuesday night. It was voted to instruct the drivers of the fire autos not to exceed a speed limit of thirty miles per hour when responding to fires.

Several changes in the running order of the department have been made with the new arrival of the auto fire trucks. Combination 1 responds to all boxes in ward 1. Combination 2, to all alarms in wards 1, 2 and 3 and boxes 46, 47 and 48.

Combination 3 now goes out to all alarms in wards 2 and 3 and to boxes 41, 43, 46, 47, 48 and 49.

Hose 7 responds to box 19 only.

Hose 6 hitches up for boxes 41, 48, 49.

Hose 4 is called to boxes 43 and 45.

Hose 5 goes to every box in the south part of the town except 43.

Further changes will probably be in order when the ward 5 apparatus arrives.

ANOTHER VETERAN GONE.

Warren Dunbar, a Veteran of Co. E 12th Mass. Mustered Out.

The subject of this sketch was a native of North Weymouth, son of Warren Dunbar and was born in April 1831.

At the early age of 12 years Mr. Dunbar lost his father and the mother bravely faced the battle of life with a family of small children and Warren almost at once became a shoemaker in East Weymouth.

On the call for defenders of the flag he enlisted April 20th, 1861 in Co. E, 12th Mass. and was in the fight at Center Mountain, Thoroughfare Gap, Chantilly, South Mountain, Antietam, Rappahannock Station, Williamsport, Mine Run, Spottsylvania and other places.

Until the last year Mr. Dunbar had for several years lived in Quincy, 14 years of which was with Mrs. Frank McNeil, was an active member of Post 88 G. A. R. and for 20 years was Officer of the Day, parading last Decoration Day with a step as light as many a man much younger. His health however shortly began to fail and he changed his residence to 28 Moulton avenue was stricken with apoplexy and passed away last Saturday.

Funeral services were held at his late home on Tuesday and under escort of Post 88 the remains were taken to the cemetery at Quincy where G. A. R. services were held and the burial took place.

Mr. Dunbar is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Lina Elkins of Newtonville, 11 grand children, 4 great grandchildren, two brothers, James M. who now resides at Oddfellows' Home, Worcester, David, 208 East street, North Weymouth.

Got Rare Species of Whale.

While cruising off the coast of British Columbia recently the whaling ship White landed a right whale, which is now very rare, especially in northern Pacific waters, and one particularly valuable for its bone. It was the first of its kind captured off that coast in several years, and was valued at $20,000.

CLAPP MEMORIAL MEN'S CLUB.

Wild Goose Supper and Stirring Address by Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston.

The December meeting of the Men's Club connected with the Davis Bates Clapp Memorial association was held last Wednesday evening and was an occasion of more than ordinary interest. The supper was more than ordinary because it was the annual wild goose supper of the club and this annual event has become a marked one.

The after supper affair was more than ordinary because the speaker of the evening was Ex-Mayor Fitzgerald and he proved himself on this occasion, as usual, no ordinary man.

It was quite apparent early in the evening that all roads brought people from all parts of Weymouth, Braintree, Hingham and other places. Mayor Fitzgerald was accompanied by Joseph A. Maynard of the Custom House and at 7.30 a receiving line was formed and 155 people took the hand of His Honor and the column proceeded to the auditorium which had become a banquet hall.

President Wheaton of the club called upon Rev. Dr. Edward T. Ford to say grace and then the dissection and discussion of wild geese began and 35 migratory bird became the food of man as did also other nibbles down to cocoa, leas and cake.

President Wheaton made a short address of welcome and introduced Mayor Fitzgerald as a man able to entertain, amuse and instruct his hearers and for nearly two hours the speaker proved that this statement was no libel.

We believe there was a name attached to the Mayor's address, but as the name escaped us we will call it Educational, Social, Moral and Business Uplift to every community which adopts the great principles laid down. Educationally was emphasized. Post graduate courses for college boys, but not one in ten of the boys, who go through our schools ever reach either or any of the professions. What we want, need and must have, is a more complete education of the boys and girls of the 6th, 7th and 8th grades, an industrial education which shall fit them for useful positions in our industrial institutions and not leave them on the streets as vagabonds at the age of 18 or 19.

Socially and morally we need to break down the barriers in society which separate classes. In community life there should be no Jew or Gentile, no Catholic or Protestant, but every citizen joins the multitude in raising the standard of life to the highest possible degree of perfection.

Much of the speaker's time was devoted to the business condition of Massachusetts and New England in general. We are fairly holding our own in the shoe and leather industry but in most of the others we are letting them drift away. Boston, the second largest shipping point in the country, should be the largest on account of our harbor facilities and the fact that it is a day's sail nearer foreign countries than New York.

The center of cotton and wool industries belong in Boston, rather than New York or Philadelphia, because of these and other advantages.

Boston banking and other financial concerns came in for a criticism for not aiding home industries rather than Michigan and other mining sections.

Hayden—Cossaboom.

A wedding of much interest in North Weymouth, occurred on Thanksgiving, when Miss Uta Cossaboom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cossaboom of North Weymouth became the bride of Harrison I. Hayden son of Mrs. Lydia Hayden of East Weymouth.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles Clark pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational church of North Weymouth.

After a wedding trip through south eastern Massachusetts and to New Hampshire, Mr. and Mrs. Hayden will reside at the home of the bride's parents until their new home on High street East Weymouth is completed.

Peoples' Forum.

A good sized audience attended the Peoples' Forum meeting in the Baptist church in Lincoln square, Weymouth, last Sunday night.

Rev. C. J. Underhill, pastor of the church, presided and also conducted devotional exercises.

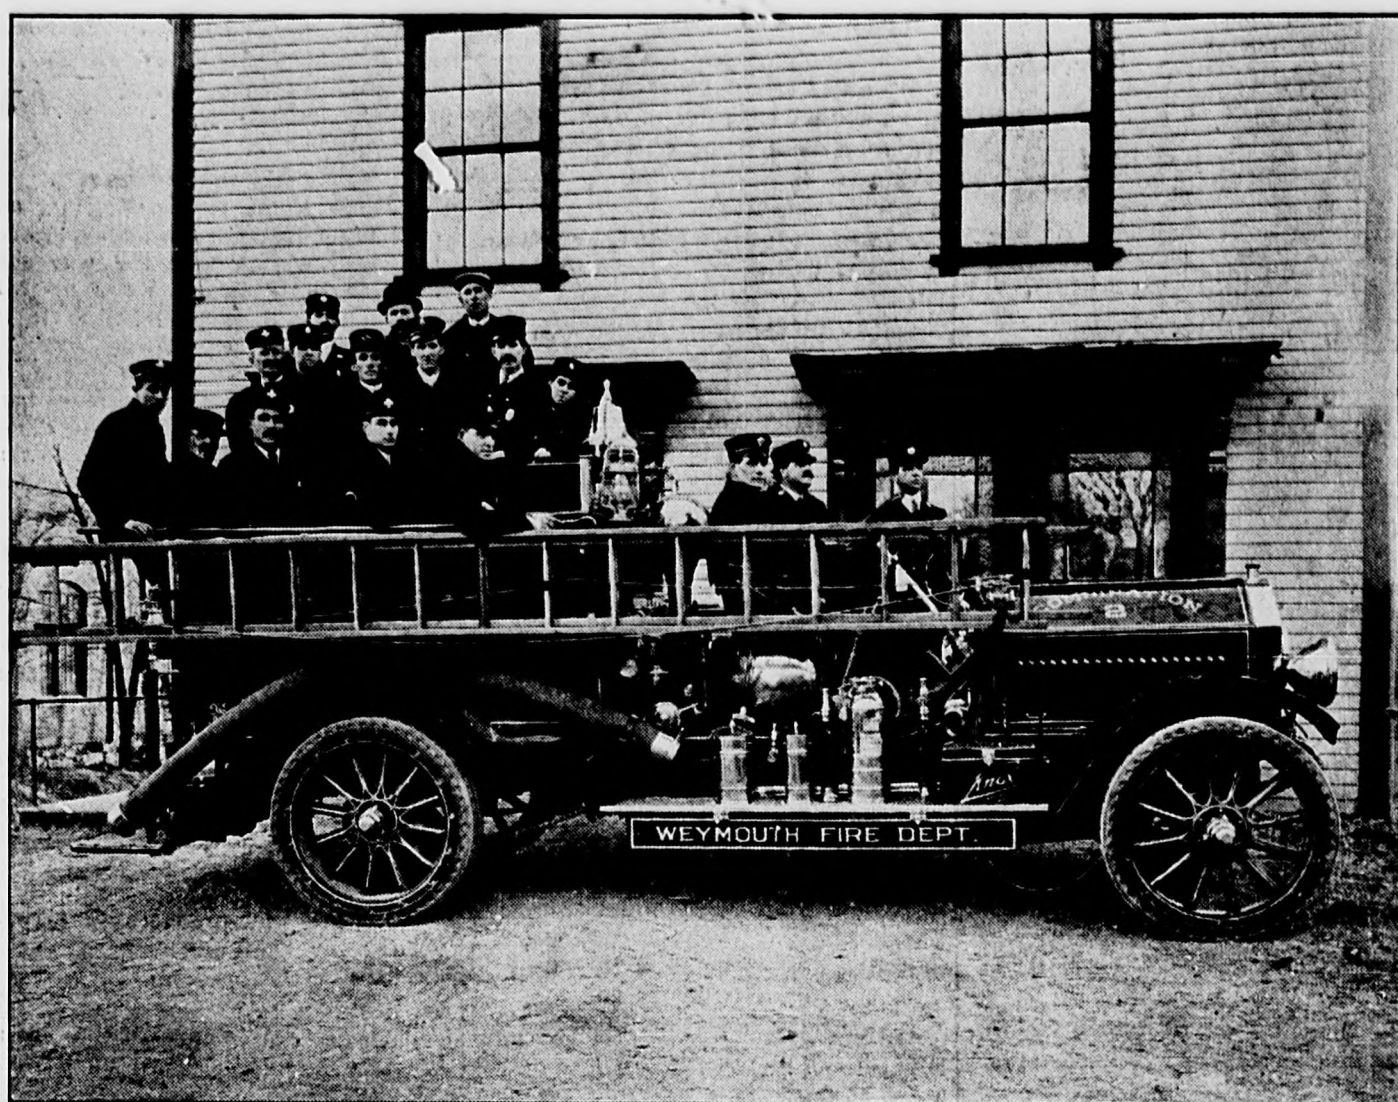

The speaker of the evening was Rev. Dr. J. H. Franklin, son of a confederate soldier and National Secretary of the Baptist Foreign Missionary Society.

An orchestra composed of the pupils of the High school, under the direction of James W. Calderwood, gave selections.

Mrs. Annie Estelle Hollis rendered solos and John H. Guttererson presided at the organ.

Combination No. 2 on Duty

New Knox Machine Answers Four Alarms in Fast Time in First Sixty Hours. Tests Highly Successful.

About noon last Saturday, a large, crimson Knox auto fire combination truck drew up in front of the Ward 2 engine house in East Weymouth and the second instalment of the three piece purchase of apparatus voted at the special town meeting last July was safely delivered in town. A crowd immediately gathered to cast eager, if not expert eyes, over the new arrival. The comments were of various sorts, but all were of the order that the new combination was surely a beauty and if it could give as good service as it looked, East Weymouth surely had a prize in the fire fighting line.

The new machine, as the picture shows, is one of the larger styles of apparatus strongly built to withstand any amount of hard usage. It is equipped with hard rubber tires, of the most up-to-date make.

The chemical tank is under the driver's seat and is capable of containing 40 gallons of chemical. The machine carries an extra chemical charge, making an available 80 gallons of chemical on each trip.

Just behind the driver's seat is the gasoline tank, next a coat rack and then the hose and room for the firemen who are fortunate to catch the speedster before it leaves the house. The truck has two large lights in front, two smaller side lights and one large searchlight, all electric, and controlled by three switches on the dashboard, within easy reach of the chauffeur.

The pumps are controlled from the driver's seat, everything being as compact and easy to handle as is possible to have them.

Ladders, axes, hooks, firemen's kit, etc. go to make up the rest of the equipment. Without any men aboard, but fully equipped with hose, the new machine weighs about six tons.

For about three weeks, the chauffeur, Harold Hawes, will be assisted and coached in the methods of running the new machine, by an expert sent by the Knox Co. with the machine.

TRUCK ANSWERS FOUR FIRES.

The first alarm the new combination was called upon to answer was at five o'clock Saturday afternoon when box 25 was rung in for a slight fire in the rear of Gustavus Pratt's estate on Middle street, near Charles. The apparatus got away to a flying start and was on the scene in short order.

At 8.50 Saturday night, fire was discovered around the chimney in the house on the corner of Hill and Grant streets and box 21 immediately came in. The chemical tank and pump had a good try-out at this small fire.

Box 116 at 9.25 Sunday morning gave Driver Hawes and the Ward 2 boys their first chance on a long run. When the alarm stopped blowing the combination was at King Oak hill and was less than five minutes on the way to the blaze, which was confined to the shed in a house on Bridge street occupied by Ed. Hayden. The loss was slight.

Monday night, or to be accurate, at 12.34 Tuesday morning, a false alarm came in from box 28 and in the fog the locals made a quick get-away. The feature of this alarm was the extremely fast trip of the Combination 3 in the fog.

TESTS HELD TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

On Tuesday afternoon the machine was taken out for a series of tests in pumping. Water was taken from the "Herring Brook" and all the tests proved very successful.

In the first test 742 gallons of water per minute was obtained from four lines of 100 ft. each with 7-8 inch nozzles on. Second, three lines of 100 feet each, with two 1 inch and one 1-8 inch nozzles, the result was 695 gallons a minute. The pressure in the first test at the pump was 98 lbs and at the nozzle 67 lbs; in the second, 158 lbs. at the pump and 73 at the nozzle.

Test 3 was with 2 lines of 300 feet each, 1-8 inch nozzles, pump pressure of 158 lbs, 73 lbs at the nozzle, the result obtained being 640 gallons per minute.

In tests 4, 5, 6 and 7, the three lines were slamed into one nozzle, the size ranging in the different tests from 1-2 to 2 inches.

In test 8, a "y" was put on the end of a 250 foot line and two 50 foot lines taken from it, making a total of 350 feet used. The result of this test was 370 gallons per minute.

The machine ran very smoothly and not a hitch could be found in the entire tests.

CELEBRATION TUESDAY NIGHT.

Town officials, citizens and prominent firemen to the number of 75 gathered in the Ward 2 Engine house on Tuesday night at the welcoming celebration of the new auto truck.

District Chief John Q. Hunt was toastmaster and after a delicious oyster stew, with appetizing side dishes, had been disposed of, Mr. Hunt introduced as the first speaker of the evening, E. W. Hunt, chairman of the Board of Selectmen.

Following Mr. Hunt came Martin E. Hawes, spoken of as the "father of the combination." Chief Walter Pratt; Selectman Henry Hanley; D. M. Easton, who gave an amusing history of the fire department and water works; District Chief Matthew O'Dowd of South Weymouth; C. J. McMorris; Engineer Russell B. Worster; Joseph McDonald; Capt. Wallace Bicknell of Ward 3, George M. Keene, clerk of the Weymouth Firemen's Relief association; District Chief Philip Wolfe of North Weymouth and Robert S. Hoffman of the committee that purchased the apparatus.

Optimism was fully as thick about the hall as the cigar smoke and fine efficient work is anticipated from the new apparatus.

At 10.45 the meeting adjourned, without any interruption for still alarms or box alarms during the entire session.

Combination 2 is now "on the job" and with three men, namely: Driver Harold Hawes, Lester Richards and T. Ed. Burrell sleeping in the house and with several firemen in the vicinity during the day, the demon "Fire" will have to get considerable start to do much damage about town.

The committee of arrangements for the celebration consisted of Capt. Frank E. Larney, Lieut. Ed. Burrell and Clerk Charlie Dunbar of Hose 2 and Capt. Joseph Sherman, Lieut. Patrick Higgins and Clerk Howard Billings of Hook and Ladder 2.

Monday Club.

Take notice that the meeting of the Monday club for next Monday, December 7 will be in the evening at 7.45 o'clock. Havrah Hubbard will give his opera talk "Madame Butterfly" with Floyd Baxter at the piano.

Y. P. C. U. Entertain.

The first entertainment of the season under the auspices of the Y. P. C. U. was held in the vestry of the Universalist church, North Weymouth Wednesday evening in the form of a December Festival. The vestry was very prettily decorated with pink crepe paper and tables, seating four people, were placed about the room.

A menu of chicken and ham sandwiches, cake, ice cream and coffee was served by the committee in charge of the entertainment, while the guests were entertained by violin solos by Percival Ames, unique songs by Miss Ina Lemmon, Miss Mary Ford and Miss Venus Thayer in Japanese costumes, vocal selections by Miss Edith Hyland of Wollaston, readings by Miss Greta Gardfield and a farce entitled "A Bad Case" the parts of which were taken by E. Bartlett Spooner, Miss Ruth Thayer, Miss Venus Thayer and Miss Viola Wolfe.

ON THE FARM

Read this column and you can have it delivered at your house with something new every week for a full year by sending $2.00 to this office now.

Get your cows started right for the coming cold weather and they will do well all winter.

Give the cattle salt every day. You will get a larger flow of milk, and it will make better butter.

The hens that are laying these days are the hens that more than pay for their board, and they ought to have an extra good feed occasionally.

Selling the farm and moving into town to join the store-box club is a good deal like trading off the best cow for a yellow dog. Don't do it, brother, as long as you can plow a straight furrow.

We are of those who believe in improvement, and we believe too, that most of the astonishing improvement that has been made in farming, within the past quarter of a century, is due to the improvement in farming utensils—especially in plows, cultivators and seed-planters.

Where advisable we must become to a certain extent diversified farmers in order that our income may be properly balanced so as to maintain our financial equilibrium when the fruit yield is heavy and prices are low, or when the crop is light and the price is high. We must get acquainted with the cow, the hog and chickens, and at least grow enough vegetables to eat.

Raising chickens or other poultry is a business that must be conducted well to be made a success. It would not be possible here to tell all of what one must do to make poultry a success. The individual must study the various problems and work them out as the business grows.
It is important to have good stock, to make good hatches, to grow to maturity a good share of the birds hatched, and to feed and care for them well.

As layers, single-comb White Leghorn hens easily lead all other breeds and this is one of the reasons why 90 percent of all egg-producing poultry farms are stocked with this variety. They are small, active hens, producing many eggs on free range and doing almost as well in the limited confines usually available for the small back yard or "home" flock.

Don't expect your milch cow to furnish her quota of milk and butter if she be left to hustle with the rest of the stock. If she is to do her best she must be fed regularly and well, and must be protected from the cold storms and sudden changes of winter.

Profitable farming results from good farm plans comprehending every feature of the farm carefully co-ordinated and effectually carried out. A good farm plan provides for a reasonable reward for the capital and labor invested and the maintenance or increase of soil fertility, and it must be within the comprehension and ability of the owner to carry out.

To keep celery through the winter, take up the plants, cut off a portion of the leaves, and pack the plants in a box or barrel, with the roots down. After putting in as many side by side as there is room for, sift in dry sand enough to cover them, and put in another layer of the plants, sanding as before, and so on until the box or barrel is full. Keep in a cool cellar or room, where little frost can reach them.

A good point in growing young animals of all kinds on good pasture, supplemented with a variety of other substantial feeds, is that the animals gain in vigor and strength as they grow in size. They will have larger and better frames and vital organs. Their digestive and assimilated powers will be strong and they will develop into splendid, vigorous breeding stock. Sow pigs, grown on pasture and fed to the limit of their capacity, will make quick and large growth and will develop into prolific brood sows. Other kinds of animals will develop similarly.

The varieties of Indian corn are many,
white and yellow types being very common, red not uncommon, and even blue and black corn being found in the Southwestern United States. There is a widespread popular belief that the food value of these different sorts varies as greatly as their color, but this is not the case.
White, yellow, red, blue and black corn are very much alike in composition, and are therefore equally valuable as sources of nourishment. The liking for one or another is a personal or local matter.

Usually the farm garden for convenience is located near the dwelling and home grounds. From the standpoint of convenience, this location is ideal; yet, in many cases, the garden, so located, is in such close proximity to shade and fruit trees that unsatisfactory garden yields are secured, vegetables and shade trees will not thrive close together. It is similarly true with large fruit trees. The large

Where Was Wales?

Spencer Leigh Hughes, M. P., tells of the following amusing experience:
He was once passing the war office building in Whitehall when his companion, a Scotchman, pointing to the emblematic devils engraved over the door, indicated the Scotch thistle, the English lion and the Irish harp.
"Where is the emblem of Wales?" asked his friend. "Oh," Mr. Hughes replied, "I expect there is a leak in the roof."—London Express.

Falling Up Out of a Balloon.

If a man falls out of a rising aéroplane or balloon he will not go toward the earth, but will continue rising into the air for an appreciable time. If the air machine were stopped in its ascent at the time it could catch the man as he came down. If the airship were ascending at the rate of thirty two feet a second the man would rise sixteen feet before beginning to fall toward the earth. Thus, by reducing the speed of its ascent, the vessel might keep by the side of the man and rescue him.

The reason why the man rises is the same as the reason for a bullet's rising when shot from a gun into the air—both the man and the bullet are given a velocity upward, and it takes some time for gravity to negative that velocity.—Glasgow News.

Following Are a Few of the Items Which Appeared in the Gazette Years Ago This Week.

THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE have secured the services of William H. Bradford of Hingham as instructor of music in the public schools.

Geo. W. Baker, Jacob F. Dizer and Henry R. Tirrell left town Thursday for New York, where they will take the boat this (Friday) morning for Florida. Their families will follow them later.

For the first time in the history of Weymouth Post 58, G. A. R., the comrades were called upon last Saturday to parade for two funerals in one day—that of Comrade Patrick Ward taking place in the morning, at the Landing, and that of Comrade Benj. F. Cady at South Weymouth in the afternoon.

The supper and dance given under the auspices of the Weymouth Agricultural and Industrial society at Masonic hall, East Weymouth, last evening, was one of the most enjoyable social affairs of the season. As early as half past six, people began to arrive in carriage and coaches from all parts of the town, and at 7.30 the spacious and elegant lodge room, which had been converted into a reception parlor, was well filled with the elite of Weymouth.

THE TWENTY-THREE YEARS AGO. The twenty-ninth annual reunion of the Weymouth High schools was held in Fogg's hall, South Weymouth on Wednesday evening. A rather small number (one hundred and nine), sat down to the supper.

The deposits in the South High and Bates school branches of the new stamp savings bank in the first four days amounted to about twelve dollars from about 60 depositors, an average of five cents a day each.

A pleasant and home-like wedding occurred in East Braintree on Tuesday evening, at Mr. Albert Hobart's. His son, Albert Rich Hobart and Miss Bertha Ludema Bishop of East Braintree were united in marriage by the Rev. Oliver Huckel of the Union church.

A Farmers' Institute of unusual interest was held at the Reform Club rooms last Saturday evening, with vice-president, A. Raymond, in the chair. Subject, Cattle. After some remarks by the chairman, who seemed to favor the Holsteins, and thought they were the coming stock on account of the great quantity of milk they produce.

The report of the fortieth anniversary of a certain church leads us to ponder upon the proper functions of a church. The report shows that there are nine little wheels within the big wheel, and that there is scarcely anything in the field of indoor and outdoor pastime and recreation for which there is not a special or standing committee.

THE TWENTY-ONE YEARS AGO. A new interest has been taken this week in the extension of the electric railroad to East Weymouth and several blocks of stock have been sold in that village.

The question of town division is up once more and this time is introduced by Ward 1, at which place a large meeting was held Wednesday night to discuss the matter.

The result of an informal vote showed that a majority of those voting were in favor of the proposed plan. A vote was then taken on the advisability of a division of the town on the basis of including the first three wards in the new town, and this proposition also received the endorsement of a majority of those voting.

Is it any wonder that at his death the New York Chamber of Commerce said: "Joshua Bates all through his long, useful and honorable career has shown the noblest traits, and we claim him as a true representative of American mercantile character, and an example of the ennobling influences of American training and institutions."

In response to a call to the citizens of North Weymouth to meet in Engine hall, Wednesday evening to consider the subject of uniting Wards 1 and 2 in a new town, a large number of people (80 voters) were gathered at the appointed place at an early hour to see and hear or take part in discussing the question.

FOURTEEN YEARS AGO. Up to the present week, the total number of fowl captured at Whitman's pond was 419, Mr. Bryant having taken 235 small fowl and 46 geese, and James Lynch 135 small birds and three geese.

The new hook and ladder truck, No. 1, of the Weymouth Fire Department, which is to be stationed at North Weymouth, is ready for service and will be put in commission at once.

This is the year for the Tufts lectures, and the selectmen having completed all arrangements for the same, the course will open at Fogg's opera house, South Weymouth, next Wednesday evening, December 12. The course this year will include twelve lectures and three concerts.

Mr. and Mrs. John Streifer of Quincy avenue celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage last Saturday. The parlors of their pretty home were beautifully decorated with potted plants and cut flowers, and guests were present from Boston, Framingham, Watertown and elsewhere.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Hollis entertained the members of the Epworth League of the East Weymouth M. E. church at their home on Phillips street on Monday evening. An elaborate collation was served by the hostess during the evening.

REAL "DOGS OF WAR."

They Used to Wear Coats of Mail and Carry Firebrands.

"Dogs of war" is a phrase which once meant a thing as real as the war horse. Dogs have played their part in battles and campaigns, and in the old wars between England and Scotland dogs were used by both combatants for pursuing and killing fugitives after a defeat.

It is related that Wallace and Bruce each had close escapes from capture by English bloodhounds. Bruce is said to have thrown the English dog off the scent by the now well known expedient of wading up a stream far enough to baffle his pursuers, and Wallace evaded the hounds by having recourse to a trick more or less common in those bloody times of killing a follower and leaving the body in the dogs' path for them to come upon. The dogs finding a body believed that their task was done and discontinued the hunt.

In the history of the wars of the middle ages one finds reference to the use of big dogs against cavalry for the purpose of throwing the horses into confusion and not alone for causing panic, but casualties, for these fierce canine partisans were clothed in coats of mail studded with spikes and having scythes fitted to their harness.

Instances are recorded where war dogs with fire brands fastened to their coats of mail have been set on an enemy's camp with destructive results.

Henry VIII. must have found dogs useful in military ways, because in English history it is written that he offered the use of 40,000 auxiliaries and 4,000 war dogs to King Charles V. of Spain to aid that monarch in his war with Francis I.

In the reign of Queen Elizabeth when the Earl of Essex entered Ireland for the purpose of suppressing insurrection there his army was accompanied by a hundred bloodhounds.—Detroit News.

A LITERARY GLUTTON.

Magliabecchi Was Too Busy With His Books to Draw His Salary.

The most picturesque figure in the annals of Italian librarianship is undoubtedly Antonio Magliabecchi. While his official position as librarian to Cosmo III., grand duke of Tuscany, gave him considerable prominence, he is remembered more especially for his personal characteristics and his vast store of self acquired learning. He has been described as a literary glutton and the most rational of bibliomaniacs, inasmuch as he read everything he bought. His own library consisted of 40,000 books and 10,000 manuscripts. His house literally overflowed with books. The stairways were lined with them, and they even filled the front porch. In worldly matters Magliabecchi was extremely negligent. He even forgot to draw his salary for over a year, says the North American Review. He wore his clothes until they fell from him and thought it a great waste of time to undress at night, "life being so short and books so plentiful." He welcomed all inquiring scholars provided they did not disturb him while at work.

Perhaps the most extraordinary librarianship was that enjoyed by Diderot, who about 1765 decided to sell his library in order to provide a dowry for his daughter. The Empress Catherine of Russia heard through Grimm of the straits to which Diderot had been reduced and instructed her agent to buy in the library at the owner's valuation. In this way Diderot received not only 16,000 livres, but he was graciously requested to consider himself the librarian of the new purchase at a salary of 1,000 livres a year. Moreover—and this begins to sound like a fairy tale—Diderot was paid the salary for fifty years in advance.

Beginning War.

There was a great difference in the manner of commencing a war centuries ago to what there is now. Now the blow is frequently struck before the word, and there is no obligation to issue a formal declaration at all, the act of war constituting the declaration. But in medieval times no war ever began without a formal declaration by a herald, who in a most leisurely manner breathed defiance on the part of his royal master, exchanged innumerable blows with his enemies and departed in as dignified a manner as he came.—London Chronicle.

Weymouth Gazette

An item which appears elsewhere in this issue, gathered from our ancient records, in regard to the Weymouth Agricultural and Industrial society, suggests a few remarks in regard to Weymouth and its agricultural possibilities. The Board of Trade, other organizations and individuals, are constantly shouting "Boom Weymouth," "Made in Weymouth," "Tell them you came from Weymouth," etc. etc.

These things are all well and may have some effect. We were born in Weymouth, always lived in Weymouth, and have always advocated Weymouth as a good town to be born in, a good town to live in and, if you must and will die, a good town to die in.

As a child, we learned to love the hills and valleys, woods, rivers and lakes of Weymouth and continue to love them all and also the people who live here.

But to the point: why not say something of Weymouth as an agricultural town, and when we say agricultural, we mean it in the broadest sense. For the year now about to close, Weymouth showed as good fields of corn, potatoes and as fine gardens in general as could be found in New England; fine dairy farms, live stock, including poultry, as one would wish to see.

This was good as far as it went, but we only touched the edge of our possibilities. We have said before that Weymouth from its own soil can feed every man, woman and child within its borders and why not begin now and say in our provision stores, and when we sit at our tables, "raised in Weymouth."

Let the Agricultural society "get onto the job," have an old time rally, getting in men from all parts of the town and boom Weymouth as an agricultural town. Wake up the Grangers; have them give the public their pass word and, instead of showing thousands of acres of non-producing land in Weymouth, show next fall ripening fields of grain and barns and bins full of food stuffs "Raised in Weymouth."

D. A. R.

Susannah Tufts Chapter D. A. R. met with Mrs. W. Edward Guttererson Monday afternoon. After the business meeting Chancellor McGown gave a most interesting address on the work of the American International College of Springfield Mass. This college is doing a great work in helping to educate the immigrant and appeals strongly to the charitable inclined.

Ethel May Lawson sang two groups of songs in charming voice and manner.

Refreshments were served in the dining room with Mrs. Senior and Mrs. Russell Nash at the tea table.

CHRISTMAS BAZAAR.

Decorations Feature of Annual Sale of Ladies Social Union of East Weymouth Congregational Church This Week.

In spite of inclement weather conditions large gatherings were in attendance at the annual Christmas Bazaar of the Ladies Social Union of the East Weymouth Congregational church in the church parlors on Wednesday and Thursday afternoon and evenings of this week.

The affair opened at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon with the following chairmen in charge of the well stocked tables and booths situated about the hall: fancy, Mrs. Albert R. Humphrey; domestic, Mrs. T. H. Emerson; cake, Mrs. Betsey Briggs; candy, Mrs. Lottie Tirrell and members of the Golden Rule circle of King's Daughters; ice cream, Mrs. Susie Sampson; supper, Mrs. George Hoyt assisted by Mrs. James Ford and members of the Inasmuch Circle of King's Daughters; snip table, Miss Susie Humphrey.

A feature of the affair was the beautiful decorating on the fancy table, done by W. E. Dizer of Chard street East Weymouth. Mr. Dizer gave his services free of all remuneration and the result shows many hours of hard labor. The color scheme in the work was lavender, green and red with a profusion of paper wisterias and strings of colored lights artistically wound about the booth.

The entertainment on the first evening consisted of selections by Merchant's orchestra and the three act comedy "Voice of Authority" with parts taken by the following local talent: Mrs. Mildred Tilden, Mrs. Bernice Haskins, Mrs. Bessie Hunt, Mrs. Florence Corbell, Mrs. Fannie Orr, Mrs. Susie Sampson and Miss Grace Mitchell.

Castle Christmas was the attraction last night. It was beautifully staged under the management of Miss Grace Mitchell, with Frank Horte, cast as King Christmas; Lorene Kimball, Spirit of Christmas; Charles Gibson, Sir Secretary; Louise McCobb, Little Ink Bottle and a densely packed house enjoyed every feature.

Merchants orchestra furnished music for both evenings. Booths, tables and supper departments were liberally patronized and the circle placed over $400 to their cash balance.

Everyday Virtues.

An intrepid courage is at best but a holiday kind of virtue, to be seldom exercised, and never but in case of necessity, wrote John Dryden. Affability, mildness, tenderness and a word which I would fain bring back to its original signification of virtue, I mean good nature, are of daily use; they are the bread of mankind, and staff of life.

High School Notes.

For a long time the bass viol which was purchased for the orchestra last year has remained untouched, its song unsung. Recently it was brought forth, dusted, and turned over to Mr. French of the freshman class who will soon play it as a member of the school orchestra.

A concert will be held in the hall next Wednesday under the supervision of Mr. Calderwood. A victrola concert was given on Wednesday of this week.

The senior and junior boys are preparing to stage a play at school some time this winter. It is a long time since any dramatics interested the students and the new movement is bound to be almost an innovation.

The 'Spirit of '76' characterized the informal debate held by the senior boys last Monday afternoon. The question, "Resolved, that in the United States, immigration should be restricted by an illiteracy test" was upheld by Martin and Talbot for the affirmative and Rea and Dizer for the negative. The argument spoke well for the training the boys have had. The affirmatives won.

At the regular meeting of the Literary Society, reports of the various committees were discussed, and a new committee appointed to select a new and more appropriate name for the organization. Plans for the society play, the interclass and interscholastic debates, were discussed. It was voted to hold a formal Senior-Junior debate before the school on January 4, 1915, on the equal suffrage question.

Resourceful Servant.

"What!" cried the mistress to her new maid, whom she had found sitting down in the library with her hands folded. "Here you are sitting down! Why, you were sent in here to dust the room!" "Yes, ma'am," was the girl's reply, "but I have lost the duster, and so I am sitting on each of the chairs in turn!"

LOVELL'S CORNER

—Miss Helen White spent a part of last week visiting relatives in Brockton.

—At the Sunday morning service Rev. Karl Thompson will preach on the subject, "Spiritual Orphans." The topic for the evening service will be "Come and See."

—Mr. and Mrs. Karl Lovell have taken up their residence in the house owned by Mrs. Josephine Rea on Pleasant street.

—At the Sunday school board meeting last Wednesday evening, Miss Nellie Brewster and Mrs. Herbert MacFawn were appointed as a committee to prepare an entertainment to be given in connection with the Christmas tree the night before Christmas. This is to take the place of the Christmas concert usually given Sunday afternoon.

SOUTH WEYMOUTH

—Tuesday night weekly dances at Bates opera house.—Adv
—The second tournament in the series of whist, pool, billiard and cribbage games, between the Union Glee club of Rockland and the Norfolk club of this place will take place in the Norfolk club rooms next Tuesday evening, December 8.
—At the Christian Endeavor meeting at the Old South church last Sunday night the topic of discussion was "Heroes and Heroines." At seven o'clock a gospel service was held, the subject being "Luther's Great Weapon."

—The weekly assemblies of Mrs. Polley's dancing school are attracting extra large crowds. Richard's orchestra furnishes music for the dancing each Monday night.
—The annual Thanksgiving Sunset party held this year under the auspices of the Norfolk club proved to be very successful in every way. Mace Gay's popular orchestra furnished music and refreshments were served during intermission at 8:30 o'clock. Dancing began at 6 and concluded at 11 o'clock. The committee of Norfolk club members in charge consisted of Jacob Wichert, C. F. Brown, A. C. Heald, Howard H. Joy, C. T. Heald, George L. Barnes, H. I. Cole and Earle W. Bates.

—Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Sproul of this place were guests over Thanksgiving of John W. Sproul of Abington.

—The Pond Plain Improvement association ladies' auxiliary held an all day sewing meeting with Mrs. H. W. Brown last Tuesday.

—B. F. Whitman of this place captured two first prizes and one third at the Abington Poultry club show in Standish hall, Abington last Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Edward W. French, also of this place was awarded two first prizes and two seconds.

—Friends from this place attended the silver anniversary celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Hesley at their home in Rockland a few evenings ago. Robert Healy of this place acted as best man at the wedding twenty-five years ago.

—Robert Alvord has returned to his studies at Yale University after spending the holidays with his father, Rev. Henry C. Alvord of Pleasant street.

—Walter V. Reed of Boston, a student at M. I. T. was the Thanksgiving guest of his father, J. B. Reed.

—The Oak Park High school of Chicago vs Everett High football game in Boston last Saturday attracted several high school football lovers from this village.

—The Universalist church campfire girls met last Friday night with Miss Marion Howe.

—A new house is being erected on Fogg road by H. B. Reed as an investment.

—Troop 5 Boy Scouts, C. F. Brown scoutmaster, attended the annual Battery A. and First Corps Cadets football game in the Harvard stadium in Cambridge last Thursday. On their return the troop was accompanied by troop 32 of Boston, who were guests at the local troop's camp at Great Pond over Sunday.

—Mrs. Charles Tirrell of Rochester N. Y. is visiting her father Dr. Vincent Tirrell of this place.

—The Bassabee club met last Monday night with Mrs. Grundstorm of Central street.

—Dr. and Mrs. H. F. Brackett are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter recently.

—H. H. Morse of Abington was in town Thanksgiving renewing acquaintances.

—Mrs. Sidney R. Cook and children are visiting Mrs. Cook's relatives in St. Louis.

—Arrangements are being perfected for the annual Pond Plain Improvement association fair to be held soon.

—Miss Florence Cook left last Friday for Omaha Nebraska where she has accepted a position as teacher in the new Montessori school in that place.

—Rev. Edward Yeager of the Old North Congregational church at Weymouth Heights occupied the pulpit of the Union Congregational church last Sunday.

—The next meeting of the Old Colony Ladies club will take place next Thursday afternoon Dec. 10. George H. Spencer will speak on "Flat Wheels."

—Members of the local grange attended the special meeting of the Whitman grange in that town a few evenings ago.

—Elbridge Gardner of Norwich University, Vt., was the guest of his parents in this place over Thanksgiving.

—Richard Hathaway of Fall River has been visiting Myron Blanchard.

—Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Blackstone of Boston have taken possession of the Mowry estate.

Old South Church Notes.

The Thanksgiving service last week Wednesday evening proved to be a marked success and brought out a record audience of a hundred and sixty people, who listened to an impressive sermon by Rev. Dr. Ford on "America's Relation to the Present World Crisis;" the enjoyable singing by the girls' chorus under the efficient training of Florence Monroe; the helpful solo by Harry S. Anderson of Quincy; the stirring anthem by the choir, and various other exercises. Great praise is due the C. E. for its voluntary and energetic co-operation. Several young ladies in Pilgrim garb acted as ushers.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies Aid society was held on Thursday afternoon of this week in the vestry.

Morning worship at 10:30 with preaching by the pastor, followed by the Sunday school. C. E. meeting at 6 o'clock, "The Life Verse." Consecration meeting. Evening gospel service at 7 o'clock. All welcome

PASTIME NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Weymouth High School, 0; Alumni, 0. No such a bad game at that!

Bowling held sway at the Norfolk club headquarters on Thanksgiving day. Forty-five bowlers rolled one hundred and twenty-seven strings in bottle pins. Charles Farrar of East Weymouth ambled home with the prize for the highest 3-string total, with a total of 565. The highest single string prize went to Elliott Veazie with 217 pins; Winfield Baker "came through" in the contest for highest 5 string total with 893 pins to his credit. W. Lyons bowled the most strings during the day, pushing the pins over for 14 strings. The most strikes in one string were rolled by A. Loud, with 5 and Warren Philbrick of candle pin got the most spares, 9 being his record in one string. Mr. Farrar received a camera; Mr. Veazie a purse of money; Mr. Baker a razor; Mr. Lyons, a subscription to the "Times;" Mr. Loud a pipe, and Mr. Philbrick a purse of money.

Walter Howley refereeing the W. H. S. Alumni game last Thursday, reminded the older football fans of "Big Bill" Edwards of New York.

Open house was observed at the C. M. A. last Thursday, Thanksgiving day. Several members occupied the bowling alleys during the day. Arthur Cunningham's string of 135 in candles, which won the prize turkey, received considerable favorable comment.

At the East Weymouth alleys on Commercial street, business boomed all day Thanksgiving in the candle pin game. Several star bowlers are coming to the front at these alleys and the stars in other alleys about town will have to look out for their laurels soon when these boys get out to conquer other worlds.

An interesting event each year on Thanksgiving morning is the annual cross-country run under the auspices of the Clapp Memorial Association. This year's race was held at 9 o'clock with the following officials in charge:—J. E. Fabyan, starter and clerk of course; Frank Cushman, timer; Leo Fraher and Frank Zeoli, judges. The course was of three miles' distance, through the principal streets of East Weymouth. Ralph Talbot landed first place in 16 m. 2½ sec.; George Curtis finished second in 16 m. 4 sec.; Basil Warren finished in third place; Frederick Webb came in fourth and Earl Gifford fifth. Talbot's time was a new record for the event, this youngster clipping two minutes off the previous record.

WEYMOUTH HEIGHTS

—Miss Edith Bates spent Saturday and Sunday with Mrs. Walter Andrews of Campello.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Sladen entertained relatives from North Easton on Sunday.

—The Home Department held its monthly meeting with Miss Annie Jones Tuesday afternoon.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Macker were week end guests of relatives in Worcester.

—Miss Abbie Bates left the Heights on Wednesday to make her home with Miss Raymond of Boston for the winter.

—Miss Mary Loud entertained the Ladies Benevolent society at her home on Wednesday afternoon and evening. The afternoon was devoted to sewing, and at 6:30 o'clock a delicious supper was served to which all friends of the society were invited. A program of music was enjoyed during the evening.

—Mrs. E. I. Farrington has been visiting relatives in New Hampshire this week.

—Mr. and Mrs. John B. Merrill held a family party at their home over the holidays guests being present from Woonsocket R. I.

Letter of the Law.
The little stenographer had been typewriting so steadily all day that at bedtime her tired brain kept working in the same way, and she found herself murmuring: "Capital—Our space capital—Father comma—(Goodness! what am I saying?) So she conscientiously began again. But, in spite of her efforts, the prayer ended with "Capital—Amen period—" and a sleepy, apologetic giggle.

Fancy Caps Popular as Christmas Gifts

FANCY caps, of many kinds, are among the gifts that may be relied upon to please those who receive them. This year they are shown made for the dancing party, for theater wear, for skating, and, in greater numbers still, for breakfast and bedroom wear.
They employ a great variety of materials, the choice depending upon the purpose that the cap is to serve.

A pretty evening cap, shown in the picture, is made of silk and bound with silver braid. A fan of silver gauze at the side is an unusual ornament, poised like a butterfly near the face of the wearer, where two tassels of silver tinsel are suspended. Such a headdress need not be removed at the theater or dance and adds a charming touch of brilliance to the dress.

Pretty Little Corsage and Hair Ornaments

RIBBONS are used to make the single roses and small bouquets that it is fashionable to wear at the shoulder, over the coat or corsage. Single roses are also made of silver or gold tissues and small blossoms of these materials are used with those of ribbon in the little bouquets. The single metallic rose is as large as the largest natural roses and is set in foliage.

Ribbon in a heavy quality something over a inch in width is used for making roses. Pinks and reds as like the natural flowers as possible are chosen.
Hair ornaments are made by winding bonnet wire with satin ribbon in lengths sufficient to extend twice across the head from ear to ear. This covered wire is doubled in the center and caught together at the ends making a double band. At each end of this band a ribbon rose is set in rose foliage. Ornaments of this kind make lovely gifts for young women.

Pretty Shades for Christmas Candles

PRETTY candle shades for the dressing case or for the candles of the dinner or luncheon table, are sure to delight the home-maker, so they are among the most acceptable of Christmas gifts to everyone who loves the little touches that add to the beauty of the home.

Candle shades of figured silk, or silkalene or thin ribbon, may be made over small wire frames, with the silk put on in plaits or plain or fluted. The thin ribbons are easily handled.

Small wire frames are to be bought ready made and come in a variety of shapes and sizes.
Sometimes the frame is made of stiff cardboard, but this is not durable nor as satisfactory as that of wire.

To make shades like that shown in the picture take flowered ribbon or strips of silk a half-inch wider than the width of the wire frame. Lay it in plaits a little less than a half inch in depth, or have it plaited on a plaiting machine. Sew one edge of the plaited strip over the top wire of the frame, crowding the plaits close together. Sew
the other edge over the bottom wire.
Spreading the plaits evenly is necessary. Conceal the sewing and border the shade at the same time with tinsel braid in silver or gilt.

Pretty Gifts Made of Brown Linen

A GIFT that will be appreciated by the man or woman who travels, is an apron of brown linen, rubberized on one side, in which to carry all necessary toilet articles. The rubberizing makes the inside of the apron and its pockets waterproof. To make it requires one piece of linen 20 inches long and 14 wide for the apron and a length 17 inches for the pockets and flaps. There are five pockets. One, 4½ inches deep, extending across the apron, two four inches deep, at the bottom. At the top one of the pockets is 5½ inches in depth and the other four inches. Small plaits are laid at each side of all the pockets except the long one. This long pocket is closed with a flap four inches wide while the others have flaps from one and one-half to two inches wide. The apron pockets and flaps are bound with bias tape in linen color. The flaps fasten with snap fasteners.

A pretty handkerchief case is made of a straight piece of unbleached linen 17 inches long and 10½ inches wide.
Across one corner a spray of flowers is embroidered in pink with green foliage. Bow knots are embroidered in blue at each side of the spray. The case is lined with thin pink satin and interlined with a sheet of cotton batting, in which sachet powder is sprinkled. The edges are finished with button-hole stitching in pink silk.

The case is folded crosswise at the center and the sides and top tied together with narrow satin ribbon in simple bows. One corner is turned back and fastened with a bow. This finishes an attractive, scented receptacle, shaped like an envelope, to be placed on the dressing case.

A work bag is made of coarse brown linen cut into the shape shown in the picture. It is 14 inches long and 10½ wide. Two pieces are joined at the edges which are scalloped and finished with button-hole stitching in green silk floss.

New Styles in Ribbon
Bags for the Holidays

EVERY return of Christmas brings with it bags made of beautiful ribbons designed for many different purposes.

A new design in a slipper bag is shown in the picture. It is made of Dresden ribbon over a pasteboard foundation. An oblong box is cut from cardboard, shaped like the cases made for opera glasses, but much longer. The bottom is an ellipse six and a half inches long and three wide.
The sides are five inches deep. The bottom and sides are covered with silk and afterward joined.

The upper portion is made of a straight length of ribbon gathered about the box as shown in the picture.

The second bag shown is easy to construct and suited to almost any purpose. It is made by stitching to each edge of a length of striped or figured ribbon, a length of plain satin ribbon, to form a wide strip for making the bag. The ends of this strip are sewed together with a felled seam and the edges sewed together at the bottom. A casing sewed within two inches of the top, carries the ties of narrow

Which Was Which?

By EUNICE BLAKE

"Lucy," said Lucinda, "I don't believe your Bob or my Dick can tell us apart."

"Not in the dark," was the reply.
"Nor in the light. Suppose we change our engagement rings and see if it doesn't fool them. I'll exchange my diamond solitaire for your sapphire. We dress alike, and Dick has said that we look more alike than any twins he has ever known. The only difference in any of the things about us is our engagement rings."

"We can try it anyway."
So the girls exchanged rings. It was Saturday, and their lovers usually called on that evening. Lucy's fiancé came in first, and Lucinda went down to receive him with her sister's diamond ring on her finger.

Bob Brackett arrived half an hour after Weatherbee. He was shown, as usual, into the library, where he found Lucy with her sister's sapphire on her finger. He, too, was deceived. The pair had not been long together when Brackett and Lucinda came into the room where they were.

"We've been discussing the wedding," Brackett said, "and there are points we must talk over with you two. How about the ushers? Shall we limit the reception to relatives or make it general?"

A number of such questions were taken up and discussed. The girls soon dropped their fiancés out of the argument, deliberating with each other.
Dick winked at Bob and said:

"Let's go and have a smoke. Bob,
We don't count in these wedding plans."

The young men went to the smoking room, and Dick said to Bob, "Seen anything unusual in your girl?"

"No. Why do you ask?"

"They're putting up a job on us. It wasn't Lucinda who received you; it was Lucy."

"You don't mean it?"

"Yes, I do. I found out that Lucinda was with me by talking with her.
When I mentioned something that only Lucy knew she was dead ignorant of it. But I didn't let on. I pretended still to be fooled. Now I tell you what we do. When they laugh at us for being fooled we'll declare we're not fooled at all. You cling to Lucy, and I'll do the same by Lucinda."

"Good boy! We'll do it!"

They returned to the library after their smoke without manifesting the slightest evidence that they had discovered the ruse that was being practiced upon them. When they arose to go, bidding good night to Lucinda, offered the usual kiss. She drew back, laughing. He stood looking at her with well feigned surprise.

"I'm not your girl; I'm Lucinda," she said.

"Oh, come! You can't impose on me in that way," said Dick. "You don't suppose I can't tell the girl I love from some other girl, do you?"

At this juncture Lucy, who in like manner had refused Bob a kiss, found it necessary to struggle with him. He pretended to take the matter in high dudgeon. Then the girls, both talking at once and both laughing, tried to explain that they had been playing a joke on their lovers. Dick, who led the way for both, winked at Bob, then walked up to Lucy and took her in his arms, whereupon Bob angrily pulled him away. Dick, in a fine stage passion, struck the man who had interfered with him, and a fracas ensued, the girls trying to part the antagonists.
Bob declared that Lucy was the girl he loved and he would have no other.
Dick veered around to his opinion, saying that he believed Bob was right and, having engaged himself to the girl who wore the ring he had given her, he didn't propose to marry her sister.
Finally the two young men left the house, neither of their fiancées having received the usual parting kiss.

The girls stood looking at each other.
They had some time before ceased to laugh.

"This is serious," said Lucy.

"I, but I didn't think they would be so stupid as to mistake us permanently."

"How are we going to prove which is which?"

"Mother'll have to set them right."

"I'm not sure they'll believe even her."

The next day Lucy called up her Dick on the phone.

"Dick," she said, "I'm Lucy."

"Which Lucy—the real one or the one whom it was attempted to foist on me last night?"

"Why, I'm the real Lucy. I wore Lucinda's ring."

There was a click, then a silence which Lucy could not break. She suggested that Lucinda call up Bob and try to appease him. Lucinda did so and, by promising that he and Dick might choose for themselves, secured his promise to call the same evening and bring Dick with him.

When the two men called each girl wore her own engagement ring.

"Now, which is which?" said Lucy.

Each man walked up to the girl he was really engaged to and gave her a kiss, which she received willingly.

The girls were much relieved. The men refused to admit that they had changed rings and that each man had not passed the evening with his fiancé.
But after awhile they told the story of their collusion and, having been roundly scolded for joking on so serious a subject, were forgiven.

Salt in the United States.

The two chief methods depended on for obtaining salt are to mine rock salt and to evaporate salt-bearing solutions. Rock salt is obtained chiefly from deep shaft mines in the eastern, central and southern parts of the United States, active mines being located in New York, Michigan, Kansas and Louisiana. A comparatively small quantity is also obtained from surface deposits in the dry climates of Utah and California.

Japanese Woman Pearl Divers.

For centuries past one of the curious customs of Japan has been the employment of woman as divers in the pearl industry. Formerly whole families became divers, but later the prerogative became more and more that of the women until now fully ninety per cent of Japanese pearls are gathered by Japanese women divers. A movement begun several years ago to replace them with men has been opposed bitterly by the women.

New Facts About Microbes.

It has just been discovered that the sudden cooling of the atmosphere has the effect of transporting microbes and localizing them in certain regions. The cool surfaces attract them from a distance almost instantaneously, the smaller being transported farther than the larger ones. These discoveries throw light upon the origin of certain epidemics, and may be useful in helping us to decide what climates are the most healthful.

ANNUAL FAIR.

Universalist Society in South Weymouth Hold Three Day Event. Good Sized Crowds Present.

As in former years, large crowds were present Thursday and last night at the annual fair of the Universalist society of South Weymouth in Fogg's opera house.

Situated about the hall were well stocked sales tables in charge of the following chairmen:—

Cake table, Mrs. Nathaniel Thomas; mystery, Mrs. John Gough; Young Ladies' booth, Mrs. Hattie Simpson; candy, Mrs. Fred T. Barnes; domestic, Mrs. Emily Jones; fancy, Mrs. Elmer Thayer; preserve, Mrs. Gordon Willis; ice cream, Mrs. Susie Locke; punch, Miss Belle Corlis, and vegetables, Rev. W. W. Rose.

The entertainment on Wednesday night included a complete vaudeville program under the direction of Mrs. Percy Bicknell.

Grace Gay and Samuel McPhetres were seen in the character song, "A Hundred Years from Now." Miss Helen Hauser, soprano; Miss Francis Friel, reader and Miss Theo Keith, cornet, entertained with selections while the "Rain-Bow Minstrels" in latest songs and newest jokes caused many a laugh and much applause among the appreciative audience.

Miss Sargent's rendering of Julian Eltinges' song, "In my Dream of You," was excellent; "The Game of Love" was successfully sung by Messrs Harris and Corliss and Messrs. French and Blanchard, and "The Message of the Violet" was soundly applauded, as rendered by Mrs. William Bernard. Mr. Brown was a huge success in Blanche Ring's clever song hit, "It's a Long Way to Tipperary," and all in all, the program was most attractive to the pleased audience. Miss Mildred Galey French was accompanist for the artists.

Last night the sketch "The Teaser" was presented with the following in the cast:—Miss Ethelyn Doble, Rev. William W. Roe, Mrs. Edna Gridley, Charles F. Brown, Mrs. Nellie T. Ford, H. H. Joy and Carl Gridley.

Miss May Allen and Morrill Allen entertained with exhibitions of the modern dances.

The fair closes this evening with the presentation of the three act comedy, "Daddy." A full detailed account of the last two nights of the fair will appear in next week's issue of this paper.

Worship Comparison.

"As near as I can figure it," commented Judge Pettigill of Chanute "a treaty and a married man's promise to his wife to water the plants and to spend the evenings at home, when he sends her away to see the folks, have many strong points in common."—Kansas City Star.

EAST WEYMOUTH AND WEYMOUTH CENTER.

—John G. Easton has returned to his duties in Portland, Maine after spending the holidays with his father, D. M. Easton of Middle street.

—Numbered among the Massachusetts Agricultural college student, who returned to Amherst last Monday, was John Dizer, who spent the vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dizer of Middle street.

—Richard Cutter is home from Van Buren, Maine.

—The "Netco" club is arranging for another dancing party in the near future. The party held on November 20, in charge of Fred V. Nolan turned out to be a huge success.

—The schools about town got down to business again last Monday and teachers and scholars alike are now anticipating the pleasures of a ten days' vacation in three weeks at Christmas time.

—Public school duties in Raynham again interest Miss Florence Lincoln, after spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. LaForest Lincoln of Middle street.

—Edwin Delorey of Provincetown was the guest over Thanksgiving of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Simon Delorey of Putnam street. Mr. Delorey enjoyed the performance of "The Crinoline Girl" at the Colonial theater in Boston on Thanksgiving afternoon with a party of friends.

—A well attended and interesting meeting of the Inasmuch Circle of King's Daughters was held with Mrs. LaForest Lincoln last Friday night. This meeting was postponed from Thursday, November 19, on account of the severe storm of that night.

—The many friends of Mrs. E. Fred Cullen, wife of Fred Cullen, a well known former resident of this place will be pleased to learn that Mrs. Cullen is improving from her recent severe illness.

—Through the energy and efforts of Mrs. Fred Alden, a dancing class of several ladies and gents has been formed in this village. The class meets each Tuesday evening in Masonic Temple, with Mrs. Louise Merritt Polley as teacher and Miss Mae Allen at the piano.

—An event of much interest and amusement every time the public schools and colleges declare a vacation, is the reunion of the host of friends of Lester H. Cushing held at Mr. Cushing's home on Middle street. The Thanksgiving event, arranged by Miss Mildred Newcomb was held last Friday night and was attended by a large number of students and business world friends of Weymouth Center's popular "shut-in" member. Victrola selections, piano solos, vocal numbers and dancing were enjoyed and as usual the refreshment "committee" received a lot of merited praise for its efficient work.

—After a few days' vacation spent with his uncle, Arthur Cunningham of Middle street, Stuart C. Vinal has returned to his studies at the Massachusetts Agricultural college at Amherst.

—Several parties of young people from this section witnessed the football game in the Harvard stadium at Cambridge last Thursday between the First Corps Cadets and Battery A eleven.

—A thimble party or all day sewing meeting was held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. B. F. Lane of Chard street, under the auspices of the Ladies Social Circle of the M. E. church in this place.

—The marriage is announced of Miss Josephine Lynch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Lynch of Lakeside road, to Lawrence Young of Natick. The newly married couple will reside in Natick where the groom is employed.

—While looking for the base of the fire in the house at the corner of Grant and Hill streets last Saturday night, Lieut. T. Edward Burrell fell down a flight of stairs, luckily escaping serious injury. Mr. Burrell opened a door in the dark he supposed was the door of a closet. He stepped forward and next brought up in a heap at the bottom of the cellar stairs.

He was assisted to an automobile and taken to Dr. Chase's office where a gash over his eye was bandaged up, and one of his fingers put back in shape. Mr. Burrell was on duty again bright and early Sunday morning and says that it takes more than an ordinary fall to put him off fire duty.

—In honor of the 78th birthday of her father, John H. Pember of Shirley, Mrs. Martha Pratt of Pleasant street entertained a party of relatives at her home last Tuesday. Mrs. Martha Edes and Mrs. Nelson Gardner were special guests of the occasion, and all enjoyed to the utmost the sight of the new auto truck which gave several tests in the vicinity that afternoon.

IN these exciting times almost everyone finds solace and entertainment where there is good music. Some prefer classics, others ballads, while the whole nation seems to have gone wild over the modern dance selections.

In addition to our stock of new and second hand Pianos, I wish to call your attention to our

Talking Machine Department

Here you will find a very acceptable gift all the way from $16 to $250, and you can have your choice of either

Edison or Victor Machines of the very latest type, latest records, etc.

Every year at Christmas time the factories are unable to supply the demand for these goods, so place your order early and we will deliver any time you say. Remember, we are prepared to meet all the so-called "special offers" and "bargain assortments" that you read of in the papers.

Come in and hear a demonstration of one of the latest machines and you will realize what a wonderful improvement there has been made.

I still have a few second-hand pianos left at special bargain prices.

TOWN BUSINESS.

At the meeting of the Selectmen on Monday there was a request from the Governor for the Planning Board to meet in conference with other similar organizations at the State House on the 16th of this month to discuss the following question: "What Shall We do Next?" Address by Gov. Walsh.

Mr. Hunt, the chairman, reported acts of disorder and damage to property in and around Washington square and the police are urged to suppress the same.

Voted to ask Div. Supt. Gammon of the Street Railway to meet with the selectmen and arrange for joint action in the removal of snow.

Voted to request the Light & Power Co. to remove unused and dangerous poles on Keith and Webb streets.

Chief Engineer Walter W. Pratt appeared before the board with a statement that owing to the three large and expensive fires in the past year there would probably be a need of about $1000 more than the regular appropriation to carry the department until next March.

A sub-committee of the Planning Board consisting of Bradford Hawes, Arthur H. Alden, R. L. Hoffman, E. W. Hunt and George C. Torrey, under the name of "Town Officers and Administrators" considered some vital matters at a meeting Tuesday night.

A new Town hall is a question which is being discussed but the committee are not ready as yet to recommend the building of one.

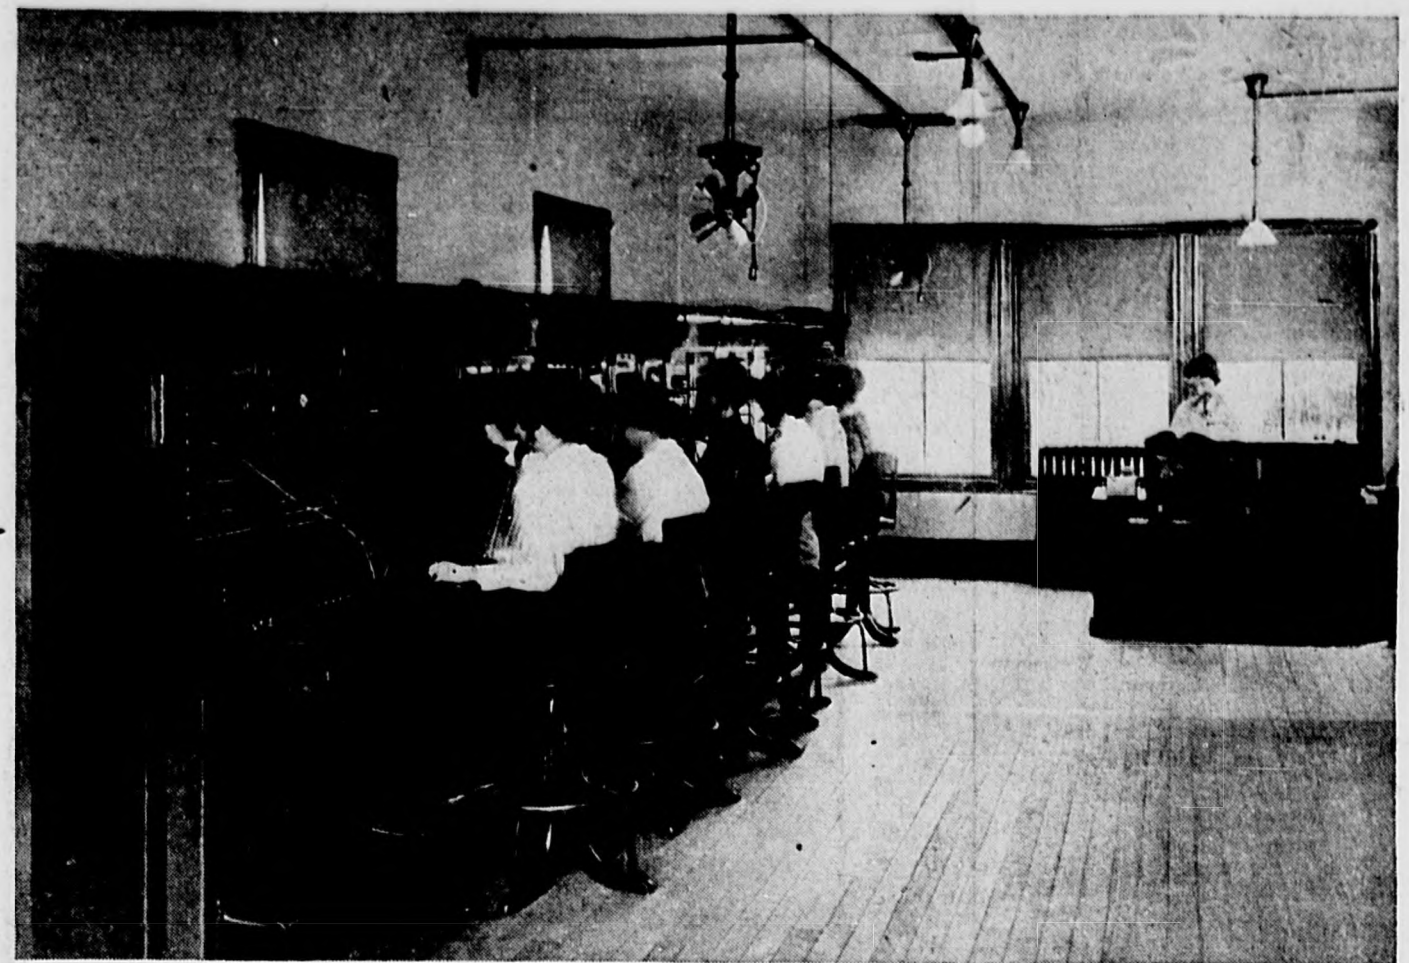

The Police and Fire Department are questions which are being seriously considered and there will undoubtedly be recommendations for some changes in or addition to the present system.

Union Literary Society.

The annual musical night of the Union Literary Circle was held at the residence of Mrs. Eleanor F. Holmes 30 Stetson street Weymouth Landing last evening. The affair was made notable by the first public appearance as a reader of John H. Guttererson the wellknown organist, pianist and musical director. Mr. Guttererson gave a varied and well rendered program occupying the entire evening, while nearly all the readings had a musical setting played on the piano by Leslie C. Martell as the accompanist.

UNIVERSALIST SOCIETY FAIR.

Closing Two Days And Nights Prove Decided Success Like First Day.

With good weather the last two nights, of the closing days of the Universalist Church Society fair in Fog's opera house South Weymouth last week proved to be two of the most successful ever recorded in the history of the society.

Thursday evening every seat in the spacious hall and large balcony was taken, when the curtain went up on the opening act of the play "The Teaser", staged under the direction of Mrs. Elbert Ford. The cast of characters follows:

Ellice Fleming, Mrs. Fleming's daughter
Miss Ethelyn Dobie
Arnold Haye, a young journalist
William W. Rose
Mrs. Marion Fleming, a widow
Mrs. Edna Griddle
Dr. Thorpe, a philosopher
Charles F. Brown
Drusilla Todd, Uraliah's best girl
Mrs. Nellie T. Ford
Uraliah Higgins, Rural Free Delivery
Howard H. Joy
Ebenezer Randall, a man of means
Carl Gridley

A quartet composed of George Munroe, Charles Barnes, Joseph French and Myron Blanchard sang, with Miss Helen Richard at the piano.

Miss Mae Allen and Morrill Allen gave a pleasing exhibition of the new dances "One Step" "Fox Trot" and "Maxie". All the artists were roundly applauded and the program went on record as one of the finest ever seen at a fair in town.

Friday night Miss Annie Deane presented the comedy "Daddy" in three acts, in Miss Deane's pleasing and ever popular manner. All the cast seem to be instilled with Miss Deane's wellknown ability, and the large audience was highly delighted with the three acts of fun. The cast follows:

Mr. Wrexson Brown, just like his fellow men Teddy his son, pursuing football at college
Paul Chester, a young doctor
Ralph Klingman
Mrs. Wrexson Brown, just like her fellow women
Addie Deane
Nellie Brown, her daughter
Dorothy Marden

Mrs. Chester, Mr. Brown's sister pursuing ill health at home, Hazel Howe Jane, the maid, Doris Sprague
All the sales tables were well patronized and a large sum netted for the treasury of the society.

Monday Club.

Monday evening Dec. 7 twenty-seven ladies and one gentleman braved the elements and gathered at Odd Fellow's hall to listen to one of the best entertainments of the season.

After a short business meeting the president Mrs. Sampson introduced Havarth Hubbard of the Boston Opera Co. His object is to familiarize the people with the opera and to so interest them that when the season again opens it can be carried successfully. After giving a short talk on the subject of Grand Opera he spoke of the custom, costumes and homes of the Japanese to explain what he should say later.

He then gave a dramatic interpretation of "Madame Butterfly", one of the most popular operas in the repertoire, accompanied on the piano by Floyd Baxter. He took us through the different scenes of the bargaining for and marriage festival of Miss Butterfly to Lieutenant Pinkerton. We could almost hear through the music, the curses of her relatives when she gave up her religion for her beloved. Then came the desertion the anxious waiting for the promised return of her husband "when the robins should nest again" her joy when she knows his ship is in the harbor to be turned again to sadness when she finds he is accompanied by his American wife and wants to carry back his sin to America. Then the sad ending when she commits suicide with the sword of her ancestors. And the saddest part is that the story is true to the life of the Japanese of today.

The listeners were more than repaid for efforts to be present.

WEYMOUTH BOARD OF TRADE.

Conception and Development of Telephone Illustrated.

Wednesday evening, with its snow, hail and sleet, was not an especially pleasant time for people to get abroad, but the few who attended the Board of Trade were well paid for their little hardship.

President Hunt opened the meeting at 8 o'clock and proceeded with a little routine business previous to the special feature, which was an illustrated lecture, open to the public, by Harry V. Bicknell of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company. It being an open meeting, there was a fair sprinkling of ladies in the audience regardless of weather, and they, as well as the men, were well paid for their attendance, as the illustrated show proved the telephone service to be a large field for female industry. Mr. Bicknell's introductory remark:

"The knowledge of the majority of telephone users is confined to the telephone set on the desk or on the wall. Comparatively few of the telephone subscribers have taken the trouble to visit a telephone exchange. What mechanism there is between two persons talking in a closed book to the multitude. Eight billion messages are sent in one year over the Bell system—an average of over 26,000,000 per diem—an incomprehensible and invisible service performed with no other tangible evidence in the operation than a bell, a receiver and transmitter, in the hands, a pole line out of doors, or a conduit underground, and a toll charge at the end of the call, or a bill at the end of the month."

We had intended to give an extended report of the many interesting features but are obliged to omit for want of space.

REV. JAMES W. ALLISON DIES SUDDENLY.

Pastor of Immaculate Conception Church in East Weymouth Ill But One Day. Funeral Services Saturday.

After but a day's illness, Rev. James W. Allison, pastor of the Immaculate Conception Church of East Weymouth, and one of the wisest known rectors along the South Shore, passed away at two o'clock last Wednesday morning. He was taken ill suddenly on Tuesday, and died the following morning.

Rev. Father Allison was born in Boston January 4, 1856, and was 58 years of age when he passed away. He was the son of William and Mary (O'Connor) Allison. The deceased attended the public schools in Boston, graduating from the Quincy Grammar School, Boston Latin High School and Boston College, in that city, and later from the St. Joseph's Seminary in Troy, N. Y. He was ordained in Troy, N. Y., in 1882.

His first pastorate was in Canton, where he remained six years, going to Charles-town, where he was pastor of the St. Mary's Church thirteen years. In 1901 he came to East Weymouth, and since assuming charge of the Immaculate Conception Church parish, has established the parish on a firm foundation in every way. He is survived by a sister, Miss B. F. Allison, who resided with him.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow (Saturday) at 10 o'clock p. m. Burial will be in the Calvary Cemetery in Roxbury.

The remains are to lie in state in the Immaculate Conception Church today from 8 until 9 o'clock.

Sunday Night Forum.

At the Sunday night forum in the First Baptist Church at Weymouth, last Sunday night, under the auspices of the Community Service Union, the auditorium was crowded. Miss Emma Clapp gave an organ recital, Miss Flora McDonald sang and Rev. Clarence Underhill conducted devotional exercises. Lee McCollister, Dean of Tufts College, spoke on "The Study of Man."

DR. GEORGE D. BULLOCK, DEAD.

Twenty-Seven Years of Medical Practice in Weymouth Ends in Death.

After more than a year of suffering with occasional rays of hope followed by reaction and more acute suffering the end came to Dr. Geo. D. Bullock at his home, 64 Washington street, last Sunday.

Dr. Bullock was a native of Taunton and 55 years of age. His early schools were those of his native city and Providence, R. I. Son of a practicing physician, Dr. Andrew D. Bullock, he chose the profession of his father, studied in New Hampton Literary Institution, New Hampton, N. H. and graduated from Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, in 1886.

Weymouth was the field he chose in which to do his life work and here he grew into a good practice and also a citizenship which made him well known in all the social and business affairs of his adopted village and town.

Dr. Bullock married, in 1889, Miss Eva F. Macaulay and their home was one of good cheer and from which there went many a deed of kindness to those in distress or sorrow. Devoted to his profession, to his patients he was not only the physician but the helpful advisor, the tender, sympathizing friend, making their troubles and anxieties his own. In leaving this world he takes with him the esteem and gratitude of all. Fraternally the Massachusetts Medical Society, the Norfolk Medical Association and Delphi Lodge K. of P. had in him a valued and esteemed member.

Funeral services were held at his late home Tuesday afternoon and were conducted by Rev. Albert P. Watson, pastor of the Union church Weymouth and East Braintree. Mrs. Helen Allen Hunt sang "Abide With Me" and "No Night There." There was a very large attendance of friends and relatives who came to pay a last tribute of affection to him whom they loved and the floral tributes were very many and rich. The remains were taken to the Forest Hills crematory on Wednesday where they were cremated and the ashes had a resting place at the O. d. North cemetery.

Dr. Bullock is survived by his wife and one daughter, Marion, also his mother and one sister. The mother, Mrs. Love F. Lawrence, is a widow for the second time. Her present home is with her daughter in Beverly. She like her husband and son was a practicing physician for some years at Hope Valley, R. I. The sister is now Mrs. Joseph Potter of Beverly.

FORM TRIANGULAR ATHLETIC LEAGUE.

Braintree, Hingham and Weymouth High Schools To Hold Indoor Meets.

The headmasters of the Hingham, Braintree and Weymouth high schools met in the Clapp Memorial building East Weymouth last Friday night to discuss the project of a triangular high school athletic league.

Such a league was formed and it was voted to hold three indoor meets, one in each town represented. Each school is to contribute toward a prize for the league the prize to be selected by the schools. In each meet two men from each class will be allowed to compete in each of four events, making thirty two men from each school in each meet. No man will be allowed to compete in more than one event, and in all probability the events will be different in each place, with the standing high jump listed in every meet.

The school holding the meet shall select the officials, except the judges, each school selecting one judge.

It was also proposed to hold a triangular outdoor meet in June just before school closes, with the card containing all the indoor events practical, and the outdoor track events. Prizes for this meet will be a separate detail, to be arranged later.

First place in the meets will count 5 points, second place 3, and third place 1. The school scoring the highest total score of the three meets will be awarded the prize. It has not been definitely decided as to the date of the first meet.

ON THE FARM

Read this column and you can have it delivered at your house with something new every week for a full year by sending $2.00 to this office now.

Folks will begin now to set their milk in the kitchen pantry. It is a poor place at best and to get good cream you must keep every single thing away from the milk that has any smell about it.

In fattening, only the best birds should be used. There are good feeder fowls just as there are good feeder steers, and likewise there are poor feeder fowls.

A farmer was asked why he did not take a newspaper, replied, "My father, when he died, left me a good many newspapers and I have not read them through yet."

Gather in the poultry that have been allowed to roost outdoors. The sooner they become accustomed to the house the better it will be for their health and improvement.

The farmer ought to be able to produce eggs at feed cost of about eight cents a dozen. To do this he must keep the hens which will make the best showing, instead of a lot of mongrels of no breeding and without laying capacity.

Have a rat day soon. This is the time of year the vermin come in from their summer homes in the fields and woods and take up winter quarters about the houses and barns. They can be destroyed more easily before they make intrenchments.

The only sensible and economical foundation for a farm barn, as well as for all farm buildings, is one of solid concrete, or perhaps concrete blocks if they can be made cheaply at home. The solid foundation wall generally is much cheaper than any other kind while it is as durable as the Pyramids of Egypt if constructed of good sand, gravel and cement.

A dust bath under a south window makes an ideal wallowing place for the chickens on a wintry day. Do not gather up the road dust—it is moist and mellow earth which the birds need to keep their feathers clean and the skin in healthy condition; road dust is largely composed of droppings, and, however fine, it is not best for the chickens.

Except in a few sections of this country where soil conditions are very favorable, potatoes do not generally result in exciting crops. Some farmers grow a surplus, but many farmers do not grow enough tubers for their own use. That better potatoes and larger average crops can be grown over wide sections of this country is a certainty, as has been shown by the few who have made potato culture a study.

Those who have newly planed shrubs and trees should see that they are properly mulched with good stable manure or leaves before cold weather. This will prevent severe losses from winter killing and if the manure is spaded into the soil next spring the shrubs will be greatly stimulated and their growth more luxuriant. Of course older shrub borders should be mulched also, but not necessarily as heavily. Mulching is one of the most important factors in the maintenance of thrifty plantings.

It is to be regretted that so few gardeners make a careful study of pruning, without doubt one of the most important branches. One of the immediate effects of pruning is to divert the course of the sap, which was previously utilized by the branch, removed into others, causing enlargement and strengthening of the weaker limbs left on the bare side of the tree. Generally, this is one of the main results desired by pruning.

The virtues of much of our advice is that every person does not take it. Thus one writer advises all farmers to go into the dairy business. What would become of other industries and to what extent would the dairy products go if every man had a hundred cows? Civilization and commerce is based on variety in tasks and capacity. The old saying that "it takes many kinds of people to make a world" is true and often forgotten by the writers.

Cleanliness in feeding will prevent many ailments to which poultry is subject. The dirty, careless way in which many flocks are fed invariably spreads diseases once they obtain a start, and they can best be avoided in the first place by observing preventive measures. Grains and other hard food when fed on the ground should be scattered where the soil is clean. Soft food should always be given on clean boards, or, preferably, in troughs or other vessels in which the fowls cannot place their feet, and which can be easily cleaned at frequent intervals.

In almost every farming community a few farmers succeed and make considerable money in growing potatoes. They grow large crops every year under identical soil and climatic conditions under which many others soil. The reason for this is that the few who succeed are intensely interested in potato growing, while the others are less interested and make practically no study of potato growing conditions. They fail to harvest good tuber crops because they refuse to learn the natural needs of tuber crops.

GET TO THE CAUSE.

Weymouth People are Learning the Way.

There is but little peace or comfort for the man or woman with a bad back. The distress begins in early morning—keeps up throughout the day. It's hard to get out of bed, it's torture to stoop or straighten. Plasters and liniments may relieve, but cannot cure if the cause is inside—the kidneys. When suffering so, use Doan's Kidney Pills, the tested and proven kidney remedy, used in kidney troubles for over 50 years. Doan's Kidney Pills are recommended by thousands for just such cases. Proof of their effectiveness in the testimony of this Weymouth resident:

William V. Brown, 15 Norfolk street, Weymouth, says: "Driving over rough roads had a bad effect on my kidneys and brought on a severe pain in my back. I was troubled mostly while at work and didn't rest well. The kidney secretions were irregular in passage and caused me annoyance. I knew I had kidney complaint and began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. They made a cure which has lasted. The endorsement I gave Doan's Kidney Pills at that time, still holds good."

Price 50 cents, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Brown had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Laconic Advice.

When Atticus once discovered a treasure of gold while digging under a house he sent news of his discovery to the emperor, Nerva, from whom he received the laconic reply: "Use it." And when in his diffidence he protested that it was too large a sum for his own personal use, the emperor responded: "Then abuse it."

Had It All Mapped Out.

"You'll have some explaining to do when you get home, won't you?" "No," replied the member of congress. "I'm not going to explain. I'm going to let my constituents argue matters out among themselves and then take the side that seems to have the most advocates."—Washington Star.

Useful Presents for the Little People

A WARM robe of elderdown flannel is among the many delightful gifts that are to be made for the baby or for the little ones who have outgrown babyhood. Elderdown flannel is woven in light colors and figured in white with Teddy bears, rabbits, birds and other figures that delight the youngsters. It is the softest and most comforting of materials for cold weather.

Bath robes like that pictured are bound with narrow ribbon on all the raw edges, provided with collars and pockets (except when made for infants) and have ties of silk cord, finished with tassels at the neck and about the waist, like the elderdown in color. For the little infant the pocket and waist cord are not needed.

Bed slippers of elderdown finished and tied with ribbons are very comfortable for little ones who are apt to kick off bedclothes in cold weather. They are among the most easily made of gifts. Shoes and booties, for little infants' daily wear, are also made of this material which is so well suited for a baby's garments. Other articles are short sacks, hoods and blankets for the baby's carriage. The last are decorated with big bows of wide, handsome satin ribbon.

Toys Made in the Home Workshop

THERE are some toys that can be made at home for the smaller children and they are among those that are most durable and most cherished. Among them are Teddy bears, dogs, elephants, rabbits and kittens made of cotton flannel or plush. Rag dolls, printed on strong muslin, can be bought ready to be cut out and made at home. The animals are cut by patterns to be had at pattern companies and are stuffed with sawdust. Small buttons or beads make their eyes and heavy yarns are employed in outlining the mouth or nose or other details.

A small white dog shown in the picture illustrates how well these toys look. He is furnished with eyes made of little black buttons and ears cut from black cloth. A ribbon carrying a tiny bell is sewed about his neck and he is bedecked with a narrow band of red ribbon about his body, tied in a bow at the side.

A clown doll is shown with the head made of ribbed goods like a stocking top. The body is made of blue cambric and the shoes of red. The tall hat is of red also, and the costume is finished with a ruffle collar of white lace. This doll has eyes made of small black beads with eyebrows and eyelids defined with black yarn. His nose is formed by making a short ridge in the face drawn together by a few stitches. A stitch, in red yarn, forms his mouth and a mustache and whiskers are made of black yarn. By separating the yarn into strands, and sewing it about the head below the cap, an abundance of curly, black hair is simulated. The cap is topped with a tiny bell and red yellow and blue yarns represent buttons and embroidery in his apparel.

Among the new things brought out for this year are pictures to be made by cutting out figures from colored tissue paper and pasting them on a thin paper background. The tissue is placed over an outline picture and the figure wanted drawn in outline with a pencil. It is then cut out. Different objects are drawn on different colored paper, as trees on green paper, horses on white or brown paper, and other objects on appropriate colors. After all the required figures are cut out, they are pasted on the background.

Following Are a Few of the Items Which Appeared in the Gazette Years Ago This Week.

TWENTY-SEVEN YEARS AGO.

The stores in East Weymouth are putting on their holiday trimmings, to be ready for the rush which is sure to come soon.

Owing to a misunderstanding between M. C. Dizer & Co. and the venders in their employ, the latter quit work Tuesday morning. The matter was satisfactorily adjusted yesterday and the men resumed work this morning.

There will be skating and a game of polo at Reynolds hall, Saturday evening, between the East Weymouths, Capt. Geo. W. Fay Jr. and the Plymouths, Capt. Hipson.

Hon. John D. Long, our Representative in Congress, has recently been urged by business men of Weymouth and Braintree to exert his influence toward procuring an appropriation for the removal of obstructions to the navigation of Fore River.

The following young ladies acted as waiters at the Agricultural supper last Thursday evening: Helen Derby, Jennie Bearce, Edith Clapp, Melle, Tirrell, Bessie French, Jennie Holbrook, Carrie Gardner, Sadie Stetson, Ada Stetson, Jennie Thayer, Jessie Custance, Bessie Custance, Alice Clapp, L. Charlotte Lovell.

EIGHTEEN YEARS AGO.

The employees of H. B. Reed & Co. went out on strike last Thursday, but went back again Friday morning, after a peaceable settlement.

Stand by every business man who closes store or factory on Sunday. Patronize him as far as possible. Bring all possible pressure to bear upon any who refuse to close.

Rev. William F. Binney, a Weymouth boy, and graduate of the North High school has accepted a call of the Baptist church of Berkeley, Cal. Berkeley is the location of the State University with 1200 or more students.

The Shaw school building will be opened again next Monday. All the books and other material used by pupils who were out with diphtheria have been destroyed by order of the school committee, and the rooms thoroughly cleaned.

Rooms have been hired in Mrs. Ellen Pratt's building at Lovell's Corner, by a new organization of young men to be known as the "Websters Debating Club." The room will open on Wednesday evenings for the purpose of reading and study and on Friday evenings social debate will be held.

Weymouth has a good candidate for the Globe contest for an excursion to Washington on the occasion of McKinley's inauguration. Miss Alice Eagan of the Jefferson school is starting in well with votes and is a popular and deserving teacher.

Disillusioned.

After a woman has been trotting in double harness for a few years it makes her fretful every time she sees a newly married couple making love.

Remarkable Promenade.

At a New York hotel a man who had suddenly become wealthy from an oil well venture had left his family, which had accompanied him to the city, in their rooms so long that they had become uneasy about him. At last he returned to the rooms, and to the anxious inquiry of his wife, "Where in the world have you been so long?" he responded, calmly: "I've just been in the cuspidore, walking pro and con."

Rules For Saving.

Pay cash for everything. Do your own buying and marketing. Be careful in your selection of food. Study out, at the beginning of the week, just how much you can spend that week.

Manage your own household; do not leave it to servants. Figure out a system of utilizing all materials. Even the left overs from a meal can be made into something the next day.

Do not regard the system of economy as a burden, but as a pleasure and a duty.—Chicago News.

Buds In Reserve.

When a large branch of a tree is cut off small branches will frequently shoot out round the stump. These branches are from reserve buds, of which all trees have a great number at every portion of their surface. Under ordinary circumstances these never come to maturity, but when the tree is wounded or cut off or loses some of its branches the reserve buds at once come into play and renew the foliage.

COROT'S BIG HEART.

An Incident Illustrating the Great Artist's Generosity.

Corot, the great French landscape artist, was a man of the temperament traditionally associated with genius—irritable, impetuous, careless, generous and lovable. M. Albert Dubuisson, whose father was the great painter's friend, has published some interesting reminiscences of him in the Studio, in which he tells of a day he spent with the artist in his studio, when a knock at the door—the last straw after several really annoying interruptions—caused Corot to fling the door open abruptly with flushed face and fire in his eye.

"What is it now? Come in! Who are you? What do you come and disturb me for?" he demanded angrily. The caller much disconcerted, stammered his explanation:

"I came, M. Corot—I—it's about an accident. A workman engaged on the building has had a fall. His condition is very grave. They have just taken him off to the hospital. We know the poor chap. He's a workman who leaves a wife and four children. We are getting up a subscription among the lodgers in the building for the family. I thought you would perhaps like to join us."

Corot's expressive countenance showed clearly his quick regret for his roughness to the messenger and his deepening sympathy for the injured man. He made prompt amends.

"The poor fellow!" he exclaimed. "The unfortunate family—a wife and four children! We must do everything that is possible to help them. Now how can I be of use to you—I who only know how to amuse myself with painting trees and streams? They must be assured food and shelter, and they'll need money. Here! You see that little bureau? Do you mind going to the first drawer? Good! Now take out what you think necessary, and I beg you not to use too much discretion. My back is turned, and I won't look. You can't think how glad I am to be allowed to share in your kind efforts on their behalf."

Obedient these directions, the visitor opened the drawer and paused thunderstruck, for it was full of gold and bills, tossed in helter skelter as the artist had received them. With some embarrassment, while Corot worked away busily at his easel, the visitor helped himself to as large a sum as his conscience permitted him to take, murmured his thanks and departed. Corot never inquired what he had taken or looked to see, although, indeed, he would not have known if he had.

First Rounded Table Knives.

During the first half of the seventeenth century Cardinal Richelieu, the founder of the French Academy, became offended by the rude manner in which pointed knives were used and thereafter caused his knives to be rounded. Before long the fashion was generally adopted, and the pointed blade, which, in lieu of a fork, had been useful in picking up pieces of meat, was abandoned. Since the seventeenth century the form of table knife has remained substantially as we know it.

The Mule.

A wise man, in his own estimation, announces that a mule kicks because it doesn't know any better. This will greatly surprise many students of contemporaneous mule life. If ever there was an animal with low cunning expressed in its eye and its twitching nostril, that animal is the mule. Its ability to place a kick where it will give the greatest offense to its victim, is something marvelous.

Old Time Musician Dies at Age of 76 Years.

Orin T. Pratt, aged 76 years, a native of this town and a life-long resident, died last Sunday morning at his home on Middle street, East Weymouth.

He was one of the old-time musicians and played a tuba in the old Weymouth Brass Band that was started in 1844. He is survived by a son, Edwin T. Pratt. Mr. Pratt was a shoemaker by trade.

Funeral services were held at home Tuesday afternoon. Rev. Dr. Edward Torrey Ford of the East Weymouth Congregational Church officiated. Mrs. Everett E. Bates, John W. Donovan, Wm. Litchfield and Thomas Burgoyne were bearers. Interment was in North Weymouth Cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS.

We desire to express our heartfelt appreciation of the many kindnesses rendered by our friends and neighbors during our late bereavement.

High School Notes.

Before an audience of parents and friends on Wednesday, the first musicale of the winter was successfully given by the members of the school. The program was arranged by James J. Calderwood, and was as follows:

Selection from Opera "Sari" Orchestra
"The Rose of Allandale" The School
Violin solo—"Caprice," by Kreisling Miss Shaw, '16

"Ting-a-ling," from musical comedy "High Jinks," Miss Flora MacDonald, '16

"The Lake" The School
Bangor March Orchestra

The workings of the great machine, Legislature, were outlined and explained by ex-Representative Dwyer before the Literary Society at their regular meeting of this week. Mr. Dwyer went on to explain the inside details of many political happenings which concerned this district, and related a few interesting experiences from his own career. The lecture was that of experience, and his reward the esteem of his fellow men, and the simple, straightforward address which he gave enabled more than one to see why the reward has been so great.

Weymouth has entered a baseball league and as a member of such will play ten league games next season. Mr. Cosgrove is the secretary of the organization.

A reversal of form was evident last Friday, when the Juniors defeated the Seniors in the interclass basketball series. With a handicap of 10 points they scored one foul and won, 11 to 10. The Freshmen beat the Sophomores 16 to 12. In the final games of the first round, the Juniors won from the Sophomores by a score of 16 to 14, and the Seniors defeated the Freshmen 28 to 14. The last match was supposed to have been a hard one, but the Seniors turned it into a walkaway match—7 baskets by Deane, 4 by Talbot, 2 by R. Bates and 1 by Whittle—sewing up the game in due style.

PRESENT "TOMMY'S WIFE."

Squad 10 of Pilgrim Church Entertain Large Audience Last Friday Evening.

On Friday evening, December 4th, the Pilgrim vestry North Weymouth, was the scene of one of the best and most enjoyable entertainments ever given in the village. The young ladies of "Squad 10" deserve the greatest credit for their most excellent work.

A three-act comedy "Tommy's Wife", under the direction of Mrs. J. Herbert Libby was presented to an audience of two hundred and fifty.

Alfred Gardner as "Thomas Carothers" a young artist, lived up to his reputation as an able actor.

Miss Rita Page as "Rose Carothers" was just what was expected of her, and that is always the best.

"Dick Grannis" was so well impersonated by Waldo Emery, that the author herself could have found no fault.

Miss Helen Ward, one of the newest additions to the dramatic circles of North Weymouth, by her interpretation of "Patty Campbell" added much of genuine pleasure and life to the play.

Miss Mildred Alden as "Mrs. De Yorkburgh Smythe" was certainly "La Grande Dame" and her daughter "Sylvia" proved to be a part designed especially for Miss Maude Williams.

Miss Anna Alden, as "Edith Bronson" a friend to everybody, impressed all by her genuine sincerity.

George Webber, as "Pierre Le Bouton" was a decided "hit" and deserves great credit for his earnest study and excellent results.

The piano duet by Mrs. Raymond Lane and Miss Anna Alden, the novelty song by Miss Williams and Mr. Emery, the song sheets with Mrs. Nathaniel Ford at the piano, were some of the features.

The candy table was presided over by Miss Lillian Trussell and Miss Helen Burgess, the fancy table by Miss Bertha Dunbar and Mrs. John Basteley.

Knights of Pythias Notes.

The annual election and installation of officers of Delphi Lodge K. of P. was held in K. of P. hall Weymouth, last Thursday night, with an extra large attendance. Another feature of the evening was the initiation of two candidates into the third degree, by the lodge degree staff and lodge officers. The following officers were elected and installed: George Dezhelmer, chancellor commander; Winfield S. Orr, vice chancellor commander; George Leavitt, prelate; Gustave Nelson, master of work; Arthur C. Bicknell, keeper of records and seals; Jesse Pierce, master of exchange; Burton F. Johnson, master of finance; Oscar Smith, master at arms; William Gifford, inner guard; Sylvanus Richmond, outer guard; P. C. Francis M. Drown, representative to grand lodge for two years; P. C. William E. Pray, alternative representative for two years; P. C. Francis M. Drown, trustee.

Last night a roll call was held 77 members responding.

A turkey supper was enjoyed. Special guests included Deputy Grand Chancellor Dolan of Brockton and other grand lodge officers. The silver cup won by the lodge at the recent K. of P. field day at New Downer Landing was officially presented to the lodge.

Guests were present from Holbrook, Braintree, Montello, Campello, Brockton, Medford, Malden, Lynn, Rhode Island and Virginia.

Annual Fair.

The Ladies' Benevolent society connected with the Old North church, held its annual fair on Wednesday afternoon and evening in the Old North chapel. At three o'clock the fair opened. There were many well-stocked tables arranged about the chapel with the following committees in charge: fancy table, Mrs. Charles Macker, Mrs. Nelson Gladwin, Mrs. Edwin Murphy, Mrs. H. A. Nash, Miss Annie Jones, Mrs. R. C. Steele; five and ten cent table, Mrs. Rufus Bates, Mrs. W. J. Sladen, Mrs. James Wildes; candy table, Mrs. J. C. Nash. "Wide Awakes" food table, Mrs. Benj. Smith, Mrs. Stoddard; apron table, Mrs. Albert Newcomb, Miss Hattie Lincoln; ice cream, Mrs. Charles Taylor. The tables were prettily decorated and were well patronized by all. A supper was served at 6.30 o'clock, to which a large number were present. At eight o'clock a splendid entertainment was given in the church, Mrs. Walter Philbrook having charge of same. The evening's program opened with a selection by Fearing's orchestra, composed of Mrs. Mary Flint, piano; Sumner Fearing, violin; Arthur Fearing, clarinet, Walter Philbrook and Ralph Murphy, cornet. Miss Ida Horton of Campello furnished readings during the evening in a very pleasing manner. Organ selections were rendered by Miss Mildred French of South Weymouth, which were greatly enjoyed, and the trombone solos by Mrs. Florence Gallardett received much applause. Selections were rendered by the Old North Trio. The fair proved to be a great success in every way and a large sum was realized.

MARRIED FIFTY YEARS.

Mr. and Mrs. George Frederick Lord of East Weymouth Observed Their 50th Anniversary at Their Home Last Tuesday Evening.

Fifty years ago last Tuesday, December 8, George F. Lord and Miss Emma J. Cole were united in marriage by Rev. C. W. Flanders, then pastor of the First Baptist church in Concord, N. H.

Last Tuesday evening from 7:45 until 11 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Lord observed the 50th anniversary of that event with a reception at their home in Weymouth Center.

Among the special guests were large delegations from Reynolds Women's Relief Corps and Reynolds' Post 58, G. A. R. The corps of ushers consisted of Russell Lord, Frank Lord and Warren Nott. Mr. and Mrs. Lord were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lord of Quincy.

Vocal and instrumental music was enjoyed and a wedding lunch was served. Red, white and blue streamers and American flags made up the decorations of the dining room, while the color scheme of decorations of the reception room was white and yellow.

A feature was the reading of an original poem written by Rev. F. B. Cressy, a former pastor of Weymouth Landing.

Mr. Lord was born in Quincy, July 25, 1842 and was one of eight children of Peter and Sarah Lord. On April 19, 1861 he enlisted at Milton in Co. E. 7th Massachusetts Infantry, and for nearly thirty months saw much active service. At the battle of Gettysburg he was wounded three times and on account of the loss of an eye he received an honorable discharge on Oct. 12, 1863. He became a member of Reynolds Post 58 G. A. R. on June 2, 1869.

Mrs. Lord was born in Boston on February 16, 1848, one of two children of Israel and Mary (Stephen) Cole. She has been an active member of the Baptist church for several years and of Reynolds W. R. C. since the formation of the order. Of six children born to Mr. and Mrs. Lord four are living.

How Little Mary Lou Was Conspired Against

By AGNES G. BROGAN

Bess rocked to and fro violently, her pretty brows drawn together in an impatient frown.

"Uncle Jabez was an old idiot," she remarked to her equally perturbed husband. "How on earth could he expect two people virtually thrown at each other's head to be inclined to marry? Mary Lou says his fortune may go to the asylum for all she cares."

"And my brother Bob," her husband declared, "is not the kind of a man to parade around under any girl's inspection in hope of being approved a bearable husband."

Bess arose angrily. "If you mean any reflection upon my sister by that," she began, when, with a short laugh, Jack drew her down to his side. "Why, dehr," he said, "don't let us quarrel about it. In drawing this peculiar will old uncle Jabez paid a fine compliment to our happy married state."

"May this ideal companionship," he writes, "be repeated in the lives of the sister and brother." Mary Lou was always a favorite of his, and after he had met Bob he told me confidentially that there was one fine straight fellow to whom he would trust the future use of his money. Jove! I wish he'd selected me. But he didn't, and now it is up to us to try to keep the big fortune at least in the family and to arrange a meeting between the two obstinates."

"It is strange that they have never met," Bess soliloquized: "let's see, Bob was at college at the time of our marriage, wasn't he?" Jack nodded. "And living as we do, in this out of the world place, the two have not happened to meet at our home. This protracted visit of Mary Lou's should prove our one grand opportunity."

"Bob is such a difficult person," his wife complained.

"Sure is, on this idea," Jack agreed, "balks like a horse at being even presented. Says that fortune is enough to influence any girl and objects to be taken on sufferance."

"If they could only be made reasonable," sighed Bess. Jack jumped to his feet walking up and down before her.

"Let's trick them into it," he suggested, "work up a plot like a novel, and have them fall in love unaware. If I do say it, Bob's mighty good sort. A score of girls would be willing to take him for better or worse, with the fortune left out."

A sudden light flashed across his wife's blue eyes. "You have advertised for a chauffeur," she suggested meaningfully. "And Bob might be persuaded to act the part," Jack finished.

"That would give him the advantage of secretly observing Mary Lou, while she—well, if Mary Lou was at all interested in the handsome chauffeur, we might have hope. Come to think of it, she's strong on that sort of thing, isn't she? Educating the laboring class and all that. We could tell her, "that—er—'Charles,' the chauffeur was an ambitious college man, arrested in his career by unfortunate circumstances, falling in the time, as it were, by work obvious to his hand."

"LET'S TRICK THEM INTO IT," SUGGESTED JACK.

"Yes," his wife interrupted, "and all this time Bob will know that the girl at his side may be his future wife if acceptable to his lordly wish, while poor little Mary Lou—"

Jack's laughing glance met his wife's. "Don't worry about 'poor little Mary Lou,'" he said, and involuntarily Bess smiled.

"When can you arrange it?" she asked.

"I'll try tomorrow," Jack told her.

Hand in hand, like the lovers they still were, the two stepped out on the porch. A lazy, reclining little figure opened her eyes sleepily as Jack shook the hammock.

"What is it?" asked the girl. "Dinner?"

"No, dear," her sister answered, "We have—er—just been discussing the possibilities of a new chauffeur, who may arrive shortly."

The girl laughed. "Maybe he's a highbrow," she said, "and will run us all into a ditch while thinking out his tuesis."

Bess cleared her throat. "I thought," she remarked tentatively, "that being interested in the betterment of classes this might be a special opportunity to use your powers of encouragement in the right direction."

Mary Lou sat up and stared deliberately at her sister, "Bess Thornton," she demanded, "what's the matter with you?"

Bess flushed guiltily. "Nothing," she replied. "Oh, nothing, only—"

"Well, I'll use my best efforts on your needy chauffeur," her young sister remarked, scrambling out of the hammock, "but I've also promised a favor to Jane. You see, Jane's due at the Settlement house this week, and she hates to leave her house here in charge of the cook—not a very intelligent person, I understand—to go over and superintend."

Bess and her husband exchanged glances. "That's all right," Jack answered briskly, "and when Bess is busy, she can send the chauffeur over to take you for a ride." "If he comes," Bess added doubtfully.

"Makes me feel like a shrimp," Bob objected, "masquerading around in that fool underground way."

"You owe the girl at least a chance of falling in love with you," Jack insisted. So with much chuckling upon Jack's part and much irrepressible laughter from Bess, the chauffeur's outfit was adjusted to Bob's athletic figure, and he grinned sheepishly from beneath the round goggles.

"Of course," Jack informed him, "you are to make a pretense of occupying the chauffeur's quarters over the garage, while our best guest room is at your disposal."

"Rest assured," Bob agreed, "if I'm to do the thing, I'll do it up brown." The initial ride with Mary Lou was to take place the following morning. Armed with a written explanation from Bess that she was unavoidably detained, he was to drive to the home of "Jane," in a runabout, built for two. This propinquity, Bess decided, would be more favorable to chance conversation and acquaintanceship.

It was with a feeling of apprehension, however, that they awaited upon the veranda the chauffeur's return.

"It would be like Mary Lou to have a contrary streak," lamented Bess, "and refuse to speak to the man at all."

"There is one thing certain," Jack comforted, "if Bob is human, he'll be balled over as soon as he sees her."

Two pairs of eyes cast glances of subdued excitement upon the whilom chauffeur, as he leisurely ascended the steps and proceeded in a coolly provoking manner to light a cigar.

"Well?" asked Jack impatiently.

"Well, what?" queried the chauffeur.

"You've seen her—Mary Lou—how did it come off?" Bob removed his cigar. "Yes," he answered slowly, "I have seen the lady named, and as far as I am concerned nothing is going to come off."

Silence greeted this remark—astonished, wrathful silence.

"Do I understand," Bess asked lily sweet, "that you disapprove of my sister?"

"See here," said Bob testily, "let's drop it. I was against the thing from the first anyway. It is impossible now that I have seen her."

In offended dignity Bess arose and passed into the house. Bob leaned toward his brother. "Do you mean to tell me," he demanded, "that the girl I took driving this morning is your wife's own sister? Wasn't she adopted or something like that?"

"Certainly not," Jack answered tersely. "Mary Lou has always been considered a very pretty girl, a—really wonderful girl."

"She may be pretty in a common sort of way," Bob condescended, then he laughed shortly. "She's a wonder, all right," he added, and went in banging the door. In all haste Bess went to the house of Jane.

"What has happened?" she asked of her wide-eyed sister, forgetting that young person's innocence in the conspiracy against her. "I mean, what happened with the chauffeur?"

"Not an accident!" cried the horrified Mary Lou. "Oh, don't tell me that nice young man has met with an accident; why, he just left."

"Nice—young—man," repeated the perplexed Bess. "So you like him?"

"Immensely!" said Mary Lou. "He instructed me how to keep the worms from Jane's roses, and he tied up all the wistaria vines. Oh, he was most obliging. Send him over again tomorrow, will you, Bess, dear? Perhaps I can draw him out, then, about his future ambition. And, Bess, send over my fetching lavender. Tell Charles—I called him Charles at once—I want it in time to wear for the ride."

"She seemed perfectly wild about him," Bess confided to her husband. "And, oh, dear, suppose it ends in the tragedy of our beautiful girl entertaining a hopeless love for that brute of a brother of yours."

Mary Lou's case seemed hopeless indeed, judging from the sulky countenance of the chauffeur as he viciously tossed the violet frock into the waiting car.

"If Bess thinks this 'dolling up' is going to help her sister's case any," he spitefully told his brother, "she's mistaken. It's goodby fortune for me."

It was unexplainable. In vain Jack sought for some possible cause of this unheard-of aversion to his popular young sister-in-law.

"Do you still like him?" Bess wistfully asked of Mary Lou. "I think I must always like him," Mary Lou answered sadly. "The man seems to take one's fancy—forebly. His personality is so compelling, and one is sorry for his interrupted career." Bess winced and Mary Lou sighed. "But he is only a strange chauffeur after all," she said, "and we must not place too much confidence in him—my own has been shaken."

"Wishing this morning to take a very early ride I walked over to the garage; the cleaning man said Charles had not yet appeared, and went up to his room to call him." Mary Lou paused impressively. "He found that the chauffeur's bed had not been slept in," she added. "When questioned Charles evaded the subject. Where then, I ask you, could he have been unless gambling away his money?"

"I'd forget all about him," Bess advised uneasily. Mary Lou looked her reproach. "Don't you see," she asked gently, "that is why I must interest myself in him all the more."

After this Bess determinedly sought her husband. "You must send Bob away," she said tearfully. "Why does he continue to stay if he refuses to carry out the purpose of the will?"

That was the question Jack asked as the troublesome chauffeur entered the room. "If you could love Mary Lou," Jack amended, "you'd be more than welcome to stay."

"AND YOU'RE NOT GOING TO MARRY ANOTHER MAN?"

"Love Mary Lou?" There was contempt in Bob's abrupt laugh. "But if you would know why I stay I will tell you," he said. "It's because, heart and soul, I have fallen in love with another girl."

"Another girl!" Jack and his wife repeated in chorus.

Bob nodded. "Jane," he said.

"But Jane is away," cried the puzzled Bess.

"She came back," Bob explained.

"Been stopping at the house with Mary Lou?"

Jack's eyes gleamed with a strange satisfaction. "Well, Jane is going to marry another man," he said. "Been engaged since she was in the cradle."

"Engaged!" The word came sharply. Bob's face had gone very white.

"To be married next month," announced Bess.

Bob arose slowly and went over to the window, standing with his back to them. When he spoke again his voice was shaky. "So that's over," he said. "We had some moonlight walks together, and she used to sing to me out there among the flowers. I shan't forget. I guess I'll go now all right, Jack."

Husband and wife exchanged quick glances.

"The legacy is over a hundred thousand," said Jack. Bob swung around furiously.

"Hang the legacy!" he cried. Then the door opened to admit Mary Lou.

"The veranda is a fine place to hear," she remarked calmly. "Your conversation came right through the open window. It reminded me of another one which occurred shortly after I came." She turned to Bob.

"A deep and villainous plot was unfolded to me as I lay in the hammock. My brother and sister here had planned to force upon my attention a possible future husband in the guise of a refined chauffeur. There was a one-sidedness to the affair which did not appeal to my sense of fairness. So when 'Charles,' the chauffeur, called to drive out Mary Lou," the girl broke off to laugh merrily—"he spent several pleasant afternoons with Jane's cook. She said she was quite pleased with her part in the performance when she wore my lavender gown."

With sudden enlightenment Bob rushed forward. "You mean Jane," he began breathlessly.

"I mean," the girl answered with a swift upward glance, "that I am not Jane."

"And you're not going to marry another man?"

A moment she parried the eager question, then Mary Lou ran to Bob's outstretched arms. "You ask me that?" she cried. "Then have you forgotten the promise of 'Jane' given among the flowers?" Half laughing, she looked back from her lover's shoulder. "Uncle Jabez was a wise old man," said Mary Lou.

Easily Made Christmas Novelties in Neckwear

NECKWEAR and muff sets were never more fashionable than they are just now, and they are among the easiest to make of home-made gifts. They confer both style and comfort upon their wearers to the joy of those who receive them.

Neckpieces are simply straight lengths of velvet, plush or fur cloth, cut a quarter of a yard wide and a yard or more in length. They are lined with satin and gathered in at the ends, where a tasseled ornament makes the finish. They fasten about the neck with a hook and eye or slide. Crocheted, passementerie or bead buckles and ornaments are used on them.

Muffs are barrel-shaped and made over beds of down or wool batting. These beds are bought ready made and are very cheap. Velvet coverings are usually gathered over them with ruffles at each end as shown in the picture. The muff and ruffles are lined with satin. Silk cords or strands of large black beads are fashionable this season for decorating these sets.

Inexpensive Gifts in Collars and Vestees

A COLLAR and vestee in sheer organdy, to wear with tailored suits will be welcomed by every woman and costs almost nothing but the time for making. The flaring collar is finished with hand-embroidered scallops or a band of fine narrow swiss embroidery, or lace, which extends down each side. The collar and vestee must be cut separately and joined at the neck line. The collar is wired to make it stand and flare correctly.

A brilliant vestee, with collar and revers of filmy lace, is pictured made of brocade velvet and shadow lace. The vestee is a band about the neck gradually widening to the waist line where it is trimmed into points. It fastens just above the points with hooks and eyes, and here three small, fancy buttons are set on for ornament.

A short ruffle of lace forms a flaring collar which is supported with fine wires. The revers are made of straight pieces of lace draped in at each side and at the top in the neck line. Made of bright colored broadcades this is one of the prettiest of novelties to be worn to embellish the blouse.

Holiday Ties and Bows in Ribbon

INEXPENSIVE and pretty neckwear is made of narrow colored velvet ribbon. Bows and ties like those shown in the picture are often finished with small flowers of ribbon or chiffon.

FROM OTHER PLACES.

Boston has had all kinds of fads and fancies in its schools, and all of them have been of real value—to those employed to take charge of them. But now—thanks, probably, to Superintendent Dyer—the pupils are in a fair way of learning how to spell ordinary words and how to compose a letter, after a course ending with the high school, that will not be a reflection on Boston's educational system.

There is a matter in which every Plymouth should take personal pride and responsibility. Attention is called to the habit of expectorating upon the sidewalk, for which there is a fine of not less than two or more than twenty dollars, and the throwing of peanut shells, fruit skins, and waste paper into the streets. This is especially noticeable around the postoffice. Sufficient receptacles for waste have been placed in the middle of the town and it is hoped they will be more generally used.—Old Colony Memorial.

A German professor in a western college charges the extensive sympathies in America against the German cause is a violation of the neutrality of this country. The United States is, nevertheless, following religiously the letter of the law of neutrality. But an intelligent people cannot blindly accept assurance that there is a side which only can be understood in the light of heredity and environment, and therefore unexplainable.—Reading Chronicle.

Many who read the call for the special meeting of the City Council Monday evening have been asking why the city should petition the legislature to appropriate $75,000 for widening the Fore River channel and for authority for the city to raise $10,000 for the same purpose. The appropriations above mentioned together, with an appropriation of $15,000 to be made by the Fore River Corp., are contingent upon the United States making an appropriation for this work and if the government refuses to make such an appropriation then the appropriations referred to by the city state and Fore River will not be expended.—Quincy Patriot.

The spirit of a certain young woman soliciting for a very worthy Needham organization is an example of the unfair spirit in which a business man, particularly in a town, is likely to be approached. This woman, when being courteously told by a Needham storekeeper, that he could not afford to take advertising space in a certain program, significantly replied, "You cannot afford not to." The proprietor, who told us one day this week of this experience, made his next answer more forcible than elegant. It is manifestly unfair to ask a business man, professional man or journeyman, to contribute the work by which he is earning a living. If he can afford to give money, well and good, if he can not, it is wrong to expect him to.—Needham Chronicle.

The Overland Trail

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press.

In the old days of the Overland trail the pony express and the lumbering stagecoach stage stations had been erected at a distance of fifteen miles apart throughout the length of the whole trail. After the first thirty miles from the Missouri river no coach was safe from attack until it reached San Francisco. The Indians could not use fire as a weapon, nor could they carry a station by assault, but they captured many of them by trickery or siege. In no case was the life of a company employee ever spared.

Never were greater hardihood and bravery exhibited than by the men selected to drive the coaches.

As the stage toiled through the heavy sand of some strips of desert or met several miles of stony and uphill trail a band of a hundred yelling warriors would suddenly appear. The driver must fight as well as guide his excited team. It was when the Overland company finally appealed to the government to clear its route through Kansas that General Custer was sent out with a brigade of troopers. Custer couldn't hope to strike a telling blow against the hordes in the field, but he laid his plans to open the route and drive the Indians back from it.

As we followed the trail to the west we picked up station after station, showing gruesome sights.

Custer's whole command witnessed the arrival of the last stage from the west—the last for several weeks. From a hilltop three miles from the trail, with impassable gullies between, we saw the coach come up the trail with 100 Indians pursuing it. It was a running fight, which aroused every man to the highest pitch of excitement, but we were helpless to extend aid. Through the clear air of a summer afternoon we saw the stage horses shot down and the coach overtaken. The passengers made a brave fight to the last, but none of them escaped. It was night before we had made our detour and reached the station, and the Indians had departed long before. They had captured the station two hours before they attacked the stage.

If this station had failed to hold out how would it be with Pawnee Flat, the next station to the west, and with White Horse, the next after that? The first was a four man station and the next a relay of eight. As we rode away through the night not a man had the slightest hope of Pawnee, though we knew it would have been defended as long as one of the four could lift a gun. We reached it at about 11 o'clock. It was as we had feared. Over 200 Indians had swarmed down out of the hills at daybreak the morning before, and though they had lost a score of men, the dugout had been carried by assault and its defenders butchered. We waited here half an hour to give the poor corpses burial and then pushed on toward White Horse. It was not until we got within two miles of the station that our fears were relieved. Then we heard the reports of rifles and knew that the place was still holding out.

The station was situated about midway of a long, bare hill. To the west of it was a coulee, or dry ravine, with banks twenty feet high. We had with us a couple of scouts, who knew every rod of the Overland trail, and when within a mile of the station these men were sent forward to spy out the station. They returned after awhile to report that Spotted Horse and about 150 of his "dog soldiers," as the Cheyennes were called, were laying siege to the station and had evidently occupied the ground for two or three days. The ground around the dugout was so open that the Indians dared not "rush" the place, nor was there any show to use a keg of powder without reckless exposure. With their allies holding the trail to the east, the Cheyennes had entered upon a siege in hopes to starve the defenders out. Their war ponies and most of the band were lying up in the dry ravine for the night. This ravine had no opening to the south and was therefore a cul de sac.

The first signs of dawn were in the sky when we saddled up, mounted, and the whole of us pushed forward, led by the scouts, for the mouth of the ravine. We had the Spencer carbines, each with a full magazine, and as we got the order to charge each man began shooting. When a carbine was empty it was thrown away and a revolver used in its place. When the revolver was empty it was cast aside for the saber. Extended from bank to bank, we swept up the ravine, and we had nothing to do but kill. Taken by surprise, the Cheyennes thought only of getting away. The fight did not last above thirty minutes, and our loss was only three men wounded.

Down in the ravine we harvested twenty-eight dead Indians, and on the banks above the stage men counted up twenty-two more. We got upward of 100 rifles, about 50 pistols, 130 ponies and a wagon load of miscellaneous stuff. Every Indian lying there was a dead one. Custer had said, "Shoot to kill!" and there was no wounded or prisoners. Among the killed were Spotted Horse, Big Moon and White Bird, and that fight broke the backbone of the Cheyennes. Their part in the war was to capture all the stations west of Burning Hill, but they had taken only Pawnee Flat. They never rode to war again. Within a week they were suing for peace, and they were the first to be gathered on a reservation.

A new system of passes for railroad men is in vogue on the local division since December 1. Instead of merely showing a pass now, each railroad man has to give the conductor a ticket and show his identification pass with the number on it. If a man is in uniform the conductor on the car is required to mark the badge number on his day sheet. With several "shop extra" conductors or motormen aboard on some trips, the conductor will have to take a course in book-keeping to keep his reports straight.

A great success is the Morris Bloom butcher cart in East Weymouth, which calls at each house every day.—Adv.

Mrs. Kristina Linquist is reported as improving from her recent operation.

The engagement is announced of Antonio Pecararo, the local barber and Miss Reghetta Demetris of Madison avenue.

Daniel P. Howley has been in New York the past week attending the winter meetings of the baseball leagues. Howley is looking for some fast men for his Montreal club next season.

An automobile owned by G. D. Will of Braintree, with Mr. Willis' son at the wheel, skidded at the corner of Broad and Essex street last Monday morning and ran into a telephone pole, breaking the pole completely in half and damaging the car so that it had to be towed to a garage for repairs, while Mr. Willis and the other occupants of the car proceeded on their way by electric.

The C. M. A. wrestling team will journey to Beverly tomorrow to do battle with the Beverly Y. M. C. A. squad.

Talking Machine Department

Here you will find a very acceptable gift all the way from $15 to $250, and you can have your choice of either Edison or Victor Machines of the very latest type, latest records, etc.

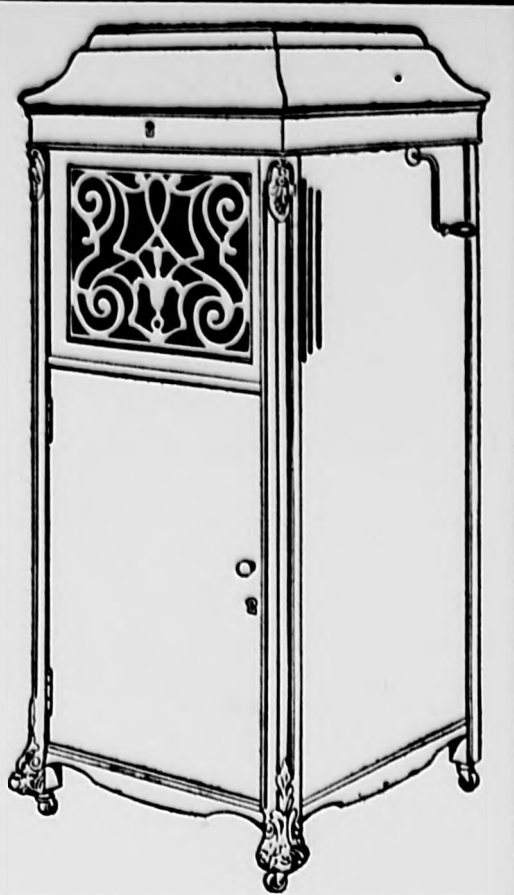

Every year at Christmas time the factories are unable to supply the demand for these goods, so place your order early and we will deliver any time you say. Remember, we are prepared to meet all the so-called "special offers" and "bargain assortments" that you read of in the papers.

Come in and hear a demonstration of one of the latest machines and you will realize what a wonderful improvement there has been made.

I still have a few second-hand pianos left at special bargain prices.

FUNERAL OF FATHER ALLISON.

Body Lies in State in Immaculate Conception Church on Friday. Services on Saturday Morning.

Under the escort of Division 9, A. O. H., the Immaculate Conception Association and Weymouth Council K. of C. the body of Rev. Father James W. Allison was taken from the parochial residence on Commercial street, East Weymouth last Friday afternoon to the Immaculate Conception church on Broad street, where it lay in state from four until nine o'clock Friday evening. The office of the dead was chanted by ten priests. Details of members of the various societies connected with the Immaculate Conception church acted as guard of honor over the body until the Solemn High Mass on Saturday morning.

More than fifty priests of the diocese attended the Solemn Requiem High Mass celebrated for the repose of the soul of Rev. James W. Allison last Saturday morning in the church of the Immaculate Conception in East Weymouth. The deceased was pastor of the Immaculate Conception church for thirteen years. The congregation filled the spacious church to the doors and many people were unable to gain entrance.

Rev. M. J. Owens of Quincy was the celebrant of the Mass; Rev. Maurice Lynch of Watertown, deacon; Rev. Andrew Fitzgerald of West Roxbury, subdeacon; Rev. Thomas R. McCoy of West Quincy, master of ceremonies; Rev. R. E. Lee of Boston and Rev. Thomas R. Reynolds of Somerville, acolytes and Rev. E. J. Fraher of Hyde Park, thurifer.

Rev. Henry T. Grady of Somerville was the eulogist and Bishop J. G. Anderson presided at the Mass and pronounced the final absolution. Bishop Anderson was attended by Rev. A. F. Roche of Watertown and Rev. E. J. Fagan of Rockland.

The music was under the direction of Rev. M. J. Scanlan and consisted of the Georgian chant and harmonized selections from Terry's Mass and Harry's Mass, sung by the Priests' Diocesan Choir. Miss Nellie F. Noonan was organist.

The bearers were Bernard Mitchell, B. J. Connell, Frank McCarthy, Joseph Killory, Daniel Reddy Jr., Peter Gallant, John Lane and Dr. M. J. Sweeney.

Interment was in the Calvary cemetery in Boston. The committal service was by Rev. Raymond Brosnahan, assistant rector of the Immaculate Conception church.

Previous to the Solemn High Mass a Mass was held for the children of St. Jerome's and Immaculate Conception parishes, at which Rev. Maurice Lynch of Watertown, a former assistant to Father Allison was celebrant.

HOWLEY AFTER MALCOLM BARRY

Brooklyn Boy, Member of Jersey City Team Wanted For First Base By Montreal Manager.

Manager Dan Howley of the Montreal baseball club is reported to be after the services of "Mal" Barry, the Brooklyn boy, who the past season led the Jersey City team with the stick with an average of .299.

Howley, whose home is in East Weymouth, was in town a few weeks ago and is said to have conferred with Barry at the latter's home. It is thought Howley made Barry an offer, but as Barry is still with the Jersey City club, he will have little to say regarding the proposed deal.

TOWN BUSINESS.

Work of Different Officers and Committees.

At the Monday meeting of the Selectmen a permit was granted to James Kerr to dig claims on Weymouth flats.

On request of Chief Butler, telephone connections will be made with the police station in East Weymouth.

A permit was granted to H. M. Clark and others to erect a band stand at Washington square for an entertainment Christmas Eve, the same to be under the supervision of the chairman of the Board of Selectmen and the Chief of Police.

The hearing on widening and straightening Pleasant street was reopened, and Frank Rea appeared as a remonstrant against the plan, which takes quite a strip from his front yard. No action taken.

Division Superintendent Gammon of the street railroad met with the board and arrangements were made for the removal of snow. The Bay State S. R. R. will care for Broad street from Commercial square to Central square and the town will attend to other streets.

Charles E. Tirrell reported the killing of a dog supposed to be rabid; he had bitten several other dogs and a calf. The head of the dog was taken off by the order of the Board of Health and sent to Boston for inspection.

Bills for the new pieces of fire apparatus were approved, and $10,000 in serial notes of $2,000 each were issued for the East Weymouth machine and improvement at the engine house; and $7,000 on three notes of $2,000 and one note for $1,000 for the South Weymouth machine. The North Weymouth machine will be paid for by direct tax and by available funds in the treasury.

By invitation of the Governor a good delegation of the Weymouth Planning Board visited the State House on Wednesday to meet members of Planning Boards of other towns and cities to listen to an address by the Governor, hear reports from different Boards and discuss municipal improvement. Among the delegation from Weymouth were the chairman A. P. Worthen and secretary M. P. Garey.

The Latin American conference which was held at the American House in Boston on Tuesday had as delegates from the Weymouth Board of Trade, Geo. E. Bicknell, Charles B. Gillispie and George Downing.

Bowling Notes.

The C. M. A. five and the Carmen's quintet met last Friday night on the C. M. A. alleys in East Weymouth and when the "day sheets" had been turned in, the railroad boys were found to be 51 pins in the rear. The Bay State boys were unable to "make their time" until the second string when they hit the candles for 453. In the third string however, Fred Nolan and B. J. Elkington tied up the line with 106 and 116 respectively, and Captain Cullen and his crew were again in the rear.

Caulfield was high roller for the carmen with 110 in a single and 282 in three strings. For the C. M. A. team Bennie Elkington rolled 301 in three strings, but Lou Loring got the highest single with 121. They lined up as follows: Theisfeldt, Gill, Caulfield, Cullen and Sullivan, C. M. A. Nolan, Pratt, Loring, Elkington, and White.

The railroad boys rolled three strings of 436, 453 and 426, with a total of 1315, while the winners hit the maples for 461, 430 and 474, their total being 1366.

OLD COLONY CIRCUIT EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Well Attended Meeting Held at Lovell's Corner Last Monday Night.

A well attended meeting of the Old Colony Circuit Epworth league was held in the Porter Methodist church at Lovell's Corner last Monday night.

Rev. Verne Smith of Hingham presided. Rev. Paul D. Minnick of Cohasset and Rev. Karl Thompson, pastor of the Porter church conducted devotional exercises.

The musical program consisted of selections by a chorus choir, hymns by the congregation, and violin solos by Miss Catherine Pratt. Mrs. Herbert McFaul presided at the organ.

Rev. E. J. Helms of Boston was the speaker of the occasion, and he gave a pleasing and instructive talk on the subject "Morgan Memorial and What is Being Done There."

The closing features were a social hour with refreshments served by the home society.

ANNUAL MEETING.

Ladies Auxiliary To Gen. James L. Bates Camp S. of V. Elects Officers.

The annual meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary to Gen. James L. Bates Sons of Veterans was held in G. A. R. hall East Weymouth last Monday night. At the election of officers, the following were selected for the ensuing year: Mrs. Charlotte B. Stoddard, president; Mrs. Alice Lunt, vice president; Mrs. Hattie Farrar, treasurer; Mrs. Edith Lunt, chaplain; Mrs. Estelle Richards, Mrs. Laura Manuel and Miss Nettie Holbrook, counselors; Mrs. Mabel Cowling, guide; Mrs. Agnes Abbott assistant guide; Miss Nettie Holbrook, patriotic instructor; Mrs. Jennie Keene, inside guard; Mrs. Clara Richards, outside guard; Mrs. Margaret Higgins and Mrs. Eveline Philbrook, color bearers; Mrs. Hannah Abbott and Mrs. Mary Cain, delegates to the State Encampment; Mrs. Mary Flint, delegate to the National Encampment.

South Weymouth Improvement Association Meeting.

A good sized gathering attended the meeting of the South Weymouth Improvement association in the Fogg Library building, in Columbian square, South Weymouth, last Friday night.

Senator Louis F. R. Langeller of Quincy and Ex-Senator George L. Barnes of South Weymouth were the speakers. The former gave a long talk on "City Charters" while Mr. Barnes spoke on "Town Government."

CLARK UNION MEETING.

Twenty Societies Sent Delegates to Rockland Last Friday Night.

Twenty Y. P. S. C. E. societies from the Weymouth's, Cohasset, Hingham, North Abington, Beechwoods and Rockland were represented at the quarterly meeting of the Clark Union in the First Congregational Church in Rockland last Friday night. President Edward F. Stoddard of North Abington presided.

The visiting delegates were welcomed by Miss Dorice Sheldon in behalf of the home society.

The program consisted of scripture reading by Rev. John C. Prince, prayer by Rev. D. H. Woodward of North Abington, solos by Mrs. George W. McGill, a roll call and an address by Rev. Dr. Edward Torrey Ford, pastor of the Congregational Church in East Weymouth. Rev. Mr. Ford's subject was "The Christian Young People of Today."

The society connected with the East Weymouth Congregational Church, which was represented by 93½ per cent. of the membership, was awarded the union banner for the fifth consecutive time. The North Abington Baptist Society ranked second with 86 per cent.

The session was followed by a social hour with music and refreshments.

People's Forum.

In spite of inclement weather last Sunday night, a good sized crowd was out at the People's Forum in the Baptist church in Lincoln square.

Rev. Clarence Underhill, pastor of the Baptist church presided and conducted the devotional exercises.

Miss Bertha Barnes sang "Consider the Lilies" and "Lord God of Love" and Harris Shaw, organist of the Columbus avenue church in Boston gave an organ recital.

The speaker of the evening was Mrs. Theresa Crowley of Brookline, who gave a very entertaining talk on the theme "Why Women Want the Ballot."

STOCK COMPANY ATTRACTS LARGE CROWDS.

Ethel May Shorey and Her Players at Bates Opera House.

The Ethel May Shorey Stock Co., which is extremely popular and wellknown through this section, was at Bates' opera house, Weymouth, last Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and a very good audience greeted Miss Shorey and her company of players.

On Thursday night "The Grafters" was given before an appreciative audience, while on Friday night "On New Year's Eve" was acted.

Saturday night the house was filled, the large gathering availing themselves of the opportunity of witnessing Miss Shorey's newest play "The Way of a Woman." This play was written by Miss Shorey as are all her plays and is played by no other company. The verdict of highest approval was passed on the play by the large audience.

Between the acts each night, members of the company entertained with vaudeville sketches.

COCHATO LOSES TO NORFOLK.

South Weymouth Bottlepin Boys Roll 2670 Against Braintree Stars.

The Cochato club bottlepin artists rolled the Norfolk club boys on the South Weymouth club's alleys last Monday night, the Weymouthites winning in easy fashion 2670 to 2478 and taking two strings of the three rolled.

Hollis of Cochato was high man in three string total, with 584 to his credit, while Philbrick of Norfolk got the highest single with 220 in his second string. The summary:

IN NEW STORE.

New Quarters of Elbridge Nash Drug Co. Up-to-Date in Every Way.

The Elbridge Nash Drug Co. has taken possession of its new quarters on the Pleasant street corner of the Fogg building in Columbian square, and now boasts of one of the finest and best equipped stores in this vicinity.

The new store is very roomy, and is fitted up with practically all new fixtures and new stock of goods.

The new silent salesmen display cases are finished in light oak, as are the wall cases and finishing of the rooms.

The store is lighted by four large lights, installed in the indirect lighting system, and two window lights in the two spacious windows.

A new American soda fountain of 10 feet length, with ice cream cabinets, etc., combined, makes the equipment second to none in any store in Massachusetts.

Mr. Nash and his associates are pleased to greet their friends and patrons in their new quarters at all times.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

The column under this title will be given to the people for a free discussion of any and all subjects, the management of the paper distinctly disclaiming all responsibility for the opinions here expressed.

Christmas Suggestions.

This is the time of year when everybody, old and young, rich and poor, are looking forward to the best day in all the year, "Christmas Day."

This is the day which the people celebrate by giving to the children, the poor, and to one another, some loving remembrance, or at least "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

This is a fine old custom and may the people of Weymouth (and I know they will) live up to it and teach their children to cherish it.

But what about your "Good Old Town?" The town you live in, your native town, your home, the town whose record is beyond reproach, whose ancestors you respect and revere, does she not need, yes, deserve some slight recognition at your hands? Is she not worthy? But you say what can I do to help the town?

Let me say there are many ways. Those who can afford it might give money for the establishment of parks and playgrounds, a public bath house or a hospital. Such things are needed, and the town and our citizens rightly deserve them. To those who can't help in that way allow me to suggest another.

Send in your application to an organization that is striving hard to bring about the above results. Let the ladies who are interested in our good old town, and I know there are many—present to their husbands, their brother or friend, a membership in the Weymouth Board of Trade as a municipal Christmas present, this is the kind that will bring results. Let every business man, every professional man, yes every citizen who has his own future welfare and that of the town at heart, interest and identify himself with this splendid movement.

Cut out the application to be found in the ad in the special issue of this paper and send it along, thus presenting to your town a Christmas gift, and then resolve to Push, Pull and Play together.

EDWARD W. HUNT.

King Cove Boat Club Notes.

On December 11, the Ladies Auxiliary to the K. C. Boat Club of No. Weymouth met at the house of one of their members, Mrs. Charles Abbott of Chard street, East Weymouth, for their regular semi-monthly business meeting. Their coming was a complete surprise to Mrs. Abbott, who has been unable to attend the meetings lately, since she had the misfortune to break her arm recently. The regular business of the evening was attended to, and under the head of unfinished business a basket of beautiful fruits and good things was presented by Mrs. J. W. Morcan to Mrs. Abbott, this being surprise number two. She was hardly able to acknowledge the gift at this time, but did later in a pleasing manner, thanking the ladies for remembering her in her shut-in time. After a light lunch the meeting closed.

The next all-day circle of the K.C.B.C. auxiliary will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Austin, Standish road, January 6. The annual meeting of the Auxiliary will be held January 8, with election of officers. The Auxiliary will be the guests of Mrs. John Wolfe at her home, Birch Brow avenue, North Weymouth, on this date.

On Saturday, December 12, the Boat Club gave an oyster supper at the club house, about thirty-five being present. Whist and a social time was enjoyed by all. During the evening Mrs. Lester Cullen, on behalf of the Auxiliary, presented the club with $29.00 toward their building fund, which was received with three cheers for the ladies.

OUR COUPON CONTEST

Interest increases as we approach the end and friends of several of the contestants are rallying around their standards.

The last coupon published in the paper will be that of next week, which will come out Thursday, Friday being a holiday.

All coupons, whether cut from the Gazette or those given to subscribers, must be in this office on or before Friday morning, Jan. 1, and the announcement of the result will be made in our issue of Jan. 8, 1915.

the best stock in order to get good results and this can be done in no other way any better than by constantly culling and picking.

The expense of feeding a brood sow that has a small litter is just as great as for one that has a large litter. Consequently each pig of the small litter costs more. Select gilts for breeding that are from large litters and keep the brood sows that have shown themselves to be good breeders. This one thing may mean a difference of $3 or $4 each in the cost of the pigs. That's worth looking after.

Success in hog raising is determined by intelligent daily, sometimes hourly, close, attention to many small details and good judgment. When a farmer decides to become a hog raiser he should plan to stay permanently in the business. Going into the hog business when the hogs are high and going out when hogs are low is now a paying business. It is the farmer who stays in the business year after year who makes the money in the long run.

To have hens we must winter pullets, and if by a little extra feed and care we can induce each pullet to produce $1 worth of eggs during the cold months it will add materially to the profit the flock will yield during the year. It may, and probably will, pay to winter hens for their summer production. But why not have all the year layers and a steady income from the poultry? This can be done by judicious breeding, feeding and care.

young calves. When taken from pasture they, as well as their mothers, need extra good care and feed to save a shrink, and even then they are likely to fall away some the first thirty days. With good clover or alfalfa, however, they will come out all right in the spring. A warm shelter helps, too.

From the Langshan district in China came the big, beautiful, black fowls which bear the name—Langshans—and as such they were known until in later importations some white and some mottled Langshans were found. Then the first Langshans were distinguished by prefixing black.

History does not record their date or manner of origin. Inquiry among the Chinese brought nothing more than "I do not know; it was always so." They are peculiar to the Langshan district, and have been from time immemorial.

The trap nest is a Yankee notion now in practical use for about twenty years.
It is the only method by which the actual layers can be known, and the only way to tell the color of their eggs, as well as the size and shape. It enables us to find the hen that gives strong fertility, (and the fertility), and the one that gives poor. It picks out the winter layers, it arrests the egg eater; it prevents broken eggs in the nest; it makes hens tame.

During the eight or nine weeks when the cows are dry feed should consist chiefly of roughage. I believe in an allowance of from two to three pounds of bran or oats or one pound of oats, one of bran and one-half of linseed meal or corn. Oil meal is an excellent feed for dairy cows near calving time. Pumpkins, squashes, cabbage or roots are also excellent, and, of course, lots of clean water must always be provided, the best results being secured when the chill is taken out of cold water during the winter.

In order to secure large yields it is very important that the cow herd be handled properly and that the best methods of feeding be employed, writes a correspondent of the Orange Judd Farmer. To begin with, the herd as a whole should always be moved slowly. Never hurry a cow or strike her or speak in a loud, harsh voice. A gentle voice and a caressing touch are quite as potent in milk production as a digestible protein feed. If the cows are so handled that they are fond of dairymen the owner has learned one of the most important lessons which leads to profitable milk production.

Every year witnesses the draining reclaiming of more land. It is a means of increasing the crop area of the world and of increasing the yields of valuable feeds and foods for the nourishment of thousands of men and animals. And not only this, but the draining of wet lands in almost all cases have reduced human and animal disease in the neighborhood where the draining has been done. The mosquito that carries the deadly malarial germ has been practically disarmed when the stagnant water in which it breeds and lives has been eliminated from fields and woodland. It is a noted fact that in all sections where wet and swampy lands have been drained to cultivated fields the general health of the neighborhood has immediately improved and remained so.

WHAT YOU CAN GIVE

Helpful Christmas Present Suggestions for Those Who Are Puzzled.

Unabridged Dictionary Will Be Appreciated by Children of Kindergarten Age—Other Suitable Gifts for Young and Old.

A NUMBER of correspondents who have requested suggestions of books suitable for Christmas gifts will find answers to their queries in the following:

Among the many attractive gift books for very little boys might be mentioned Professor Rausmussen's "Analogy Between the Monogamous Protoplasm and the Silurian Molecule." We can think of no book that would be a greater source of delight to the child that is not yet out of short dresses. It tells in easy words of eight and ten syllables of the sports and pastimes of the protoplasmic family and draws beautiful moral lessons from the corpuses of the carboniferous era. It is handsomely illustrated with representations of the agile animalcule and will be sure to delight the heart of the little boy or girl who finds it in his or her stocking, as the case may be.

Another dainty idea for a child of three or four years is the Unabridged Dictionary. The simplicity of style observed in this interesting narrative recommends it at once for children who have reached the kindergarten age. The plot is not so complex and the characters are sufficiently varied to hold the unflagging interest of the little ones. We have in mind a gentleman who gave his little son a dictionary last Christmas, and he assures us that the lad simply devoured the book.

A pretty present for a child is the clinical report of the county hospital. This comes nicely printed on clean white paper, with bizarre illustrations showing the rise and fall of the temperature, amount of protoids eaten, official count of the germs, statistics as to microbes and many other amusing and entertaining ideas. A rare source of pleasure with this book is to have the little fellows pronounce the long words first the way they are spelled and then read them backward and see what difference, if any, there is in the sound. Some boys would rather do this than go skating.

In the line of pure romance there is nothing more entertaining from Prof. T. L. Escopex's "How the Spectrum Caught On in Saturn. This highly original historical tale tells how the spectrum revealed the secret of Saturn's rings, showing that the planet was warm and dry and that the two rings were for ice water. It comes in four large volumes, with 22 pages of logarithmic calculations that are sure to delight young and old.

"PLEASE SEND US SOME NEW TOYS"

As a gift book for a member of a temperature family there is nothing pleasanter than "The Complete Barkeeper." This tells exactly what goes into the stuff that men put in their mouths to steal away their brains, and will be of valuable assistance to any person who wishes to apply satisfactory tests and determine whether or not he has been equipped with brains and would inspire larceny.

"One Thousand Ways to Cure a Cold," by Burton Bales, is a beautifully written book, giving all the remedies for cold that were suggested to its author in one day. There are 89 variations of the quinine and whisky treatment, and the other 911 remedies consist of the same prescription without the latter quinine. This is a good book to have in any house.

"The Servant Question and Its Answer" will deceive many people, but it might do for a gift to a young married couple. The answer is quaintly given: "Board."

Self Belief the Key to Success.
Do you still believe in yourself? If so, you cannot become a failure. You can at worst only have failed to learn as yet the science of success, of which self respect is the key. In the great gamble of life we can afford to lose everything but our self respect. Money lost is little lost; friends lost, much lost, but self respect lost, and all is lost. Self belief is the husband of self respect, just as self respect is the mother of self reliance. Believe in yourself and you will win through, for self belief is the mainspring of human activity and the principal source of human improvement. It inspires you to do things. It teaches you to try again. The man who retains his belief in himself will never give up trying, and success is the reward of persistent effort. Self reliance will pull us through many a struggle from which the coward flees in vain and in which the weak succumb. The ability to "get up again" is the reward of the self-reliant. —Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Weymouth Gazette

As Christmas this year comes on Friday we shall issue the Gazette on Thursday, which of course will necessitate work being done early in the week. All advertisers and correspondents will please take notice and give us changes of ads and news matter as early as possible.

Anniversaries and holidays multiply as the years go by. An ordinary every day man or woman may have a birthday and celebrate it but beyond a few of his kindred and friends it is but little heeded. Towns, cities, states and nations are born and we celebrate their incorporation but other people care little for that celebration as it is of no significance to them.

There is, however, one day in the calendar year which goes beyond individual States or Nations and touches the deepest feeling of the whole world and next week we arrive at the world's great holiday.

Be ready to appreciate its loving message and enjoy its blessed influence. To our readers one and all we wish a blithe and joyous Christmas filled with pleasant thoughts and kindly deeds. Remember the children with toys and sweetmeats and let everyone become as a little child and receive the "Peace on earth, good will to men" brought by the Holy Christ-Child. Let every one join the glad anthem, sung by the Herald angels and proclaim the reign of love, which ever widening, ever extending from the manger at Bethlehem shall embrace and include all nations and all peoples. "Glory to God in the Highest, Peace on earth, Good will to men."

CORRECTION.

Through an error in our issue last week it was stated in the East Weymouth and South Weymouth columns, that the annual costume party of the dancing class conducted by Mrs. Polly would be held in South Weymouth this evening. The party will be held tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon in Masonic Temple, East Weymouth at 1:30 o'clock. Tickets may be procured of members of the class and at the door.

Monday Club.

The next meeting of the Monday club will be held at the High school building, Dec. 21 at 2:30 p. m.

The afternoon will be in charge of Mrs. Arthur Burr, chairman of the committee on Conservation.

Winthrop Packard, the secretary and treasurer of the Audubon society will speak on "Welfare of Wild Birds," illustrated with Reflectoscope.

At this time the members will have an opportunity to enjoy the lantern presented to the High school by the Monday club and which will be used in illustrating the lecture.

C. M. A. Extends Season's Greetings.

The Davis Bates Clapp Memorial association wishes to take this opportunity to wish its members and friends a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

The Association through its various activities is endeavoring to assist the boys and young men of Weymouth to better fit themselves physically, mentally and morally for the battle of life, and solicits the co-operation of the citizens of Weymouth to help promote this work.

Among the members are to be found nearly every race and creed, the only requisite to join being that a man or boy shall have a good moral character.

The building is one of the best equipped in New England and has all the facilities for social and athletic activities.

We have at the present time just a fair percentage of the boys and young men of Weymouth on our membership list. We need at least two hundred more members by Jan. 1st and would urge each of our present membership to get at least one new member before the New Year. Special rates and full particulars regarding membership gladly given at the building or mailed to any address. "Boon the Clapp Memorial."

Loyal Order of Moose.

Weymouth Lodge Loyal Order of Moose held a largely attended ladies' night in Loyal Moose hall, East Weymouth last Tuesday night. About 225 were present. A parcel post auction sale was held and over 100 packages, the contents of which were unknown to the bidders, were auctioned off by officers of the lodge. The sum of $42 was realized from the auction, the proceeds to be used in holding a Christmas celebration next week for the children. The affair closed with dancing.

On Wednesday night the Moose held a dance at headquarters with the Moose singing orchestra furnishing music.

The ladies of the order are to gather next Monday night in the lodge rooms to sew bags for candy to be given to the children at the Christmas party.

Twenty-two applications have been received by the membership committee for the next initiation into the lodge.

—A very pleasing entertainment was given in the Pilgrim church last Tuesday evening under the auspices of the parish committee. The program consisted of selections by the Weber quartet and Paul J. Barnaby, reader.

The Night Before Christmas.

Plans are completed for making Washington square the center of attraction the night before Christmas.

There will be many attractions and interesting features in an open air program. Among the features there will be a historic pageant, music vocal and instrumental, dancing and character sketches.

At this time no event is complete without a Christmas tree, and the committee in charge will make this of special interest to the little folks. Don't forget Washington square Thursday night of next week.

High School Notes.

"The (Wednesday) night before Christmas and all through the house, not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse." Of course, the Junior class was holding its annual party on that date, but they may not have been, or maybe will not be, stirring. The committee is Miss McDonald, Miss Jones, Miss O'Connor and Miss Corrydan.

The war in Europe may not seem to have any effect on the studies in America, but when the editors of the school paper started in to publish it three times this year they found that the foreign war had raised the price of materials so much that they could only make one publication. This will come in May.

The Senior class has voted to leave the writing of the words and music of the class ode open to competition.

The Junior class has come to life, regardless of what has been said of in the past. It will, in the near future, issue schedules for the coming basketball season.

The Senior dance will probably come on the 29th of January, 1915. There is some discussion as to the orchestra, Richards and Nash's being the possibilities. The dance committee is: Miss Allen, Miss Galvin, Miss Loud, Almon Dean and Kenneth Martin.

A rather quiet meeting of the Literary Society was held this week, the subject, "Equal Suffrage," of the interclass debate being discussed.

The school letter, the "W," was awarded to the following, in the hall on Wednesday: Basketball—Almon Dean '15, Cornelius Condric '15; base-ball, 1914—Captain Vincent Gorman '15, Frank Vender '15, Ralph Talbot '15, Lewis Callahan '17, and Frank Mauro '17; Football—Cornelius Condric '15, Almon Dean '15, William Rand '15, Ralph Talbot '15, Edward Bates '15, Charles Palmer '17, Warren Clark '16, Philip Haviland '16, Wallace Whittle '17, Parker Whittle '17, Louis Borileghi '18, Dean Newton '17, John Hughes '17, Loring Tirrell '15 and Frank Vender '15.

In the interclass basketball series on Friday, the Seniors walked away with the Juniors, 39 to 14, and the Freshies had but little trouble defeating the Sophs, 12 to 7.

135-pd. class—Ovadjan, Clapp, defeated Fielding, Beverly, in 10m.; Zeoli, Clapp, defeated Paradise, Beverly, in 9m. 30s.; Ovadjan, Clapp, defeated Torrey, Beverly in 15m.

148-pd. class—Churchill, Beverly, defeated Cann, Clapp, in 7m.

158-pd. class—Price, Clapp, defeated Rand, Beverly, in 15m.

Heavyweight class—Warren, Clapp, defeated Ozol, Beverly, in 10m.

In Memoriam.

At a special meeting of Div. 9, A. O. H. held on Dec. 13, 1914, the following resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God to remove by death, our beloved pastor, Rev. James W. Allison, Past Chaplain of Div. 9, A. O. H., and a respected citizen, from the scene of his temporal labors, the members of Div. 9, A. O. H., who sat under his ministry, and profited by his advice and example, are desirous of testifying their respect for his memory and expressing their earnest and affectionate sympathy with the sister and relatives of our good pastor and loyal friend: There fore be it

RESOLVED, That we condole with the sister and relatives of our deceased pastor in the hour of trial and affliction and devoutly commend them to the keeping of Him who looks with pitying eye upon the affliction.

RESOLVED, That in our natural sorrow for the loss of a faithful and beloved pastor, we find consolation in the belief that it is well with him for whom we mourn.

RESOLVED, That while we deeply sympathize with those who were bound to him by the nearest and dearest ties, we share with them the hope of a reunion in that better world where there are no partings, and where bliss ineffable forbids a tear.

RESOLVED, That these resolutions be transmitted to the sister and relatives of the deceased as a token of our respect and veneration for the Christian character of a good man gone to his reward, and of the interest felt by the members of Div. 9, A. O. H. whom he loved and cherished.

South—Robertson.

A pretty home wedding was solemnized last Wednesday evening when Miss Ellen Robertson daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robertson of Weymouth Landing became the bride of Theodore South, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. South of Shaw street, East Braintree.

The ceremony was performed in the new home of the couple on Quincy avenue East Braintree, by Rev. Albert T. Watson, pastor of the Union church of Weymouth and East Braintree.

A short reception with a wedding luncheon followed.

Old South Church Notes.

Christmas with varied observance and cordial invitation!
Next Sunday morning worship at 10:30 with sermon by the pastor: "The Incarnate Christ." Special music by the choir and appropriate church decorations. At 6 o'clock, the concert of the Sunday school aided by the choir, omitting the C. E. meeting and gospel service. On Wednesday the annual festival with afternoon social for the children, a free supper for young and old, in charge of the men, followed by the entertainment and the distribution of presents. On Thursday evening the usual meeting will be omitted and bands of the young people plan to go about and sing Christmas carols to the shut-ins.

Miss Mary Pinney of Adabagen Turkey gave an interesting address before the W. B. M. auxiliary, which was entertained by the president, Mrs. A. O. Crawford last Friday afternoon.

Universalist Church Notes.

Next Sunday we will celebrate the great Christian holiday of Christmas with special music by our vested chorus choir, an appropriate sermon by the pastor, and in the evening a dramatic reading of "The Sign of the Cross." We cordially welcome all to our services and urge the children of the Sabbath School to be present at the morning service.

At 10:30 sermon by Mr. Rose, topic "Is There A Santa Claus?" Under the direction of Miss Deane the following anthems will be given: "Where Is He That Is Born?" by Lee. "Holy Night, Peaceful Night" by Gruber sung by the Male Quartet. "Away In A Manger" by Knight. "Holy Night" by Prehl.

Sabbath School at 12.
Lecture at 7. A dramatic reading, not illustrated, by Miss Edna Spear of Emerson college, "The Sign of the Cross." Silver offering.

Report of Weymouth Visiting Nurse Association.

The Board of Management of the Weymouth Visiting Nurse Association held its seventh monthly meeting at G. A. R. Hall, East Weymouth, Dec. 14, with twenty members present. The nurse assumed her duties Sept. 1, 1914. During the quarter ending Nov. 30 202 calls have been made. Her work has been very satisfactory, and many complimentary letters have been received in appreciation of the way in which she handled her cases. A large number of donations of money and necessary articles have been sent to the supply committee from individuals and societies, and we are now in a position to take care of all cases. The present membership of the association is five hundred.

Efficiency of Arc Lamps.

The use of arc lamps under high atmospheric pressure has been reported by Professor Lummer of Breslau, to give great increase in efficiency. Under 20 amperes, the temperature of the arc was raised from about 4,500 to 7,500 per cent, and the brightness increased to 18 times the ordinary.

Wonderful Toys

Many Customers Have Told Us That We Have the Best Toy Display in the City

But this fact does not interfere with our service. Every detail is arranged so as to make your shopping more pleasant. The toys are all arranged in rotation as they are related to each other. This permits quick shopping and every one is plainly priced. Efficient salespeople do their share and a prompt delivery service does the rest. The toys and dolls are very economically priced, comparing quality, and the assortment is most complete. One of the things very noticeable this year is that the toys are taking an instructive turn, which makes them all the more valuable for the children.

A Silver Tea Caddy

By SOPHY F. GOULD

HE was a frail-looking little girl, who had been self-supporting for over three years, since her mother died, and was tired now, as she walked through the street crowded with shopgirls like herself.

Listlessly, in order for a minute to avoid the onrush of hurrying humans, she paused before a shop window where antiques of all kinds were grouped attractively.

There was little in the window to interest a mite of a girl earning a paltry $6 a week, yet of a sudden her eyes, a moment before so tired, lighted excitedly, and a casual observer might have noticed how exquisitely beautiful they were. The tired line of her mouth also relaxed, and hopefully she stepped closer to the plate glass and peered for a long, concentrated moment at a silver tea caddy of quaint design. After a second's hesitation she opened the door and walked bravely into the little shop.

"The tea caddy?" she asked of the woman who greeted her inquiringly. "How much is it?"

"The little silver one?" The woman looked her surprise, as she noted the shabby black coat and much-worn skirt. "You wanted to buy it?" she asked kindly, for something in the girl's eyes made her know she was in earnest. "It is $25."

"Twenty-five dollars!" the girl gasped, and as suddenly as it had come the brightness left her eyes. "Twenty-five," she repeated. "I'm afraid I could never afford that." She gripped her pay envelope firmly and, turning, walked out of the shop.

In her tiny room, as she cooked her meager dinner over the gas plate, and later, when lying wide awake in her narrow bed, she thought of the beautiful tea caddy. She thought until it became a cherished ideal, vested with wonderful scenes among the great people of the world.

The following day she neglected her lunch, and hurried to the shop to once more view the wonderful caddy.

When she entered the woman greeted her warmly, for the expression in her eyes had proved haunting to the woman all the past night.

"Did you really want to buy the caddy?" she asked, as she handed it to the girl, "for if you do—"

"I must buy it," she interrupted, as she took it reverently in her two hands, "but I can't pay the money all at once." She hesitated. "How much could you pay?" The woman suddenly understood the girl's need, and a great kindness came to her. "Perhaps we could come to terms."

"I have $2 that I have saved, and I think I can spare 50 cents each week. I only make $6," she added, apologetically.

"Six dollars!" the woman gasped, as the enormity of the girl's project came to her. "You may have it at your own terms," she said impulsively. "Oh!" For a moment the girl held it to her breast, then she handed the money without regret to the woman.

In the days that followed the woman became very fond of the girl, for she came often to gaze with awe upon the silver caddy of quaint design, and in the short visits the woman learned to know what a difference an ideal can make in a life. In watching the girl's love for the thing that kept her poorer than she need have been the woman found her own life broadening.

On Christmas eve a young man persistently tried to buy the caddy, until the woman finally told him the story of its sale. He listened in wonder, and then asked for the name of the girl, who seemed so great a marvel that he wanted his mother to see and help her.

The same evening, after the young man had left, the girl made her final payment, and with a wild joy throbbing in her heart carried the tea caddy home, and with it a beautiful bunch of holly, a festive touch from the woman.

She had pinched hard to save the 50 cents each week, but her reward was great, and worth the happiness the ideal had always given her.

It was again Christmas eve, and a dainty woman, wrapped in a soft fur coat, opened the door of the little shop, and with extended hand came to the woman. "Merry Christmas!" she exclaimed. "Don't you remember me?"

In the deep, winsome eyes there was something familiar, and suddenly the woman threw her arms about the girl, and peering over her head espied the man.

"We have just been married," he explained. "My mother found her for me, and we wanted to come to thank you for what you have done."

"I have missed your example so," the woman held her very close, laughing softly through her tears, for they were suddenly all so happy, and it was Christmas, for outside faraway bells were ringing.

Homemade Gifts Acceptable to Men

SELECTING gifts for one's menfolks is perplexing to the Christmas shopper; their needs are few, compared to those of women and children. Men like gifts that add something to their comfort and they like convenient things. They especially appreciate gifts made by the donor, and this year, there are some novelties for them which are not difficult to make at home.

A basket, which will do either for a den or a bedroom, is made very easily. The materials selected for it depend upon the purposes for which it is to be used. If it is intended for a convenient receptacle for ties, collar buttons, pins, needles, thread and various odds and ends, it is to be made of cretonne, brown linen or figured silk and finished with ribbon. But if for a den to hold pipes, matches, cigars, tobacco, etc., it is to be made of thin leather or heavy silk and finished with silver or gold braid and cord.

A collar box covered with cretonne and suspended by ribbon hangers is a reliable gift sure of a welcome. A round pasteboard box of suitable size is needed over which the covering is stretched and either pasted or sewed.

For small remembrance tokens flat sachets of crepe paper carrying lavender or spicy perfumes in an oblong bit of cotton batting, are tied with narrow strips of ribbons.

In these exciting times almost everyone finds solace and entertainment where there is good music. Some prefer classics, others ballads, while the whole nation seems to have gone wild over the modern dance selections.

In addition to our stock of new and second hand Pianos, I wish to call your attention to our

Talking Machine Department

Here you will find a very acceptable gift all the way from $15 to $250, and you can have your choice of either

Edison or Victor Machines of the very latest type, latest records, etc.

Every year at Christmas time the factories are unable to supply the demand for these goods, so place your order early and we will deliver any time you say. Remember, we are prepared to meet all the so-called "special offers" and "bargain assortments" that you read of in the papers.

Come in and hear a demonstration of one of the latest machines and you will realize what a wonderful improvement there has been made.

I still have a few second-hand pianos left at special bargain prices.

ADVERTISE IN THE GAZETTE

Simpson's Christmas

By KENNETH RAND

"FOOLS!" said Mr. Simpson. "Idiot!" he added. "Even if they are my own relatives!" he supplemented with a dogged shake of his partially bald head.

The souvenir postal card which called forth his opprobrious language had just arrived.

"Look at this, will you?" He turned the card, over in his fingers.

"Peace on earth, good will to men!" Mr. Simpson read the inscription. Then he turned it over.

"We wait you with us day after tomorrow for a good, old-fashioned family reunion around the festal Christmas board!" he read in three lines of handwriting on the other side of the card.

"There you are!" he exclaimed wrathfully. "There you are, doggone it!"

He waved the card violently around in the air at arm's length as he continued muttering.

"They send you one of these paper dollies from a madhouse dining room," went on Mr. Simpson to the listening walls of the room of which he was the only occupant—"with 'Peace on earth, good-will to men' on one side, and on the other an invitation to take a six-hour trip out into the slushy country for a rotten meal with a gang of people who drive me crazy at the thought of being related to, every time I see 'em."

"Here I am," he said, regretfully shaking his head over his hard lot in life, "here I am, planning that I'll be comfortable for at least one Christmas, anyway. Family away in Florida for the winter; me here all alone, to do just as I like—and now along comes this—this summons to spend a day being miserable!"

Suddenly Mr. Simpson sat up straight in his chair.

"By jerry!" he ejaculated suddenly. "By jerry!—what's to hinder me from being the martyr in the cause? What's to prevent me from putting an end to this dad-dinged practice—huh?"

"Suppose I don't go to this Christmas reunion? Suppose I stay home here and enjoy my day of peace on earth in the way I want to? What will happen?"

"Why, next year there won't be a single, solitary soul of my relations that will get together in an affair of this kind. I'll have pointed the way—I'll be the example they've been waiting to follow away from custom—and, by jerry, I'll bet you the thing will spread, too!

"And I'll be responsible for it!" added Mr. Simpson joyously—"if I lay away, just this once, from this Christmas party I've been invited to!

"And think of the good I'm doing to other people, too!" he added. "How grateful the public will be to me for pointing out the way to their own release from this idiotic custom of sacrificing themselves!"

"Why, I shouldn't wonder if there would be a statue erected to me as the first man who stayed away from a family reunion at this holiday! I can see it now, labeled: 'The People's Santa Claus—He Gave Us What We Wanted Most for Christmas!'"

And so, in pleasant reflection upon the perfection of his plan as he had carried it out, Mr. Simpson's thoughts ran until Christmas morning.

It was Mr. Simpson's idea to eat his Christmas dinner, ordered in from a nearby restaurant, in the solitude of his own home, bare as it was of his family.

At one o'clock the waiter brought in the heavy tray. Mr. Simpson superintended the arrangement of its contents on the table in the dining room.

And it was just one-fifteen, as he stood rubbing his hands at the prospect of eating alone on Christmas for the first time in his life—when the doorbell rang.

"Doggone it!" burst out Mr. Simpson. "What's that?"

For a moment he decided not to open the door. Then he changed his mind and went downstairs, two at a time. It might be some bad news from his absent family.

He threw open the portal—and staggered back into the hall.

And after him trooped a gayly shouting and laughing party of sixteen—Mr. Simpson's relatives!

"We came to eat our Christmas dinner here!" cried one of his aunts.

"You poor man—we knew you'd be all alone!" gushed a first cousin.

"We didn't want you to eat your Christmas dinner all by yourself," chortled another female relation, "so we brought ours here in baskets to eat with you!"

Mr. Simpson looked over the crowd still streaming into his front hall. His lips pursed tightly as he led the way to the dining room.

But all he said, unintentionally to his unexpected guests, was:

"Well, I guess they won't put up that statue of me as Santa Claus this year!"

Caleb's Conversion

By HAZEL OSWALD

IT WAS Christmas eve, and Caleb Churton, the money-lender, sat in his great dining room, surrounded by all that makes for luxurious living.

"So Jack preferred his artist's work to this," he mused, chuckling contemptuously while he half spoke the words.

Ten years before, his elder brother had told their father that he was not cut out for a Shylock, that he preferred to get a living by pleasanter means than his fellow beings' flesh and blood, and had gone out into the world cursed by the father and laughed at by his brother.

It was three years later—and 12 months after he had announced his marriage to a fellow artist's daughter—that old Churton died, leaving all the business to Caleb, and not mentioning Jack Churton by so much as a single word in his will.

To do him justice, Caleb had rebelled against this as much as he could, but he had found out that his brother was able to keep his head above water, and, after offering him a share—only to be indignantly refused—Caleb applied himself to the task of doubling his father's wealth.

All these things went through his brain as he sat by his fire. Of a sudden a thought struck him.

"I will go and parade my wealth before them—will make the wife bitterly envious and Jack sorry that he ever refused me!"

With this amiable intention he rose, ordered his automobile to be brought out, and was soon whirling toward Jack's home.

Suddenly the auto stopped, and he got out, telling the chauffeur to return in an hour, not longer.

"If I am finished before, I can spend the time somehow," he thought.

Up the steps of the great apartment he went until he came to a door labeled 42. Then he knocked, and getting no answer, entered very quietly, finding the door not locked.

He looked round the tiny hall, and then stepped into the first room.

"Are you Santa Claus?"

The timid little query stopped him in his wanderings, and he looked down to his feet to see a sunny-haired, blue-eyed little mite gravely regarding him.

"But no, you can't be Santa Claus, for he's ever so old, and has got a white beard and a long coat, and a big bag full of toys, and comes down the chimney, and doesn't come till after I've gone to bed, and—"

She paused in her list of details for want of breath, and, the first time for many years, Churton laughed heartily.

"You queer little mite," he said, "I'm not Santy. Who are you?"

"I'm Gladys Churton, and I'm not queer. I'm very well, thank you."

"So you are Gladys," he said.

"Where are your father and mother?"

"They've gone out to buy some things for me, and they told me to be ever so good. They will be back soon."

Churton looked around him. It was so pleasant, so happy, evidently, and the home he had left seemed to lack a great deal. He sighed.

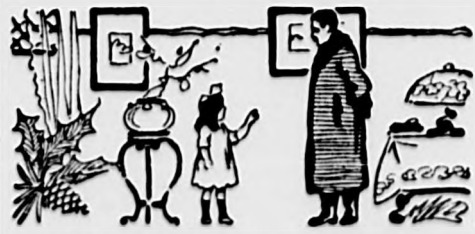

"What's the matter, strange man?"

"Nothing, dear."

"But there must be something. I always go like that when I want a doll, and mamma won't buy it for me. Is your little girl naughty?"

"I haven't got a little girl."

"Poor strange man!" with a clouding of her sunny face. Then, suddenly, "look out, here come mamma and dad! Let's hide."

"All right, dear, tell me where."

Hastily she drew him behind a curtain, and followed.

"Where's my girlie?" in a clear, happy voice.

The mite ran out and struggled in her mother's arms.

"You don't know who else is here," she said importantly. "There's a strange man, and—poor dear!—he hasn't got a little girl, and he isn't happy."

She ran back to the curtain and dragged out a somewhat dusty, shame-faced individual.

"I came to see you—felt a bit lonely— Hang it all! Jack, I want a taste of home life, and escape from the eternal accounts. No," as the clear, blue eyes of the baby were fixed on him, "that's a lie. I came here to show off my wealth, and to make you envious; but your little ray of sunshine here took the conceit out of me. Hang it, man, take me in, for pity's sake, and let me be human this Christmas-tide. The money can go. I must stay here."

When Churton's man came back, he was told that the master would not be home for some days.

Dainty Slippers of Ribbon for Christmas

ANOTHER pretty gift made of plain ribbon is pictured in the pair of boudoir slippers. These are made in all sizes and colors and are appropriate for all the feminine members of the family from grandma down to the baby. Ribbon about two and one-half inches wide is needed to make them. It is sewed to insoles of leather with elderdown on one side (or quilted satin). These soles are bought ready made and cost very little.

In sewing the ribbon to the soles it is pulled slightly across the toe and joined in a felled seam in the back. Above the heel it is gathered on an elastic cord to hold the slipper in place. A little fullness is gathered in at the toe where three small rosettes provide a finishing touch.

Sashes and Girdles
Among Best of Gifts

NO ONE need remain long in doubt as to what to get for a maid or matron in this day of the vogue of girdles and sashes. A girdeless gown is hardly to be found and whether for the street, the home, or evening wear, ribbons are used to form the circlet that enfolds the waist or terminates the bodice. There are any number of styles in girdles and sashes to choose among made of every variety of weave known to the loom and every color and combination of colors that has been thought out.

A girdle of wide plaid ribbon, finished with a sprightly bow of two loops and two ends, is shown in the picture. It makes a Christmas gift that will delight every woman who likes to keep abreast with the mode. The girdle portion is boned to spread the ribbon and hold it in place without pins. The bow is simply tied and may be untied and the length wrapped about the figure if preferred.

A sash of dotted satin ribbon, designed for a party gown, may be used as a model for making up any of the soft fancy ribbons, suited to dressy wear. It requires ribbon about four or five inches wide, of which three lengths are sewed together to form the girdle. This is boned at the sides and back to hold it in place and fastened in the back with hooks and eyes. Over the fastening a flat bow of three loops and one end is placed with the loops lying lengthwise on the figure.

Narrow ribbons are sewed together to form wide girdles and ribbons of moderate width are bordered with black velvet ribbon, from an inch to two inches wide. The flowered Dresden and rich, brightly colored brocades are very effectively bordered in this way. Sometimes narrow shaded or flowered ribbons are joined by means of narrow velvet ribbons, a half inch in width. The edges of the velvet ribbon overlap those of the satin ribbon and are machine stitched down. Girdles made in this way are fastened with hooks and eyes and the fastening concealed by flat bows of two loops without ends.

TELLING SANTA CLAUS HIS WANTS

EMOTIONAL VALUE OF DAY

Christmas Spirit Almost Universally Felt, But What It Is Remains a Mystery to Many.

The emotional value of Christmas may be said to be universally felt. Something happens at Christmas that, if only for a day or two, does the whole world good. What that something is remains for many a mystery. A number of persons who feel the renewing impulse are like Faust when the notes of the Easter song arrest his suicidal intent; they take and enjoy the moment's deliverance and continue to regard the source of the boon as nothing more than mythology made potent through human associations. Others are moved through superstitious fears; they approach the great season with consciences crowded with uncomfortable memories; Marley's ghost is after them, but, unlike Scrooge, their new heart is only for Christmas week. Another group simply fall in with an ancient custom and are surprised, and indeed pleased, when the dry bones of their unbelieving minds come together, take on flesh, and begin to live. A vast multitude meet the great day with buoyant expectation, take with thanks its new happiness, return to their work in this exalted mood, and ask no questions about cause and effect. A few philosophize on the phenomenon, and they are willing to stake their lives on the substantial truth of their insight.—George A. Gordon, in Atlantic Monthly.

Don't and Do in Holiday Fire Caution

Do not decorate your Christmas tree with paper, cotton or flimsy materials.
Do not use cotton to represent snow.
Do not permit children to light candles.
Do not leave matches within reach of the children.
Do not place Christmas tree near window curtains or gas fixtures.
Use metallic tinsel and non-inflammable decorations only.
Use asbestos fiber to represent snow.
Set the tree upon a substantial stand.
A house of merriment is better than a house of mourning.
Have an extinguisher or a few buckets full of water near the tree, ready for use in an emergency.

When and Why.

"Do you go to Sunday school now, Georgie?" inquired Georgie's uncle.
"Yes; Christmas is comin'!"
"Don't you go except just before Christmas?"
"Yes; I go just before the summer picnic, too."

Weymouth Board of Trade

EDWARD W. HUNT, President

PRIMARY meeting held Jan. 30, 1908. Meeting called to order by Frederick Humphrey, and a committee chosen to prepare Constitution and By-Laws. Formal meeting was held on Feb. 6, 1908, and organization perfected under the name of "Weymouth Board of Trade" for the purpose of promoting the business interests of Weymouth. The following officers were elected: W. P. Denbroeder, president; W. M. Tirrell, secretary; M. P. Garey, Treasurer. Work accomplished—Organization of Weymouth Industrial Association which has procured and opened up a large tract of land in East Weymouth for building purposes. Also built the Geo. E. Keith Co. Factory No. 8.

Discussed town warrants and aided and expedited business at town meetings. Secured improvement in rail road and street car service. Father of "Clean-up Day," and a large contributor to the work. Present officers: E. W. Hunt, president; W. H. Pratt, secretary; Geo. E. Bicknell, treasurer; with an executive committee and several sub-committees to promote specific work. There is still, and always will be, much for a Board of Trade to do in Weymouth. There is much undeveloped land which might be made of use. There is our long shore front which might be lined with marine and mercantile industries. All of these have been discussed and plans have been made for their development. There is the play-ground and bathing place problem which the Board of Trade now has under consideration. The board of Trade needs a more general interest in its work from all parts of the town. It needs a membership of five hundred live men to take hold and make Weymouth a Busier Better and Bigger town. Will you be one of that five hundred. If so, cut out the application attached to this adv. fill it out and forward it to either of the following committee on membership: M. E. Hawes, W. W. Pratt, Peter F. Hughes.

TO THE WEYMOUTH BOARD OF TRADE:—

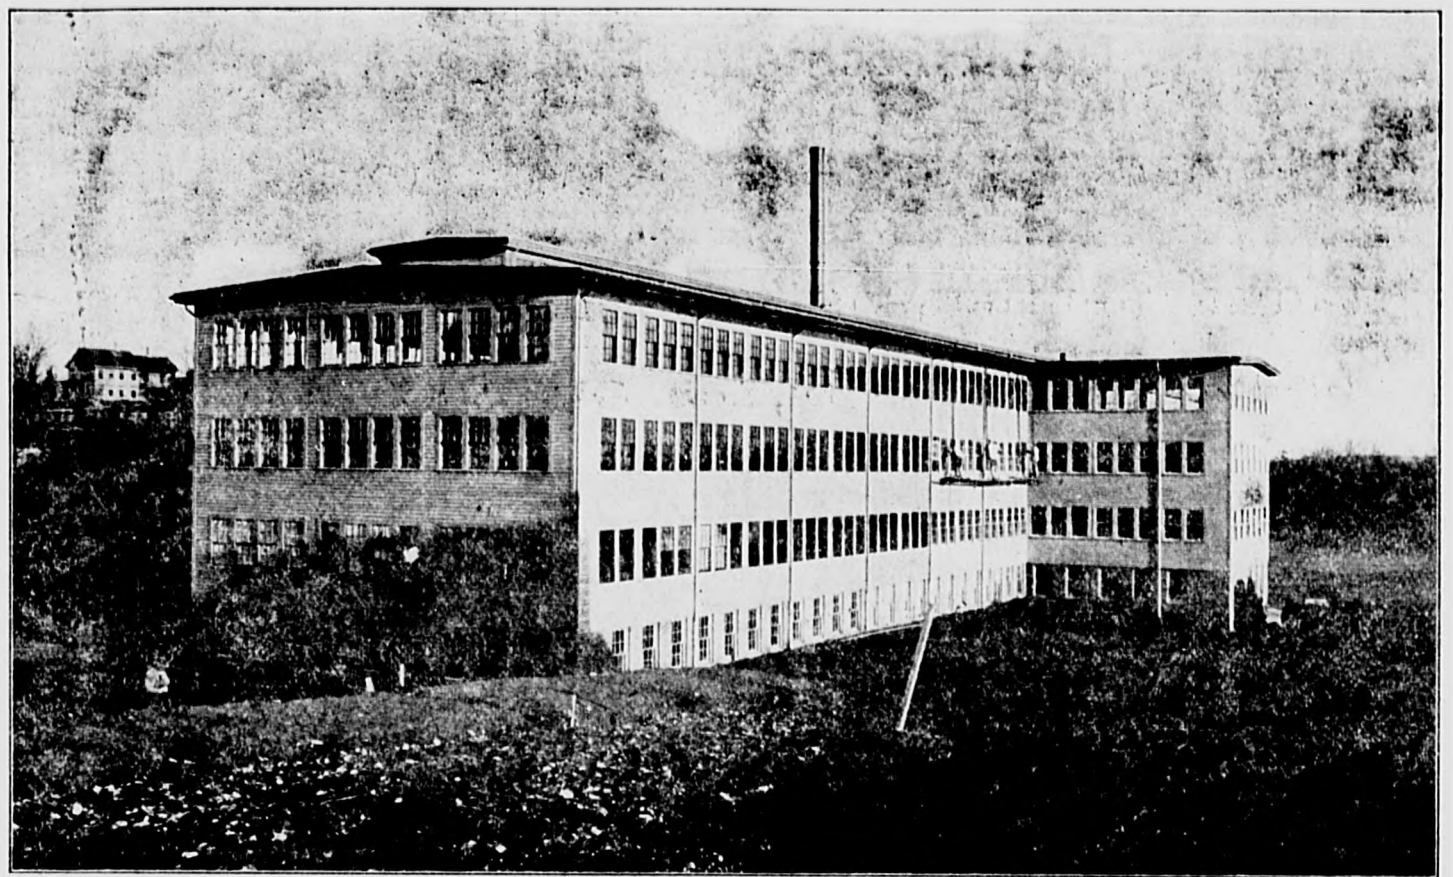

Being in sympathy with your work in promoting the interests of Weymouth, I desire to become a member of your organization and join in the work in which you are engaged.

Accompanying this application please find $5.00 for membership fee.

Yours respectfully,

MISTLETOE HISTORY

Gathering of Plant Sacred Rite in Druidical Religious Festivals.

Also Considered a Potent Remedy for Ills, a Belief Which Still Exists in Some of the Remote Places of Europe.

WE decorate our homes with sprays of mistletoe at Christmas time, but few of us know the history of it as a Yuletide symbol. Pretty girls are kissed under it and a great deal of fun and nonsense is carried on apropos of it, but no one stops to think of how ancient a decoration it is or how sacred it was once thought to be.

Almost everybody has a vague knowledge that the Druids of old had something to do with the gathering of mistletoe, but just what that something was is not clear to the average mind.

The fact is that the ancient Celts in their druidical religion had two great festivals, one in June and the other in December, the latter being equivalent to our Christmas. In both of these great festivals the gathering of the mistletoe was a sacred rite.

Pliny in his "Natural History" describes the ceremony. Speaking of the Druids' worship of the oak, he says: "They believe that whatever grows on these trees is sent from heaven and is a sign that the tree has been chosen by the god himself. The mistletoe is very rarely to be met with, but when it is found they gather it with solemn ceremony. This they do especially on the sixth day of the moon, because by the sixth day the moon has plenty of vigor and has not run half its course."

"After the preparations have been made for a sacrifice and a feast under the tree they hail it as the universal healer and bring to the spot two white bulls whose horns have never been bound before. A priest clad in a white robe climbs the tree and with a golden sickle cuts the mistletoe, which is caught in a white cloth. Then they sacrifice the victims, praying that God may make his own gift to prosper with those upon whom he has bestowed it."

"They believe that a potion prepared from mistletoe will increase their flocks and that the plant is a remedy against all poison."

It was believed to be a remedy for many ills, and this belief is still to be found in many remote places in Europe. In Holstein, for example, the mistletoe is regarded as a healing remedy for wounds, and in Lacane, France, it is always administered by the native people as an antidote for poison.

In the northeast of Scotland people used to cut withes of mistletoe at the March full moon; these they bent in circles and kept for a year to cure hectic fevers and other troubles. In some parts of Germany the mistletoe is especially esteemed as a remedy for the ailments of children, who sometimes wear it hung around the neck as an amulet.

In Sweden on Midsummer eve mistletoe is diligently sought after, the people believing it to be possessed of many mystic qualities, and that if a sprig of it is attached to the ceiling of the dwelling house, the horse's stall or the cow's crib, the trolls will then be powerless to injure either man or beast. Branches of the plant are commonly seen in farm houses hanging from the ceiling to protect the dwellings from all harm, but especially from fire, and persons afflicted with the falling sickness think they can ward off all attacks of the malady by carrying about with them a knife which has a handle of mistletoe.

Like their Swedish neighbors, many German peasants consider the mistletoe a powerful charm against evil spirits. A similar belief seems to have lingered among the Romans, whose religion at a very early date was somewhat similar to that of the Druids. When Aeneas descended into Hades he gathered to protect himself from the infernal powers a branch of mistletoe, which Vergil calls the golden bough.

To Melt Paraffin.

Take a large empty tomato can or any other large can; cut it off from the top all around about two inches from the bottom with a can opener. It is large enough for any jar and deep enough to paraffin a little way past the cover of the jar if there is enough paraffin in when melted to fill can three-fourths full. It can be put right on the stove and the paraffin melts very quickly.

If Grandpapa Were Santa Claus!

If Grandpapa were Santa Claus, how happy we would be! When toyshop toil was finished he would take us on each knee. He'd tell us all his secrets and he'd name the pretty toys He'd made and kept in hiding for the other girls and boys.

We have a real, live Grandpapa! He visits us each year, And he is quite a bosom friend of Santa Claus, I hear. Although he owns no reindeer, and of playthings no great store— If Grandpapa were Santa Claus, we could not love him more!

ANNUAL COSTUME PARTY.

Mrs. Polley's Childrens Dancing Class Entertains Large Gathering of Friends and Relatives Last Saturday Afternoon.

A large crowd of fancy dancing lovers attended the annual costume party given in the Masonic Temple, East Weymouth last Saturday afternoon by the young pupils of Mrs. Louise Merritt Polley's dancing class.

Members of the class, in costume, gave a fine program of all styles of dancing. The costumes were especially attractive and the dancing was very pleasing indeed.

Special features included exhibitions of the latest dances by Miss Mae Allen and Morrill Allen, solo dancing by Miss Esther Leonard and new steps by Miss White and Miss Linnehan.

The matrons were Mrs. Fred Alden, Mrs. Charles Abbott and Mrs. J. H. Libbey.

The ushers were Channing Libby and John Alden.

Mrs. Louise Merritt Polley directed the entire party.

CLAPP MEMORIAL WINS.

East Weymouth Team Easily Disposes of Red Men A. C. of Quincy Last Saturday Night.

The Clapp Memorial basketball team had little trouble in disposing of the Red Men A. C. of Quincy at the C. M. A. gym in East Weymouth last Saturday night. The score was 54 to 27.

The Clapp forward pair, "Pappy" Wall and Riley, carried the Quincy backs off of their feet, Wall scoring eight baskets and Riley four. Bumpus at center for Clapp also played a fast game, getting eight baskets from the floor. His opponent, Summers, got ten goals however and kept the East Weymouth boy hustling all the time.

The two teams lined up as follows:
C. M. A.: Wall rf, Riley lf, Bumpus c, Nolan Warren lb, Fraher and Baker rb.

Red Men: Martin lb, Canoll rb, Summers c, Spronarch lf, Field rf.

The summary:
Score, Clapp Memorial 54, Red Men A. C. 27. Goals from floor, Wall 8, Riley 4, Bumpus 8, Baker 3, Warren 2, Nolan, Canoll 2, Summers 10, Field. Goals from fouls, Nolan 2, Summers. Referee, Fabyan. Umpire, Jones. Scorer, Sampson. Timer, Bates. Time, 20 minute halves.

CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Heffernan Observe 45th Anniversary of Wedded Life With Family Gathering.

On December 19, 1869, William T. Heffernan and Miss Jennette Sanderson were united in marriage in Braintree.

Last Saturday night, forty five years later Mr. and Mrs. Heffernan observed the 45th anniversary with a family gathering at their home on Grant street East Weymouth.

Nine children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Heffernan and eight of that number are now living.

Mr. Heffernan was born in the Fort Hill section of Boston on December 28, 1838. He enlisted in the navy on April 2, 1862 and served for over a year on the gunboat Mahasha. He received an honorable discharge in Baltimore. He is a saddle and harness maker by trade.

Mrs. Heffernan was born in Scotland in 1846 and has been a resident of this town since 1864.

Where Steadiness is Requisite.

Town Business.

The Selectmen are in receipt of a summons to appear before the court at Dedham the first week in February to defend a claim of Hannah R. Abbott for $15,000 damage received in falling over the roof of a tree in the side walk on Chard street and at the same time a suit of her husband Charles H. Abbott for $10,000 for loss of her services. The matter has been referred to the town council.

Geo. L. Swasey of Webb street files a complaint of a condition on that street by which water flows from the street onto his premises as should be diverted to other channels.

Chief Pratt and Engineer Worster appeared before the board asking for a readjustment of pay to the firemen paying them to the 1st of January instead of extending the time to May 1st as it now exists.

Permit was granted to Mary L. Chandler to hold dancing parties in Odd Fellows hall South Weymouth.

The attention of the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. E. will be called to a condition at the East Weymouth station. The 5.16 p. m. train and sometimes others are very long and when stopped extend far beyond the platform or lights and invite serious accidents to passengers getting off and on the trains.

The managers of the Christmas festival to be given in Washington square on Christmas eve, asked for aid in their work by a contribution from the Tufts lecture fund, claiming the payment to be of a historical nature and $50 was voted by the selectmen to aid in the work.

Mrs. Jackson Bates at Rest.

Mrs. Jackson Bates, widow of Jackson Bates, passed away last Saturday at the home of her son, J. Otis Bates of Charles street, East Weymouth at the age of 77 years. She has been ill for some time.

Deceased was born in Weymouth and was the daughter of Otis and Betsy Smith.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon from the home of Mr. Bates. Rev. Melvin Nash of Hanover officiated and Mrs. William Hodges sang. Burial was in the Village cemetery in Weymouth. The bearers were four nephews of the deceased, C. H. Smith, Elmer A. Smith, Fred V. Garey and Alpheus Smith.

Profitable C. E. Work.

Last Friday evening the Christian Endeavor society of the First Congregational church, East Weymouth held their monthly social in the church under the supervision of the social committee, Miss Mildred W. Newcomb, chairman.

Refreshments were served and all pronounced the event a great success not only socially but also on account of the fact that the members exemplified their true Christian Endeavor work by preparing two large boxes of games and books, one of which was sent to the Boston Post for distribution and the other to a contagious ward in one of Boston's hospitals where the poorer class of the people in Boston are cared for and who would undoubtedly spend a Christmas void of all Christmas gifts except for the thoughts of those who enjoy the greater opportunities of this life and are willing to share them with others.

The real Christmas spirit of Christmas was the most profitable thing taken away according to the sentiments expressed by those present.

Weymouth Choral Society.

The Weymouth Choral Society under the direction of James W. Calderwood has for the season been considering and rehearsing "A Tale of Old Japan" by Alfred Noyes, music by Coleridge-Taylor and will present the same in Fogg's opera house about the middle of January.

In addition to home talent several soloists, male and female, of high standing have been secured and a treat for music lovers is in store.

Trying to Suit.

Old Gentleman—"Now, what are all you children fighting and making such a noise for?" Little Boy—"Please, sir, the landlord gave us a dime each to fight and make a noise. He has got one of his houses let and the people complained that the neighborhood was too quiet."—Stray Stories.

Communal Life of Ants.

The most complete communal life is that of ants. They make other ants serve as slaves. Some of them have developed into door-tenders. They have hard heads, with which they plug up entrances. Friendly ants announce their presence by stroking the heads in a peculiar way, giving the password, as it were, and then are admitted. These ants even raise a type of mushroom on which they live.

Willard J. Dunbar Sets Up Another Mark Along the Trail.

WILLARD J. DUNBAR

The Yuletide of 1839 brought to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Laban Dunbar of North Weymouth the 11th and last of their family of children. This last was a boy and was shortly christened Willard Jones Dunbar.

One by one father, mother, brothers and sisters of Willard J. have crossed the "Silent River" leaving him as the only survivor of the family and on Monday evening last, hale and hearty, the 75th anniversary of his birth was celebrated at his home, Jackson square East Weymouth.

Mr. Dunbar can count his friends by the hundreds, but of necessity the gathering was limited and yet none the less enjoyed by those in attendance.

The dining room is not a banquet hall yet 15 people found room at a well spread table and for a while enjoyed the discussion of a well served menu from soups to ices and coffee with Mrs. Charlie W. Dunbar chief of the cuisine.

The scene changed from dining room to other rooms and an evening's enjoyment followed with music by Oliver Burrell Mrs. and Sadie Plaisted, piano solos by Miss Elmer Shaw and Master Francis Dunbar, photograph selections and popular war time songs by a strong chorus.

Tales like those at the "Way Side Inn" were told by E. W. Hunt, A. P. Worthen and others and the guests departed leaving behind as a reminder to Mr. Dunbar a fine silk umbrella and leather wallet inscribed Willard J. Dunbar.

Monday Club.

Again on account of a severe storm the members of the Monday club were the losers in not being able to attend a most interesting and instructive lecture held at the High school hall, Monday afternoon, Dec. 21.

It was reported that the committee realized fifty dollars for the Belgian Relief fund from their ticket sale.

After the regular routine business Mrs. Edwin R. Sampson introduced Winthrop Packard, secretary and treasurer of the Massachusetts Audubon society, who spoke on the "Welfare of Wild Birds," illustrated with the reflectoscope. He showed many beautiful pictures of well known birds, their nests and young. The object is to so interest his audience that each one will do all in his power for their conservation. Folk lore handed down says our ancestors set their music to words and the song of the Doctor bird, the robin, says "Kill him, cure him, give him physic." The indigo hunting says, "Dear, dear, dear, who is it?" The Crackers in their birds, "Laziness will kill you," and so on.

Scatter grain, "scratch-feed," crumbs, suet or food of any kind near your home and in summer furnish water and they will more than repay you by the number of insects and eggs they will destroy. If all the birds were destroyed we should soon be so overrun by insects that our trees would all die.

The afternoon was in charge of the Conservation committee, Mrs. Arthur Burr, chairman.

At the board meeting two new members were admitted to the club.

Christmas at Trinity Church.

Trinity Episcopal church will begin the observance of Christmas at 10.30 a. m., Christmas Day. There will be service with special music, Holy Communion and a sermon by Rev. William Hyde on "The Angels' Christmas Hymn." At 7.45 Christmas night the Christmas festival of the Sunday school will be held. This will consist of a Christmas service with the singing of carols, recitations by the children, an address by the Rector, and the distribution of presents from the tree. The church will be decorated with evergreen, holly and laurel.

Mayflower Pomona Elects Officers.

Mayflower Pomona, of which South Weymouth grange is a member, has elected these officers for the coming year: Horace W. Spear of South Weymouth, master; George Downing of Hingham, overseer; Mrs. Emils Baker of Hanson, lecturer; Frank Halliday of Braintree, steward; Winthrop Fillebrum of Plympton, secretary; O. Ellis of Whitman, treasurer; LeRoy Bartlett of Marshfield, chaplain; Herbert Williams of Rockland, gatekeeper; Mrs. Hope Bailey of Kingston, pomona; A. W. Gorham member of executive committee and Mrs. Susie Cross of Hingham flora.

Shaw School Loses In Rockland.

The Rockland Y. M. C. A. juniors and the Shaw School team of Nash's Corner locked horns in a spirited game of basketball in Rockland last Saturday night and the Rockland boys proved to be the best contestants winning the argument 24 to 2. Crook starred for the winners and Blenis excelled for the Shaw School quintet.

The line up and summary follows:
Rockland Y. M. C. A. Juniors: Baker, Sheldon rf, Crook lf, Taylor c, Hall rb, Crawford lb.

Shaw School: Desmond and Robinson rb, Morey lb, Tirrell c, Blenis rf, Desmond lf.

Score, Rockland Y. M. C. A. Juniors 24 Shaw School 2. Goals from floor, Crook 6, Taylor 2, Hall, Crawford 2, Sheldon, Blenis. Referee Dorsett. Timer Walls. Scorer, Osgood. Time two 15 minute periods.

High School Notes.

Secretary Winthrop Packard of the Audubon society, lectured with the aid of reflectoscope, on "The Welfare of Wild Birds" before an audience consisting of members of the Senior class and of the Monday club, in the hall Monday.

The Junior class committee in charge of the Christmas party has observed the time honored custom of buying presents with a humorous significance for each guest, such as a rattle for teacher, a dolly for Johnny and a cigar for Lizzie. What's Christmas without the time honored customs of our ancestors.

Charles D. "Husky" Palmer was elected on Monday captain of the 1915 football team by unanimous acclaim. Captain Palmer has been the star of the rushline for two years and nothing may be said here which can further raise him in respect and esteem of his team mates and friends.

The Freshies won the interclass basketball series by defeating the Seniors, who suffered severely from having their team play broken up by the loss of Callahan. In the final game, between the Sophs and Juniors, the Sophs won (Juniors please take notice.)

Citizens' Association.

The Christmas season was observed by the Citizens Association of Weymouth and East Braintree last Monday night, with a Christmas tree and holiday program. Orchestral music and refreshment were enjoyed and each association member received a present from the tree, each present being a "knock" at the recipient.

Round of Pleasure.

"Well," mused six-year-old Harry as he was being buttoned into a clean white suit, "this has been an exciting week, hasn't it, mother? Monday we went to the zoo, Wednesday I lost a tooth, Thursday was Lily's birthday party, Friday I was sick, yesterday I had my hair cut; and now here I am rushing off to Sunday school!"

By JACK LONDON

OUR new serial is one of the best stories Jack London ever wrote.

It is about the iron muscled giants of the gold fields—about real men who face danger and sudden death without flinching.

It is by an author who has braved the snows and ice of the Yukon and has lived the life like Smoke Bellew, his hero.

It is as rich as a "mother lode" of Alaska—rich in adventure, romance, privation, heroism and love that is greater than death itself.

REMEMBER! Smoke Bellew Is the First of Our BIG SIX SERIAL LIST

The remaining stories to be published in this paper during 1915 are "Peg o' My Heart," "A Fool and His Money," "Penrod," "The Master Mind" and "The Forester's Daughter."

ON THE FARM

Read this column and you can have
it delivered at your house with something new every week for a full year by sending $2.00 to this office now.

Winter butter well made brings greater profit than summer butter.

Never feed frost bitten potatoes, roots or other vegetables to livestock; the risk is too great.

Home pride is a mighty valuable asset and the farmer who has none is carrying a heavy handicap on the road to success.

When ready to empty the ash pan mix a good lice powder with the ashes and empty in the hen house. The hens will dust themselves in it and rid themselves of lice and mites.

It is claimed that more damage is done by the gentle bulls than by those that are vicious, and the advice is to watch them, as the gentlest of bulls is a treacherous animal.

At this time of the year farmers are often tempted to utilize waste vegetables and roots by feeding them to cows, hoping that no harm will result. If the roots have been frozen trouble naturally follows.

The apple crop of continental United States is estimated at 230,249,000 bushels for 1914, while the yield last year was only 145,400,000 bushels. The average price being paid to farmers for apples at the present time is 62 cents per bushel.

It has been said that a pure bred bull is half the herd, and this is especially true when a pure bred sire is used on grade cows. It does not make much difference which breed the sire is chosen from.
Whether he be Angus, Shorthorn or Hereford he should be a pure bred and characteristic of the breed which he represents.

This may be taken as a principle which every honest man should subscribe to:
If you have anything which you can not keep from annoying other persons, keep it at home or suppress it. This applies to dogs, chickens, breachy stock, and even disagreeable noises or odors. You have no right to disturb your friends for your own private good.

Tell those people who are discussing the question of cuttings from apple trees growing to try my plan. As soon as freezing is over in spring, stick a good-sized potato on the end of your cutting and plant where you want the tree to grow. Keep sprouts off and ground loose and you are all right.

At no time since Adam and Eve were driven from Garden of Eden have the inhabitants of this world suffered from lack of production, but some people have gone hungry from the day of creation to this good hour for the lack of proper distribution. Slight variations in production have forced a change in diet and one locality has felt the pinch of want, while another surfeited, but the world as a whole has never been a land of plenty.

We now have less than one-tenth of the tillable land of the earth's surface under cultivation, and we not only have this surplus area to draw on but it is safe to estimate that in case of dire necessity one-half the earth's population could at the present time knock their living out of the trees of the forest, gather it from wild vines and draw it from streams.
No one should become alarmed; the world will never starve.

The successful stockman must know what each of his animals is doing each day. With the dairy herd it is comparatively easy to keep track of each day's record, simply by weighing the milk each time the cows are milked. It requires but a fraction of a minute's time each milking and enables one to know at once if for any reason one or more cows are falling off in their milk and to remedy the cause before a serious loss has been sustained.

It is very important that the water drunk by the cows giving three or more gallons of milk daily be warmed to about 60 degrees Fahrenheit. Otherwise the cows will not drink as much as they need to keep up a good milk flow. It does not take much ice water to chill a thin-fleshed dairy cow through and through on a cold winter day, especially when she is compelled to walk through the snow or a cutting wind to get to the tank or pond.

To be a big farmer implies more than the ownership of a big farm. Acres of land alone do not make a good farmer.
The man himself is of more importance than the land. The acquirement of plenty of land to handle need not worry the man who has the capacity to manage a few acres extra well. In the matter of success in farming, after all, it is not so much a question of how many acres in the farm, but how much each acre is made to yield. It is similarly true with live stock, poultry and fruit growing. Some farmers do big work on a small amount of

VALUE OF A CHILD'S GIFTS

Those Made With Their Own Hands Teach Good Lessons and Give Inspiration.

If we stop to think about our Christmas giving we realize that a gift means more to the giver than it does to him who receives. If it is given in the proper spirit the donor finds out to the full that it is really "more blessed to give than to receive," a fact that is lost sight of in an age of the commercial spirit.

With children there is a great educative value in their present giving.
If it is encouraged to be really their own giving. If the mother, however, simply prepares some little remembrance, and says "Mary, this is your Christmas present to Aunt Ellen," the gift has no meaning in the thoughts of the young giver. And not only has it no meaning, but it becomes actually harmful for the reason it presents the idea to the child that the gift without the giver is really a gift.
And the child has put no thought or self sacrifice into the giving of that present.

On the other hand, if the child be given pocket money which it may consider its very own, or, better still, if it is enabled to earn pocket money and is then encouraged to set aside a portion of its very own money for present making the idea of true giving is acquired. The sacrifice, the forethought, the love necessary to make a gift a real gift are there.

The home-made gifts of children have many valuable lessons to teach the young givers. Many lessons in sewing, raffia, bead-work or painting may be given under the guise of making a gift. In one family, where the elder sister had never made gifts, and really never learned to sew well until she was eighteen years of age, the younger sister, a girl of ten, inspired by the example of a small friend, wished to make birthday gifts for her family. Once she asked her mother to teach her how to crochet; another time to scallop, and before she was twelve years old she had become as proficient a little seamstress as one would want to see.

Thus practical lessons are learned, while the child is inspired with the idea that "Not what we give, but what we share; the gift without the giver is bare."

"Can you suggest something for me to get for my wife for Christmas?"
he asked of the shopkeeper.
"You'd better get her a box of cigars, I expect," said the shopkeeper.
"She was in here this morning and bought a lace parasol for you."

"The time is at hand," said the preacher,
With wrath showing plain on each teacher.
"When slippers will be Showered down upon me
By every feminine preacher."

AFTER A STRENUOUS CHRISTMAS DAY

No Elopements in Germany.

One seldom hears of elopements in Germany, because it is impossible for young people to marry in that country without the consent of their parents or legal guardians. Certain prescribed forms must be gone through or the marriage is null and void. When a girl has arrived at what is considered a marriageable age her parents make a point of inviting young men to the house, and usually two or three are invited at the same time, so that the attention may not seem too pointed. No young man, however, is invited to the house until after he has called at least once and thus signified his wish to have social intercourse with the family. In Germany a man must be at least eighteen years old before he can make a proposal. But when it is made and accepted the proposal is speedily followed by the betrothal. This generally takes place privately, shortly after which the father of the bride—as she is then called—gives a dinner or supper to the most intimate friends of both families, when the fact is formally announced, and shortly after it becomes a matter of public knowledge.

Two Famous English Orders.

On Oct. 13, 1399, was founded by Henry IV. "the Most Noble Order of the Bath." During the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries "The Bath" fell into disrepute, and its restoration to favor we owe to the German George I., who reconstituted the order in 1725. The reason for its loss of reputation is possibly to be found in one of the ceremonies which preceded the investiture. The candidate for knighthood was ceremoniously disrobed, conducted to a bath and while there was duly instructed and counseled by two grave and ancient knights concerning the order and feats of chivalry. The English are a prudish nation and preferred to be clothed and in their right mind if they are to be preached at. The Order of the Garter rather tried their reserve concerning the intimacies of apparel; the bath overstepped every limit.—London Chronicle.

REPAID THE FAVOR.

Grant Did Not Forget the Man Who Did Him a Good Turn.

"General Grant's most pronounced characteristic, perhaps, was his reward of the friends who had stood by him in his early days," said Colonel S. A. Holmes of St. Louis. "While Grant was doing the best he could after he had quit the army and was down and out he wanted to get the job of county surveyor of St. Louis county. This job was in the keeping of the three county judges, and Grant could get only one of them to vote for him, so he didn't get the place.

"After the war, when Grant was serving his first term as president, a delegation of Missourians visited the White House to urge the appointment of a St. Louis man for collector of internal revenue, the most lucrative position in the state. Grant listened to the arguments and looked over the petition presented. Then he scratched his head and remarked:

"Isn't there an old fellow out there of the name of Long, who used to be a judge of the county court?"

"Nobody in the delegation could recall Long, but Grant told them to go back and find out. Some time later he was told that Judge Long was still living in the county, but was not conspicuous.

"Get up a petition for him," advised the president, "and I will appoint him internal revenue collector."

"The friends of Long lost no time in presenting the requested petition, and the old judge was appointed.

"Grant had never forgotten the favor done him when he was less prosperous."—Washington Post.

Radiance of the Soul.

Carry the radiance of your soul in your face; let the world have the benefit of it.—Fox.

No Soft Bed For Him.

There is an immensely rich man in New York who never slept on a bed of elderdown, goose feathers, felt, hair or excelsior. When a boy he slept on a pallet of straw. When a young man his bed was an old fashioned slunk mattress, in the making of which he assisted to the extent of sorting the slunks. In the army (1861-5) he was glad to sleep on the ground. Later, as a civil engineer, he reposed on a punchon, and now, rolling in wealth, goes to bed every night on a trundle bed which he bought from his aged "nigger mammy." This affair is not over fourteen inches high and is corded up with half inch hemp. There is no mattress, and of course there are no springs. A rag quilt covers the ropes, another covers his body as he sleeps. His health is superb.—New York Press.

Peerless Geneva.

The most glowing tribute to Geneva is Frederic Harrison's. "I hold Zurich, Basel and Geneva to be the model cities of our age—the fine type of what cities will one day be in a regenerated age—the true type of civic organization, having site of rare beauty and convenience, spacious streets and avenues, noble public walks and gardens, perhaps everything short of grand antique buildings." Geneva in particular is "the finest type of a rational city that Europe possesses . . . a true city where, as in Athens, Florence, Venice, Antwerp or Ghent, of old, men can live a wholesome civic life, not in huge, amorphous caravanseries, such as London, Paris or Berlin—not in suffragated barracks, such as Manchester or Lyons or Glasgow—but in a beautiful, well ordered, free, organic city."

His Sermon on Women.

An English preacher in the seventeenth century, speaking to the text, "To be or not to be," said that woman should be like and unlike three things. She should be like a snail, always keep within her own house, but not like a snail, to carry all she had on her back. She should be like an echo, to speak when she was spoken to, but not like an echo, always to have the last word. She should be like a town clock, always keep time and regularity, but not like a town clock, to speak so loud that all the town might hear her.—Minneapolis Journal.

Memory.

The brain is like a phonograph. It is full of records, and you need only to set the needle and touch the spring of memory to hear its melody. Of course this leaves you with considerable responsibility as to the choice of records with which you stock up.—Los Angeles Times.

Her Luck.

"I proposed to Miss Slathers last night."

"That girl's lucky, all right."

"Oh, you flatter me."

"I'm not thinking of you. She won a bet when you proposed."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The Only Way.

"My brother has made a name for himself, and that is more than you can say," snapped Mrs. Gabb.

"What did he do?" asked Mr. Gabb.

"Adopt an alias!"—Montreal Star.

Practical Motion.

"Does sublimated optimism ever move you?"

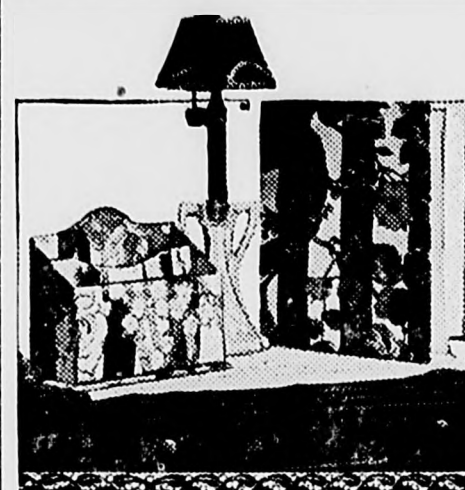

"No'm; we use the regular storehouse vans."—Baltimore American.

Pessimism leads to weakness; optimism leads to power.—William James.

Desk Sets for the Office or Home

AMONG the most attractive of novel presents for men are office or library sets consisting of portfolio, letter box, waste basket, candle shades, etc. They are made of handsome wall paper designs pasted over foundations of heavy cardboard or wood. A paper having a broad black and white stripe with dark red flowers, vaguely outlined on it, was used to cover the letter box and portfolio shown in the illustration. The candle shade is of dark red paper decorated with a fancy gold braid pasted on. The ability to choose an attractive paper and paste it on neatly is about all that is required for making these sets. Leather effects, the tiffany papers, besides many artistic flowered patterns are suited to the purpose and make useful and tasteful gifts that men appreciate.

Tobacco Pouch and Dressing Case Bag

A TOBACCO pouch is made of four long, narrow triangles of leather or of a silky plush, sewed together. A silk lining is made in the same way and placed in the outer bag. The edges along the top are blind-stitched together. The bag is 7 1/2 inches long, each triangle 3 1/2 inches wide. A casing is stitched in the bag 1 1/2 inches from the top to accommodate narrow elastic bands for drawing strings. If the bag is to be hung up ribbon or cord suspenders are sewed at each side.

Politeness.

Real politeness is the kindly expression of a kindly intent. Ill-nature and politeness are antagonistic and cannot dwell together for long in the same individual. Politeness in its genuine essence contributes toward the well-being of all, even to long life; while impoliteness and irascible temper may shorten life.

gaining in popularity which statement may be true but what the world wants just now is to see a tangible evidence of its coming.In magnifying Santa Claus by telling the children stories of his love for them and his great store house of things to make them happy the story of the Christ Child born at Bethlehem is lost sight of.
It is none too late to tell the "Old, Old Story" and make it ever new.One way to help Weymouth is to help its railroad stations and this may be done by purchasing ticket books at the home station instead of at the Boston station.
The larger the home receipts the higher becomes the standard of the office and better the chance of getting improvements in service or conditions.Do not decorate your Christmas tree with paper, cotton or any other inflammable material. Use metallic tinsel and other non-flammable decorations only, and set the tree securely so that the children in reaching for things cannot tip it over.Do not allow trees to remain inside buildings after the holidays. The tree itself ignites readily when needles have become dry. A large number of fires usually occur in January from this cause.In culling from our ancient files we find that thirty-six years ago the superintendent of schools and the school committee arranged among other teachings, morals and manners. We are often made glad by noticing that these two items are still practiced by many of the boys and girls who travel to and fro on our street cars. Yet, at not infrequent times, an aged woman, a woman with a baby or her day's shopping in her arms, is obliged to stand while lusty lads sit perfectly unmindful of her struggling condition.The many kind things which are being said to us in regard to our issue of last week are decidedly pleasing and encouraging. While we did our best to make the issue what we had promised it should be we do not claim all the honor. We are indebted to the merchants and others who came so nobly to our assistance andwe are glad to say that Weymouth merchants made good their promises to the public, as there was never shown in our stores, a better reason to patronize home merchants and boom Weymouth business.
You can have just as good stores in Weymouth as they have in Boston, Quincy or Brookton. Give the merchants an object in carrying good stocks and they will carry them. They are here to do business however who never tell the people where they are or what they have got to sell. If you are of that number start in 1915, which will cross the threshold next Friday with a reasonable ad and see what it will do for you.THE BEST PROOF

Given by a Weymouth Citizen.

Doan's Kidney Pills were used—they brought benefit.
The story was told to Weymouth residents.
Time has strengthened the evidence.
Has proven the result lasting.
The testimony is home testimony—
The proof convincing.
It can be investigated by Weymouth residents.Mrs. O. W. Binney, 17 Norfolk street, Weymouth, says: "I was troubled by weak kidneys and the kidney secretions were unnatural and irregular in passage.
My back ached and I was nervous. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and got a supply at the Weymouth Pharmacy. They made me well."CONFIRMED PROOF.On July 17, 1914, Mrs. Binney said:
"Since Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of kidney trouble some years ago, I have felt like a different person. I cannot speak too highly of this remedy and willingly confirm my former endorsement of it."Price 50 cents, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs.
Binney had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props.,

new and better flashlight powder. It is made of peroxide of lanthanum, to which are added substances similar to those used in gas lamp mantles. It gives an excellent light and produces less than one-tenth of the smoke and fumes which make other powders so disagreeable and often dangerous to use.Office of the Selectmen of where she is undergoing treatment.—The Young People's Christian union of the Universalist church sent out about 25 Christmas boxes to the shut-ins in town.—The Christian Endeavor of the Pilgrim church held a very pretty and impressive candle light service in the church vestry last Sunday evening.—Miss Elizabeth M. Clark entertained Squad 10 of the Pilgrim circle at her home on Curtiss street recently. A very pleasing evening was spent.—The Universalist Sunday school sent a Christmas box to the town home and also one to the Frances Willard Settlement, Boston, Mass.—Miss Rose Page of Bristol, R. I., is spending her vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Page of North street.—A very enjoyable affair took place at the Athens school Monday evening when the teachers of the building held a Christmas party. Original place cards and surprise gifts with appropriate verses were features of the evening's merriment. A supper consisting of sandwiches, cakes and ices was served.—The Christmas celebration of the Pilgrim Congregational Sunday school was held in the church vestry on Wednesday evening. The program consisted of songs and recitations by members of the school, and a Christmas tree. At these exercises Mr. R. S. Gilmore, superintendent of the Sunday school, was presented with a very beautiful bible by the school.—The Christmas tree and exercises of the Universalist Sunday school were held in the church vestry on Wednesday evening. A very pleasing program was given by the school, after which Santa Claus, who was impersonated by Mr. C. E.

Sules, distributed gifts, candy and oranges to the children.—At a party at the home of Miss Maude Williams last Friday evening, the engagement was announced of Miss Williams to Alton Jones of Brookton.—Christmas Sunday was observed at the Third Universalist church last Sunday.
The church was very beautifully and appropriately trimmed for the occasion.
Rev. Dr. William Henry McGlaulin, of Chicago Ill. general supt. of the Universalist church occupied the pulpit and gave a very pleasing and appropriate sermon to a large audience. Special Christmas anthems with Master Percival Ames as violinist and a solo by Stephen Pratt made up the musical program.—A very unique feature of the Christmas season's celebration was a candle light service held by the Young People's Christian Union of the Universalist church. The room which was trimmed for the occasion, was lighted by a great many red candles. Miss Olive Blake was leader of the service, and in addition to the regular devotional exercises there were vocal duets and a Christmas story
"How Mr. Smith missed Christmas. This service proved to be very interesting and pleasing to everyone present.—Special Christmas services were held at the Pilgrim Congregational church last Sunday. The church was very prettily decorated for the occasion and an appropriate sermon was preached by the pastor Rev. Charles Clark. The musical program was given with Mrs. Jessie Baffum as soloist.Remembered Prohibition.Three-year-old Dorothy, who was al-

SOUTH WEYMOUTH

11—Mrs. Louise Merritt Polley announces that the assemblies of her dancing class, which have proven so popular this winter will continue until further notice, on Tuesday evenings in Music hall with dancing from 8 until 11. New and old steps will be danced and Richards' orchestra will continue to furnish music—Adv.

—All ladies are urged to attend the Free Cooking lecture to be held in Music hall, Columbian square five afternoons beginning Tuesday Dec. 29. Samples and cook books given free. Take fork and spoon to taste the good things you will see prepared.

—Rev. Harry W. Kimball a former pastor of the Union Congregational church, occupied the pulpit of that church last Sunday.

—Mrs. Henry McCall and son are visiting friends in Revere over the Christmas season.

—Arthur McGrory has taken a position with a Boston firm.

—Miss Laura Sherman is home from a week's visit with relatives in Marshfield.

—Willie S. Holbrook is able to be out again after his recent illness.

—A dancing party was held in the Pond street hall in Pond Plain last Saturday, night, with a large number attending.

Mrs. Wilfred Dunn was in charge and the proceeds will go toward the cake table fund at the coming Improvement Association fair.

—The sum of $550. was netted at the recent Universalist church fair.

—The annual Christmas party under the auspices of the Norfolk club will take place to-morrow evening from 6 until 11.

—The illustrated dramatic reading held in the Universalist church South Weymouth last Sunday night was attended by a large gathering from all parts of the town.

The reading was given by Miss Edna Spear a graduate of Emerson College of Boston. Miss Spear read Wilson Barrett's play "The Sign of the Cross" in a most delightful and pleasing manner.

The chorus choir of the church gave special Christmas selections and the male quartet of the church sang.

—Mrs. H. Blackstone of this place sang in the cantata "The Story of Bethlehem" presented in the Hatherly M. E. church Rockland last Sunday night.

—Mrs. Emma Hunt is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Herbert F. Reynolds at their home in Randolph.

—Arthur H. Linton has transferred to Emile Hochstrasser, a parcel of land at Pond Plain.

—At the Universalist church last Sunday Rev. W. W. Rose preached on the theme "Is there a Santa Claus?"

—Miss Helen Edson of Whitman is visiting relatives in town this week.

—Miss Myra Tucker of Canton is spending the winter with Mrs. F. E. Munroe of this village.

Old South Church Notes.

Morning worship with preaching by the pastor at 10:30, with Sunday school following. C. E. meeting at 6. New Year's meeting, "This year and all years for Christ." Evening gospel service at 7. Preparatory service Thursday evening at 7:30.

Comets' Tails and the Sun.

A theory to explain the tails of comets is advanced by the French physicist, M. Houlellevigne in the Revue Scientifique. It is natural to suppose, he says, that the incandescent nucleus of a comet is throwing out electrons into the extremely rarefied atmosphere that surrounds it. The observations of George Ellery Hale, the American astronomer, prove that the sun behaves like a negatively electrified body.

Therefore he repels electrons, which are negatively electrified bodies. These particles so repelled would be driven to that side of the comet which is farthest from the sun, and by contact with the molecules of the gaseous and rarefied atmosphere would produce just the luminous appearance that we call a comet's tail.

Every comet's tail always extends away from the sun. Arrhenius, the Swedish astronomer, believed that the particles of the tail were repelled by the light of the sun.

Actors and Their Teeth.

"There is only one feature of an actor which will 'give him away' when disguised in a perfect makeup," remarks a young actor, "and that feature is the teeth. Let a man do what he will to his face, let him cover it with all kinds of paint, beard, whiskers and what not, but the teeth will disclose his indubitable identity directly he opens his mouth to speak a line or to raise a laugh.

"I myself, when sitting in the front of a house watching other people's performances, have frequently been puzzling myself as to the identity of a cleverly made up player, but no sooner has the said player disclosed his 'furies' than I have at once recognized him, provided, of course, he has changed to be a man whose face I know moderately well. Strangely enough, hardly any one is aware of this curious truth, but it remains an undeniable fact all the same."—Pearson's Weekly.

How to Tell a Politician.

A politician is a man who can convince people that he is working for them when in reality they are working for him.

Did Santa Claus Skip You?

—Mrs. Elliott Lambert and children of Manchester, N. H., were week end guests of Mrs. Samuel Thompson.

—Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bradford are spending the holidays with Mrs. Bradford's parents of Marshfield.

—Paul Smith is enjoying the holidays with his wife and children in Portland, Me.

—Rev. Edward J. Yaeger left on Wednesday to make a short visit with his parents in Philadelphia, Pa.

—Mrs. Mary Miles is making a visit with Mrs. James B. Jones.

—On Thursday afternoon the "Wide Awake" cheered the shutins and inmates of the Town Home by singing Christmas carols to them.

—The annual Christmas tree festival of the Old North Sunday school was held in the chapel on Tuesday evening at seven o'clock. A splendid program of recitations and songs by the school was given, after which Santa Claus came down the chimney in his jolly old fashioned way.

A song entitled "Welcome to Santa" was rendered. A beautifully decorated Christmas tree stood in the corner of the room, from which presents and boxes of candy were distributed. At a late hour, Santa Claus departed after spending a very jolly evening with the children of the Old North Sunday school.

First Church, (Old North) Notes

Rev. Edward Norton of Quincy will occupy the pulpit of the church next Sunday.

A Christmas vesper service was held in the church last Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. The church was prettily trimmed with potted ferns and evergreen wreaths. A procession by the children of the Sunday school opened the program during which they sang "Holy Night."

Recitations were rendered by Harold Pratt, Ruth Sladen, George Winters and Ruth Freeman. The school took part in the responsive reading, also in the singing of Christmas carols. An interesting address was given to the children by the pastor, Rev. Edward J. Yaeger.

Why Pheasant Is Valued.

The renown of the pheasant as a game bird is due to its skill in hiding itself on the ground, the fine shots that it offers when driven from cover, and the opportunities it affords to the fine art of cookery.

The Prophesied Completeness.

We rejoice in life because it seems to be carrying us somewhere; because its darkness seems to be rolling on toward light, and even its pain to be moving onward to a hidden joy. We bear with incompleteness because of the completion which is prophesied and hoped for.—Phillips Brooks.

Santa's Christmas

By MARY D. ARNOTT

LINDENETTE struggled vainly with the tears that squeezed at last through tired eyelids. It was not often that the brave little homemaker gave way to grief, but in the present moment she seemed unable to control her emotion.

In the next room childish voices prattled joyously. Lindenette had not found the heart to tell them that Christmas would have to come and go without the much heralded visit from Santa Claus. Since the loss of both parents Lindenette had managed to keep a roof over the heads of her small brother and sister and had provided food for their slight frames. What did it matter if her cheeks had lost their roses and her lips their cheery bloom? The smile lingered. That was all that mattered.

She brushed her tears aside and arose to answer an unexpected summons from the knocker. She looked her surprise at the great man who stood on her tiny porch. "I have come in search of one Linden Lane," the stranger said with a smile to which the girl responded. "The name is unusual," admitted Lindenette, "and my own is even more impossible—being Lindenette Lane. May I ask you in from the cold?" She opened the door and Marvin Goodwin entered the pitifully barren room into which she led him. His eyes followed the girl rather than the contents of the room.

Two small, pale faces peered at him from the kitchen door, and Goodwin smiled at them.

"Do I look like Santa Claus?" he asked them by way of breaking the ice.

"No, you don't," returned the boy, bluntly. "Besides, Linda says it may be too cold for Santa Claus to come out this year." There was a wail from the little sister, and the boy strove vainly to conceal his disappointment at this announcement.

Linda gave them each a hug and told them to run along. When they had gone she turned to Goodwin with inquiry in her eyes.

"My errand is a pleasant one," he said quickly, for his own voice was none too controlled. "It will add to your happiness, I know." He drew a memorandum from his pocket, and after consulting it, asked: "Your father, Linden Lane? Did he live in Stillwater, Minn., 22 years ago?"

"Yes," replied Linda, with a flush of excitement lending roses to her cheeks. "I was born there."

"Then, to come directly to the point," Goodwin told her, "we find two deposits of $25 each in two of our banks there. One Linden J. Lane opened the account 22 years ago."

Linda laughed softly. "My father used always to fear bank failures, and put small amounts in many banks." She turned sparkling eyes upon Goodwin. "We thought we had collected all his savings," she said.

"These two nests were undiscovered," the man laughed, "and the hens have been laying golden eggs. You have, at this very minute $300—"

"Three hundred dollars! Oh!" she impulsively held out her two tollworn little hands. "It is a fortune! The children! They can have their Santa Claus!"

Goodwin found himself feeling happier than he remembered having felt before. Was it the knowledge that he had been the Good Fairy in this small family, or was it something more subtle, more wonderful that had crept into his mind?

He laughed a trifle nervously. "I am going to ask for immediate payment for the joy I have found for you," he said and when Linda's questioning eyes met his he said impetuously: "Let me come tomorrow—and help make Christmas glad for the children. May I come?"

Linda glanced at him with a new shyness. "Yes," she said, simply. "If you like I will go with you to help get that Christmas tree."

Next morning Linda and the children were up early.

The crackling of the fire as it roared up the stovepipe created a spirit of cheerfulness that greeted Marvin Goodwin when he presented himself at an early hour.

"Oh!" shouted Bobby, "here's our own Santa Claus!" His eyes were glued to the armful of packages Goodwin deposited on the table.

"Bobby!" cried Linda. "Haven't you ever been Santa Claus before?" queried Peggy.

"Never! This is my very first experience. I hope I will acquit myself with proper dignity."

And Linda's eyes, over the heads of the children, looked down deep into Goodwin's big soul, and unconsciously she let the man read what her heart was saying.

"Next Christmas," he was saying in his mind, "Linda will have permanent roses in her cheeks, and her eyes will be mine, and that will be all the happiness one Santa Claus could have."

Lindenette smiled.

A MILITARY DANDY.

Ruzsky's Daintiness Under Fire the Start of His Rise to Fame.

General Ruzsky, who commanded the Russian army that overran Galicia and became in consequence the hero of the day in Russia, was conspicuous as a young lieutenant for the daintiness and elegance of his dress.

In the Russo-Turkish war of 1877 Ruzsky, then a young lieutenant, served as aide-de-camp on the staff of one of the Russian generals. In the heat of the battle of Plevna he was ordered to take a dispatch to the commander in chief, the famous Skobelev. He found Skobelev standing in a rather exposed position, surrounded by his staff.

As young Ruzsky delivered his dispatch a shell from a Turkish battery struck the ground near by and, exploding, flung a shower of dust and dirt over the party. Most of the officers involuntarily ducked their heads, but young Ruzsky stood firm and erect. Then, as calmly as if he were in a ballroom, he drew from his pocket a spotless linen handkerchief and flicked the dust from his immaculate uniform.

A smile of derision passed over the faces of the staff officers, but Skobelev looked at the young lieutenant with sudden interest and asked his name. "You will remain with me as a member of my staff," he said to the astonished young officer. "I am in need of such men as you."

Years after, when Ruzsky's service had proved the correctness of General Skobelev's estimate of his abilities, the general told the incident of the bursting shell to the czar.

"When a soldier has such a keen regard for his appearance before his fellow man that no danger can make him unconcerned about the figure he cuts," explained Skobelev, "he makes a dependable leader of men. He will suffer death rather than permit any regard for his personal safety to impair the impression of inferiority that he is so anxious to make upon his fellow man. Even though he be a coward at heart he will always play the part of a brave man in his desire to have men consider him possessed of superior qualities."

"In Ruzsky I am doubly fortunate," concluded the veteran general, "for Ruzsky is both a dandy and a brave man."—Youth's Companion.

OUR WILD PONIES.

"Jing-go-tigs" Are the Only Herds We Have in This Country.

"Look to me like Jing-go-tigs," said the veteran horseman at a horse sale at Durland's when a batch of Virginia ponies, stubby, scrubby and scraggy, came into the ring to go under the hammer of the auctioneer.

"Jing-go-tigs" a new one to me. What are they—something in the horse line?"

"Very much—the only wild ponies bred in the United States so far as I know, and I've bought horses in about all the markets of the country. A Jing-go-tig beats anything in the world for a wild, scrawny and disreputable pony. But tame 'em and they're fine. When ever you see a pony trap in Baltimore, Washington, Annapolis or any of the towns in Virginia or Maryland it's a 100 to 1 shot they are Jing-go-tigs. Driven to the swiftest of turnouts they are, and you may often see them in the parks in Philadelphia and the suburbs of that city with children driving or riding them, just as they do in the cities farther to the south."

"Jing-go-tigs" happen to be Chinco teague and come from the long, narrow, sandy and stumpy covered island of that name to the northeast of the upper point of Virginia where the line meets that of the state of Maryland. Adjoining it is the island of As sateague. It is from the waters off the shore of the first mentioned island that the famous Chinco teague oysters come.—New York Times.

A Mystery of Nature.

The worldwide fame and distinction of the sweetbrier rose are due to its fragrant foliage. The leaves have rus set glands on their undersides, which secrete aromatic oil; hence the delicious perfume of the foliage. No other rose in the world has sweet scented foliage. The perfume of all other roses is in the petals in the leaves. There are many types of brier roses with small pink blossoms and other characteristics exactly like the true sweetbrier, but not one with aromatic foliage. This is one of the unexplained mysteries of nature.—Suburban Life.

Yellowstone Park.

Yellowstone park has an area of 2,142,720 acres. The park is in Montana, Wyoming and Idaho and was established in 1872. The only park on earth that can compare with the Yellowstone in size is the one in New British Columbia. Jasper park, taken over by the authorities of the new Northwestern territory, has an area of 3,200,000 acres—about the size of the state of Connecticut.—New York American.

A Common Curiosity.

"Willie, why weren't you in school yesterday afternoon?"
"Do you want to know too?"
"Of course."

"See, teacher! Pa and ma kept me busy all evening explaining that."—Detroit Free Press.

Inverse Eugenics.

"They say that action and reaction are always equal."
"Yes; one of my ancestors worked himself to death, and I'm the reaction."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Plenty of Proof

By O. F. WOODRUFF

TEDDY sat upon the top step of the stairs that led to the street and rested his chin in the palm of his hand. Some of the fellows came along and hulloosed to him, but Teddy didn't answer. He didn't want to play with the fellows just now, for he was battling with a great sorrow.

Tom had said it, so it must be true, for Tom was eight years old and didn't have to go to bed until 8 o'clock. Teddy's hour for retiring was half past 7, and he realized that the extra half hour made a man of the world out of Tom, while it left the unfortunate Teddy still a baby.

Tom had stuck his hands into his pockets—Tom's trousers were lovely and rough, just like his father's—and had swaggered around telling all the fellows that there wasn't any Santa Claus! When questioned further, he had said that there used to be, but that this year there wasn't going to be, and there never would be again.

No Santa Claus! If Teddy hadn't been six years old, he might have cried, but of course one as old as he never cried.

Teddy wondered if he'd better tell his mother. He decided he wouldn't. Why should his mother, whom he loved so dearly, be made to suffer any longer than was necessary?

It was hard, though, during the next two weeks, which seemed like years, not to tell, and when Christmas eve came and his mother gayly brought out his biggest pair of stockings and hung them up at the end of the mantle he could hardly keep back the tears. How disappointed he and his mother would be when they got up in the morning and found the stockings empty! She leaned over and kissed him tenderly. "Are you tired, dear?" she asked. "You don't seem as happy as usual!"

Teddy assured her, as well as he was able for the lump in his throat, that he was perfectly well. His mother, like the wise one that she was, didn't press the question. She merely drew up her low rocking chair and sat beside the bed until she thought Teddy was asleep and then she crept quietly down stairs.

Teddy lay for a long time after she went, watching the firelight flicker on the walls. He couldn't go to sleep and besides what was the use, when there wasn't anything to wake up for? A good many tears rolled out of the corners of his eyes, but he didn't care now.

He must have lain there for about four or ten hours, he thought, and had just shut his eyes to rest them from the light, when he heard a sound, a very little bit of a sound. He sat up quickly in bed and listened eagerly, because it sounded, it really did sound, as if it might be sleighbells. In a minute, he didn't know just how, he was leaning out of the window.

He didn't feel as if he had walked there at all, but more as if he had just skimmed along without any effort on his part, as if he had been some sort of delightful fish bird. He leaned away out of the window, not feeling a bit afraid of falling, and looked down upon the street.

Yes, down there on the street, as plain as day, he could see the reindeer shaking their long horns and prancing until the bells that seemed almost to cover them filled the air with their musical jingle. And then there was a gleam of red. Somebody was climbing into the sleigh! There was the echo of a jovial voice calling, the horns of the reindeer quivered joyfully, their little feet pawed the ground, then the whole turnout seemed to leap into the air, and like a flash was gone!

Teddy rubbed his eyes. It was funny! He thought he was at the window, but here he was in bed.

He sat up and looked around the room. The fire in the grate had gone out, but the gray light of the morning was beginning to steal through the curtains. Teddy slid out of bed and crept softly to the fireplace.

The stockings were bulging in all directions, as had been their exhilarating wont in other years! He put out his hand and touched one of them gently. It was no dream! The stocking was full to overflowing!

With a little sighing, whispering wheeze of joy and relief Teddy clasped his hands until the knuckles showed as white as the snow outside. Then with a cry of absolute delight he dashed into his mother's room.

She opened a pair of sleepy eyes at the sound of the pattering little feet. Teddy threw himself upon her, laughing and sobbing.

"Oh, mother, mother, mother!" he cried. "He come after all! Santa Claus did come! Santa Claus did come! He did, he did, he did!"—Chicago Daily News.

Rosie's Santy Man

By IRENE BEACE

"H DEAR! I wish he'd come," sighed Rosie Perone.

"Maybe he be sick," said the brother, as he dusted carefully the array of fruit arranged with such a holiday air in the narrow window of his shop. "He come if he not sick. You wait, Santy man no forget."

But Rosie in spite of her brother's encouraging words became very impatient. Finally she started in search of the kind friend, who was none other than the Santy of her street. Not the real Santy of Christmas eve, but a man who just pretended he was the same jovial friend of holly and cheer and wore a cloak and hat of red, faced with fur, and carried instead of a long whip a tattered reindeer, a sign which told of a wonderful toyshop just around the corner.

A week before Pietro had seen from his little shop windows this same Santy man stagger and fall. Then both he and Rosie had helped the stranger into the fruit shop, where food and sympathy had been generously given. Now, it was the day before Christmas and the stranger who each day had stopped at Pietro's little shop had failed to appear.

"Maybe—he up the street somewhere," the brother had called to Rosie. "When you see him, tell him, tomorrow we look for him to eat with us. Yes?"

Rosie nodded and went on down the long avenue. There was a gentle snow falling, just enough to add to the street the touch of Christmas. But nowhere could Rosie see the kind Santy man of her street, who had told her such wonderful tales of toys, fairies and of the real country of deep hills and red sunsets.

Suddenly she thought of something, a something so different that it made her heart go thumpy-thump. She would go to the wonderful toyshop, just around the corner and see for herself, if her friend was there.

But not a tired, hurried clerk of the shop had time to answer Rosie's questions. Finally she approached a tall gray-haired man standing in the center of the long aisle. She felt certain he would know something about the Santy of her street.

"Please, do you know our Santy man?"

"Who?" asked the man.

"The Santy man, who wore a red coat, cap and carried a sign?"

"No, I don't. What is it you want to buy, little girl?"

"I don't want to buy nothin'. I'm just lookin' for the Santy man of my street. He—" Then Rosie could say no more. The lumps would stick in her throat, no matter how hard she swallowed.

Just what might have happened is hard to say, if a lady standing near hadn't heard what Rosie said and wanted to help her. She knew exactly what to do.

An hour later, after seeing Pietro at his little shop, Rosie rode away with the lady, who was very beautiful, by the way, in her big automobile, to the hospital, where the poor Santy had been taken the night before.

It was a wonderful, curious little Rosie, who followed her friend down the long, cool hall to the ward where the sick Santy man lay. Timidly she walked to the man's bedside. He saw her. He held out his hand. Rosie grabbed it and held it close and fast in her own little hands.

"Oh—I'm so glad you're found. Me and Pietro love you so much. I never would have found you if the beautiful lady hadn't."

But Rosie didn't finish the sentence, for Santy hadn't heard a word she was saying. He was staring with deep, strange eyes at the lady, who had drawn nearer the sick man's bed.

"Sis," he whispered.

"Bob," she answered.

There Rosie sat with shining eyes and a little heart thumping and listened to the wonderful story of her Santy man and the lady. Santy was none other than the lady's brother, whom she hadn't seen since the day, years and years ago, he ran away to sea. And the lady? She was the beautiful fairy of the toyshop.

"And did you know all the time she owned it?"

"Yes."

"Why didn't you go and see her?"

"Because I was too poor, sick and proud."

Now, of course, like all stories where fairies and Santy hold forth, everybody was glad and lived happy ever afterward. It was a wonderful day for Rosie and Pietro.

And up and down Rosie's street, too, there was gladness; for the good news had spread to the children. Rosie and the sparrows told that the Santy man of their street had found a sister.

WAITING TO HEAR FROM SANTA

Following Are a Few of the Items Which Appeared in the Gazette Years Ago This Week.

THIRTY-SIX YEARS AGO

Albert Tirrell had three hogs slaughtered this week, their aggregate weight being over 1700 lbs.

Weymouth has now quite a number of Normal School teachers, four of them, two grammar masters and two upper intermediate teachers having been added during the year just closing.

A pig belonging to A. A. Spear gave birth to six little ones last Monday evening and during the night she ate the six, and next morning jumped over a fence five feet high, being no doubt, highly exhilarated by her unnatural provender.

Course of Study is the title of a report by the committee appointed by the Norfolk County Convention of Committees and Superintendents, the report having been published in a neat pamphlet form. The general topics preselected for consideration are Morals and Manners, Language, Arithmetic, with introductory reflections on Supervision Convention etc.

Rev. J. A. Cruzan of East Weymouth, recently delivered a sermon on the subject of divorce, in which he presented a cure for the evils, as follows:

There should be charity and forbearance after marriage. The admiral of Castile said that "he who goes to war, must necessarily submit to everything that happens."

A little politeness would prevent many divorces. I hold that no married man has a shadow of a claim to being a gentleman who is not just as scrupulously polite to his wife as to any other women.

TWENTY-TWO YEARS AGO.

742 cases of boots and shoes were shipped from the several factories in East Weymouth for the week ending Saturday the 24th.

The ponds have been crowded with skaters this week; there were 600 people on Cranberry pond Monday afternoon.

An electric light has been put up at the corner of Stetson and Broad street; this is a great improvement; as heretofore there has not been a darker place in town.

The Republicans will hold a caucus at Arcadian hall tomorrow evening for the purpose of choosing a ward committee for 1893 and transacting other business.

At the meeting of the Union church last Thursday evening it was voted to give Rev. Judson V. Clancy, of Woonsocket, a unanimous call to become the pastor of the above named church.

Those railroad sleepers lying along the sides of our streets do not add much to the beauty of the place, but there is an inward satisfaction in seeing them there, as serving, in the mind of the public, as a foundation on which it may place its faith that the electric road will, at no distant date, be in operation.

The Rev. Allen B. Hudson was ordained pastor of the Pilgrim church, in North Weymouth, Mass., on Wednesday, Dec. 28, 1892. The Ecclesiastical Council convened at 3.30 p. m., and the examination was held during the afternoon. About a dozen churches of neighboring towns were represented.

One Cause of Old Age. According to a Roumanian scientist, old age is simply due to a decrease in the amount of water in the human system.

Details. Details are something beneath the notice of the majority. It requires a rare sort of mind to accord to them the proper importance.

It is necessary for every great artist to understand details in order that he may know when they should be ignored. Gulliver discovered this interesting fact when he woke up one morning. The perfection of any masterpiece depends upon the strategic elimination of its details.

Those who see only those things which lie between the little and the great see neither of these. It requires the same capacity of imagination to master details that it does to master immensities. To see big one must also be able to see little.

Controlling events means controlling details.

Nothing succeeds like details.—Life.

Heathen Hospitality.

African jungle people are not very particular concerning their food. One of our missionary women was down with an attack of fever some time ago. This was a source of sorrow to these poor, unlearned yet sympathetic natives, who in their own way are really compassionate and want to help. One of these "bush mammals" tried to express her sorrow because the "white mammy missionary" was so ill. After a time she left the station with a bright idea in her head and started for the jungle. A little later she returned with a large tropical leaf from one of the trees. Upon it were several big crawling green worms, which she had caught and brought to the sick missionary. She thought they would be nice and tender for her to eat during her illness.—Christian Herald.

Starting the Day Wrong.

There was a gloom on the face of the New England farmer.

"What's the matter, Elijah?" asked his nearest neighbor. "Flapjacks given out over to your house?"

"Worse'n that," said Elijah. "You know, 'twasn't apple year, and wife says we can't have any more apple pie for breakfast."

"Can't you make out if you have apple pie noon and night?"

"I can, because I've got to," said Elijah. "But, I tell you, it upsets me starting in the day wrong like that."—New York Post.

New York's Broadway.

Few New Yorkers know that the great Broadway was once called Great George street in honor of the English king. It was afterward known as the Bloomingdale road before it acquired the name of "the Broadway," which was subsequently changed to Broadway.—New York Telegram.

A Missed Opportunity.

"There goes a man I might have married," said Gertie.

"He? Why, he married his stenographer!" said Mabel.

"I know it," replied Gertie. "I applied for the same job just ten minutes after she was hired."—Detroit Free Press.

Mars Located.

"Now, tell me, children, who is Mars?" asked the teacher.

"He's head usher in the theater of war," shouted little Willie.—Buffalo Express.

Realistic Scenery.

"That tree was so natural that the audience thundered its applause."

"I suppose the tree responded with a bough."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Union Church Notes.

Last Sunday was observed as Christmas Sunday, with appropriate music and sermon by the pastor. In the afternoon the Sunday school gave their Christmas concert.

The Sunday school Christmas tree was held on Tuesday evening. The entertainment was a play entitled "Under the Mistletoe." Afterward Santa Claus distributed gifts and boxes of candy.

Next Sunday morning at 10.30 the pastor will preach. Sunday school will follow. The Young Volunteers will meet at 6 o'clock. Evening worship at 7 o'clock, sermon by the pastor.

A Christmas concert was given in the auditorium of the Union Congregational church last Sunday by the members of the Sunday School. The program consisted of songs and recitations by the members of the primary and intermediate divisions and remarks by Rev. Albert P. Watson, pastor of the church. Miss Helen Load had charge of the concert.

Good Disinfectant.

The addition of strong vinegar or dilute sulphuric acid to chloride of lime materially increases its effectiveness as a disinfectant.

In these exciting times almost everyone finds solace and entertainment where there is good music. Some prefer classics, others ballads, while the whole nation seems to have gone wild, over the modern dance selections.

Talking Machine Department

Here you will find a very acceptable gift all the way from $15 to $250, and you can have your choice of either

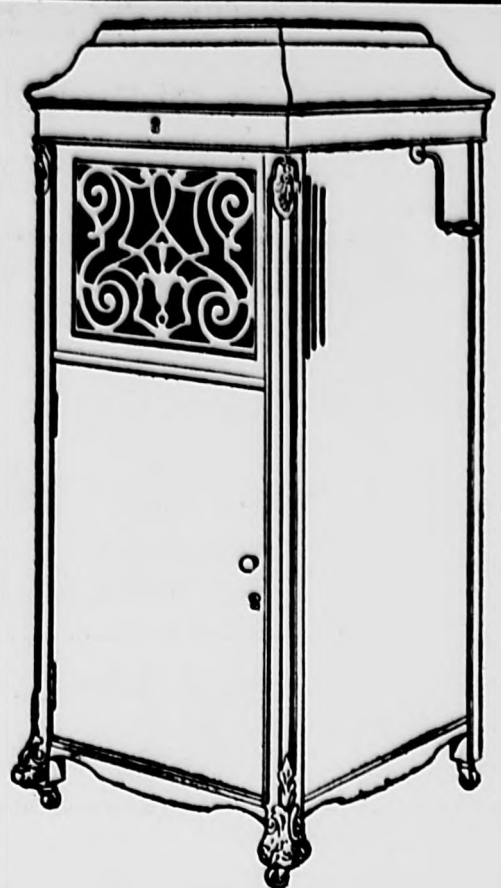

Edison or Victor Machines of the very latest type, latest records, etc.

Every year at Christmas time the factories are unable to supply the demand for these goods, so place your order early and we will deliver any time you say. Remember, we are prepared to meet all the so-called "special offers" and "bargain assortments" that you read of in the papers.

Wise Wombat.

"Why does Wombat speak so frequently about his wife? He praises her in the most extravagant terms. She may be a nice woman, but why drag her into the conversation all the time?" "It's a little idea of his in case she has a dictograph stuck around."—Louisville Courier Journal.

Rooting Slips in Water.

The amateur flower grower will find that the quickest and best method of rooting slips of geraniums, nasturtiums, etc., is by placing them in a glass of water in a sunny window. In a few days the roots start, and they can then be planted in soil. From a single plant one may have a collection of plants for bedding, such as would cost a dollar or two at the greenhouse.
